This Verpilianus Emperor of Rome, Conqueror of

dom. Surnamed the delight of mankind.  W.S.
To the HONOURABLE
Sir John Robinson,
Knight and Baronet,
LIEUTENANT
OF THE TOWER, AND
ALDERMAN of the CITY OF LONDON.

Honourable Sir,

This Rare and Remarkable Piece of History, as it was Dedicated before to the City of London in general, because of the Quality of the Subject; Treating of the Ruin of one of the most Famous Cities upon Earth: So upon this Review, and new Edition, I take the Boldness of Dedicated it to YOU alone; who are one of the Eminent Members, and Ornament thereof, as also being Governor of that Place, wherein lies her Chiefest Security.

It was formerly Dedicated to this City, in the highest Brunt of the late Civil Confusions. And the Noble Author of the following Epistle thought it very reasonable to do so, out of an express Design to awaken, and warn Her of Her desperate Condition at that Time; And it produced so happy Effects.
The Epistle.

Effects, that it made such Impressions upon the Spirits of many of the best Citizens, that they began to recollect themselves, and see their Error: The same Author representing unto them, that the same Crimes and Crying Sins, which reigned in Jerusalem before her last and utter Destruction, were very rife then in London; which were, the Spirit of Sedition, instable and stubborn rebellious Hearts, their Murmurings at Government, and an Itch after Innovations. As also, the Defiling of their Temple, the irreverence and Contempt of the Priests, the Violation of the Tombs of the Dead; with other Acts of Prophaneness and Sacrilege: But principally the Crucifying of the LORD of LIFE.

The City of LONDON was guilty at that time of all these Ugly and Enormous Crimes, and may be said to be led all along by a true Jewish Spirit; And concerning the last, viz. The Crucifixion of our Saviour, though no Comparison made without a High Prophaneness, yet the manner of murdering CHARLES the First, may be humbly said to bear a kind of Analogy, and Resemblance with it: Nay, the Jews (whereof there are Swarms now in this City) will not stick to say, that it was a Murther beyond theirs; for, what they did was out of Blindness, and Ignorance; for they neither knew, nor acknowledged Him to be King of the Jews: But the English did Accuse and Arraign, they did Condemn and Murther King CHARLES by the Name of their own KING, the KING of England.

God Almighty avert those further Judgments which hang over us, as prayeth,

Honourable Sir,
Your most humble Servant,
and Fellow Citizen,

J. S.
To ENGLANDS's Imperial Chamber, THE RENOWNED CITY OF LONDON,
To the Right Honourable the Lord Mayor, The Right Worshipful the Sheriffs, Mr. Recorder, with the Court of Aldermen, and Common-Council, &c.

As among Men, so there is a resemblance and a kind of Affinity among Cities, which are the Mansions of Men, and reverence due to some more than others; Carthagena in Spain doth acknowledge old Carthage in Africk to be her Mother; Leyden in Holland doth glory that she is allied to Lions in France, both of them bearing the Name of Lugdunum; Saragosa in Aragon confesseth herself Daughter to Syracuse in Sicily; and London, by some Antiquaries, is called Troyovant, as having been first founded by the Trojans: But of all the Cities upon the Earthly Globe, Jerusalem deserves most reverence, in regard our Salvation was wrought and consummated in her; In regard, that grand Proprietary Sacrifice for humane Souls was offered in her: Therefore, under favour, I held it not improper to Dedicate the History of this once so famous Metropolis, to the flourishing City of London.
The Epistle Dedicatory.

In the Holy Bible, the most authentick Patent of Saving Faith, there is a Text which reflected upon the ancient Nation of the Jews, and aimed only at their Country, viz. In Jewry God is known, &c. Psal. 76. He was known indeed in that Land by the Multitude of his Mercies, but afterwards by the severity of his Judgments. That Race of People, partly because they were not Labourers at the building of that Mount of human Pride, the Tower of Babel, were for many Ages the objects of his Favour, till they made themselves afterwards the subjects of his Fury. And the Philosophers tell us, Corruptio optimi est pessima, or, as we find, that the sweetest Wines become the tarterst Vinegar; so those heavenly Indulgences turn'd to heavy Indignations, those silver Showers of extraordinary Benediction became black Storms of Vengeance. It is the method of Divine Justice to correct first with Rods, then with Scourges, and if that will not do, with Scorpions: The Jews felt all the three degrees; and never was any People upon Earth made greater Examples of Wrath than his own chosen Inheritance, a peculiar People, that might have claimed the right Hand of Primogeniture among the rest of Mankind. Now, who soever desires to make researches into the grounds of these sad Disasters, will find it was their seditious proud Spirits, their instable, and stubborn rebellious Hearts, (which did them more Mischief than the Roman Rams, or any other destructive Engines) the defiling of their Temple, the violation of the Tombs of the dead, with other Acts of Prophaneness and Sacrilege: But principally the Rejecting and Crucifying of the Lord of Life. For never any thing did thrive with them afterward; in somuch, that if there were no other motive for the Jews Conversion, the length of those heavy Judgments, under which they groan to this Day, were enough to do it; and it is observed the length of these Judgments doth often puzzle their Intellectuals and put them at a stand: for some of their Rabbies will start and shrink in their Shoulders at it, and sometimes break out into a kind of Confession, that their Judgments could not last so long, but for crucifying one that was more than a Man. Besides, the punctual accomplishment of our Saviour's Predictions, were sufficient to convince any rational Creature. For not long after their Land became a stage of Blood, and all kinds of Barbarisms. Their so renowned City, their Temple and Sanctum Sanctorum, so fam'd all the Earth over, was made level to the Ground. And observable it is, that these Judgments fell upon their Temple at the highest time of Holiness, at their Passover of Jubilee; so that one might say, That Season which was ordained for their Salvation, turned to their Perdition: Moreover, the very inanimate Creatures and Vegetables, the very Soil of the Country, became co-sufferers with them, being forc'd to part with her Plenty, as well as with her People ever since.
The Epistle Dedicatory:

From that time to this day, 'tis well known what Runnagates and Land-loppers they have been up and down the World; for although it is known there be many scores of Thousands of them, dispersed and squandered here and there upon the surface of the Earth, yet these Stragglers could never since grow to such an Unity and Coalition as might form the Species of any settled Government; but they still shuffle and progue up and down, being no better than Slaves wherever they take footing. Moreover, it is observed, that they apply themselves to the most sordid and servile Conditions: For commonly they are either Lombardies and Brokers for the pettiest things, as far as a Blew Point; or they are Gabellers and Toll-men, having some inferior Places in the Custom-Houses, a Profession so undervalued and held infamous by their Ancestors: Or they serve for Spies and Panderers for Intelligence, so that there be few great Officers in Turkey, but have a few for that purpose, for they are known to be the subtilest, and the most subdolous Race of People upon Earth, as also the most fearful and pusillanimous; insomuch, that they are employed no where in the Wars, nor worth the making Slaves of.
The Epistle Dedicatory.

Now, the Reason why they are so far degenerated from their primitive Simplicity and Courage, is their frequent Captivities, their desperate Fortunes, the Necessities and Hatred they have been habituated unto, from time to time. For no Nation or Earth hath been so generally contemned, both by Christians and Pagans; witness our Heathen Poet, among divers others, in those Hexameters, wherein there is an accumulation of so many base Attributes cast upon them.

Tum Judææ cohors insida, molesta, rebellis, Perſida, dira, ferox, perjury, ingrata, superba.

Now the Moralift observes, that nothing depresses and depraves ingenious Spirits, nor corrupts clear Wits, more than Scorn and Necessity; nothing cow's them more than Want and Indigence:

—- Virtutibus obtat
Res angusta domi ——

Touching the Ten Tribes that were led Captives beyond Euphrates, the present Jews know not what's become of them, yet they believe they never became Apostates or Gentiles to this Day. Some there are, and these of least Rank of learned Men, who hold, that the Tartars of Scythia, who about the Year 1200, or a little before, became first known to the rest of the World by that Name, and hold at this day a great part of Asia in Subjection, are of the Israelites Progeny; namely, of those Ten Tribes which were carried Captive to Assyria by Salmanáffer, and some of his Predecessors.

The 1st Argument they produce, is, That the word Tartary, signifies in the Syriack, a Residue or Remainder, such as those Tartars are supposed to be of the Ten Tribes.

Secondly, they allege, That they have always embraced
The Epistle Dedicatory.

The Circumcision, the ancient Character of Judaism.

Thirdly, They urge sundry Texts in Esdras for probability hereof: But the Opinion hath found no great Entertainment with the best sort of Antiquaries.

The Jews of the Tribe of Benjamin (they say) are those in Italy, Poland, Germany, the Turks Dominions, and all the Levantine Part. The Tribe of Judah, they told to be settled in Portugal, where they will not stick to say, That some Thousand Families of their Race are, whom they dispense withal, to make a semblance of Christianity, as far as the taking of Investitures in Holy Orders.

From hence they say their Messiah is come; of whom one may hear them discourse with such a relish, such a self pleasing conceit and confidence, that it is wonderful. This may be the Reason why they instruct their Children and expound their Law in the Lusitanian Language in their Synagogues, where Women are not permitted to enter, for they hold them to be of an inferior Creation to Man, and made only for sensual Pleasure and Propagation. They much glory of their mysterious Cabal, wherein they make the reality of things to depend upon Letters and Words; but they hold, that the Hebrew hath the sole Privilege of this. This Cabal, or kind of Knowledge, which is nought else but Tradition transmitted from Father to Son, and so from one Generation to another, is, as they say, a Reparation in some measure for the loss of our knowledge in Adam; and, say they it was revealed Four times: First, to Adam, who being thrust out of Paradise, and sitting one Day very sad, and sorrowing for the Loss he had of that dependency the Creatures have upon the Creator, the Angel Raguel was sent to comfort him, as also to instruct him, and repair his lost knowledge. This they call their Cabal, which was left the second time by the Flood, and Babel. Then God discovered it to Moses in the Bush. The third time to Solomon in a Dream.
The Epistle Dedicatory.

Dream, whereby he came to know the Commencement, the Mediety, and Consummation of Times, whereof he composed many Volumes, which were lost in the Grand Captivity. The last time they held, that God restored the Cabala to Esdras (a Book they highly value) who, by God's Command, withdrew himself to the Wilderness 40 Days, attended by five Scribes, who in that space wrote 200 and 4 Books, whereof the first 134 were to be publickly read; but the other 70 were to pass privately among the Levites, and those they pretend to be Cabalistical, and not to be all lost.

Concerning the present Religion of the Jews, there are three Sects of them. The first, which is the greatest, are called the Talmudists, in regard that besides the Holy Scriptures, they hold the Talmud for Authentical, a Book composed by their Rabbins. The second Sect of the Jews receive the Scriptures. The third, which is called the Samaritan, and whereof there are but very few at this day, admit only of the Pentateuch, viz. The five Books of Moses, for Authentick Scripture.

As, according to my former Observation, this Nation is grown cowardly and cunning, even to a Proverb, which must be imputed to their various Thraildoms, Contemp and Poverty (which, tho' it use to dafterdize, and represent the Courage, yet it whets the Wit,) so besides Qualities they are commonly light, and giddy headed, much symbolizing in Humour, with some of the Apocalyptic Zealots of these Times, and bold Expounders of Daniel, with the other Prophets: Whereby they use to soothe, or rather fool themselves into some egregious fanatical Dotage, which nevertheless passeth among them for an Illumination.

The first Christian Prince that expelled the Jews out of his Territories, was that Heroick King our Edward the First, who was such a sore Scourge also to the Scots; and it is thought divers Families of those banished Jews fled the Scotland, where they have propagated since in great Numbers; witness the Aversion that Nation hath above others to Hog's-Flesh. Nor was this their Extermination for their Religion, but for their notorious Crimes; as poisoning of Wells, counterfeiting of Coins, falsifying of Seals, and crucifying of Christian Children, with other Villanies. This happened in the Year 1291. And sixteen years after, France followed our Example: It was near upon 200 Years after, that Ferdinand deterred them out of Spain, and five Years after him Emanuel of Portugal did the like. But the Countries whence they were last expelled, was Naples and Sicily, Anno 1359. In other Parts of Chriſtendom they reside yet in great numbers, as in Germany high and low, Bohemia, Lituania, Poland, and Russia, in Italy also they are found; but in no Country; which is subject to the K. of Spain: They live at Rome very quietly under the Pope's Nose; and St. Mark makes no scruple to entertain them at Venice. In sundry places of the Ottoman Empire they are found very numerous; so that it is thought, Constantiople and Thesalonica only, have near upon 20 thousand of them; Asia is full of them, as Aleppo, Tripoli, Damascus, Rhodes, and indeed all Places of Commerce and Traffick. There are Numbers of them found also in Persia, Arabia, and about Cranganor in India. And to come to Africk, they have their Synagogues and Lumbards in Alexandria, the Grand Cairo; as also in Fefe in Termiffen, and divers places in the Kingdom of Morocco. There are about one hundred Families left in Jerusalem. But that place where they are most unmingle is Tiberias, which the Turks gave to Mendez the Jew, for some signal Services: Thither they oftentimes bring or send the Bones of their dead Friends, who have left large Legacies, to be interred from other places.

Besides
The Epistle Dedicatory.

Dream, whereby he came to know the Commencement, the Mediety, and Consummation of Times, whereof he composed many Volumes, which were lost in the Grand Captivity. The last time they held, that God restored the Cabo to Esdras (a Book they highly value) who, by God's Command, withdrew himself to the Wilderness 40 Days, attended by five Scribes, who in that space wrote 200 and 4 Books whereof the first 134 were to be publickly read; but the other 70 were to pass privately among the Levites, and those they pretend to be Cabalistical, and not to be all lost.

Concerning the present Religion of the Jews, there be three Sects of them. The first, which is the greatest, are called the Talmudists, in regard that besides the Holy Scriptures, they hold the Talmud for Authentical Book composed by their Rabbins. The second Sect of the Jews receive the Scriptures. The third, which is called the Samaritan, and whereof there are but very few at this day, admit only of the Pentateuch, viz. The five Books of Moses, for Authentick Scripture.

As, according to my former Observation, this Nation grown cowardly and cunning, even to a Proverb, which must be imputed to their various Thralldoms, Contemp and Poverty (which, tho' it use to daisterdize, and reprefs the Courage, yet it whets the Wit,) so besides Qualities they are commonly light, and giddy headed, much symbolizing in Humour, with some of the Apocalyptical Zealots of these Times, and bold Expounders of Daniel, with the other Prophets: Whereby they use to sooth, or rather fool themselves into some egregious fanatical Dotage, which nevertheless passes among them for an Illumination.

The first Christian Prince that expelled the Jews out of his Territories, was that Heroick King our Edward the First, who was such a fore Scourge also to the Scots; and it is thought divers Families of those banished Jews fled ther.
Scotland, where they have propagated since in great Numbers; witness the Aversion that Nation hath above others to Hog's-Flesh. Nor was this their Extermination for their Religion, but for their notorious Crimes; as poisoning of Wells, counterfeiting of Coins, falsifying of Seals, and crucifying of Christian Children, with other Villanies. This happened in the Year 1291. And sixteen Years after, France followed our Example: It was near upon 200 Years after, that Ferdinand disferrred them out of Spain, and five Years after him Emanuel of Portugal did the like. But the Countries whence they were last expelled, was Naples and Sicily, Anno 1359. In other Parts of Christendom they reside yet in great numbers, as in Germany high and low, Bohemia, Lituania, Poland, and Russia, in Italy also they are found; but in no Country; which is subject to the K. of Spain: They live at Rome very quietly under the Pope's Nose; and St. Mark makes no scruple to entertain them at Venice. In sundry places of the Ottoman Empire they are found very numerous; so that it is thought, Constantinople and Thessalonica only, have near upon 20 thousand of them; Asia is full of them, as Aleppo, Tripoli, Damascus, Rhodes, and indeed all Places of Commerce and Traffick. There are Numbers of them found also in Persia, Arabia, and about Cranganor in India. And to come to Africk, they have their Synagogues and Lumbards in Alexandria, the Grand Cairo; as also in Fesse in Termiffin, and divers places in the Kingdom of Morocco. There are about one hundred Families left in Jerusalem. But that place where they are most unmingled is Tiberias, which the Turks gave to Mendez the Jew, for some signal Services: Thither they oftentimes bring or send the Bones of their dead Friends, who have left large Legacies, to be interred from other places.
Besides those various visible judgments, which have fallen upon the Nation of the Jews, as the full subversion of their Temple and City, with the slaughter of above eleven hundred thousand souls during Titus’s siege; besides the degeneration of their country, of that land which flowed with milk and honey, into such a barren condition: besides their disgracing confused course of life, with the general contempt and despicableness they fell into; beside the abjection of their spirits, and giddiness of their brains: I say, besides all these changes upon their minds it seems there is a kind of curse also fallen upon their bodies; witness those uncouth looks, and odd casts of eye, where by they are distinguished from other people. As likewise, the rankish kind of scent, no better indeed than a stink, which is observed to be inherent and inseparable from most of them, above all other nations. And I wish that England may not be troubled with that scent again.

The occasion of these sad calamities which fell down in such catastrophes upon the Jews, the discerning reader shall discover in this ensuing story; therefore very worth of his perusal, in regard they may serve for cautions to a people not to provoke the high majesty of heaven by such kind of sedition and prophaneness; they may serve as so many buoys to preserve them from sinking into such gulfs of misery: for if the natural branches were not spared, how can the wild-olive think to escape th fire of his displeasure.

So with my hearty prayers to heaven for the prosperity and welfare of this glorious city, and that she may take fair warning by these judgments, I rest

From the prison of the fleet, Feb. 5, 1650.

Your humble and ready servant,

James Howel
A Brief Description of ASIA, and the HOLY LAND.

Asia is two-fold, the Greater and the Less; the Less is a part of the Greater, and is at this day called Anatolia, in respect of the Eastern situation thereof from Byzantium; the Greater is now one of the Four Parts of the Earth, by reason of the accession of America unto the former three; before a third Part, and by the account of some (according as Varro tells) one of the two Parts of the same. For whereas they of late accounted Europe, Asia, and Africa, until America or the New World was found out, others made Africa a part of Europe; so the Parts of the Earth were Europe one, and Asia the other, and no more. By neither of these two Accounts doth Asia get or lose any thing from the vulgar Division, only when the Division is made into Parts, Europe is a gainer. Those which write of the Name and Etymology of Asia, derive the word from Asia, a Woman, a Daughter to Oceanus and Thesius, Wife to Iapetus, and Mother to Prometheus. This Genealogy, if it be taken according to the Letter, there is no reason to suspect it fabulous, why any Man of Understanding should doubt it; and yet if the meaning of the Fable be searched into, it seems to carry in it this appearance of Truth; That Asia was named from Oceanus the Sea, and Thesius the Water, or Wife of the Sea; that in this part only of the World which before the Deluge was peopled, came the Flood and destroyed Mankind by Water, the reason of the Etymology lying hid in the name does, which signifies Moisture. The bounds of this part of the Earth
A Description of Asia:

are the Ægean Sea, the Propontis and Black-Sea, Palus Maoris, Tanais, Duina, which separate it from Europe, but it is parted from Africa by the Red-Sea, and Ἰσπήμος of Egypt. In the first Age of the World, this part of the Earth was more renowned than Europe, or any part thereof. The Affairs of Europe were very mean, or at least in great obscurity, before Xerxes's Expedition against Greece, which was after the Babylonian Captivity of the Jews. But in Asia was the wonderful Work of our Creation, and of all other Creatures wrought: In this part, our Saviour wrought our Redemption, and shewed his Miracles: Here was the glorious and mighty Empire of the Chaldeans, signified by the Image with the Golden Head in Daniel, and that Monarchy of the Persians signified by the Arms and Beasts of Silver, unto which too the Macedonian Kingdom of Brass was inferior. In the Greater Asia, is situated the Land of Canaan, called so from Canaan the Son of Ham, the Son of Noah, whose Posterity dwelt there; also Palæstina from the Philistines that peopled part of it: But it was named the Land of Promise, because God promised that Land unto Abrahams's Posterity; and the Holy Land as the Country in which the Holy People dwelt, which had the Law, the Promises, and Priesthood. This Country lies in 32 Degrees Northward from the Equinoctial, it is not full 200 Miles long, nor doth the breadth exceed 50, accounting 100 Paces to a Mile. A Country so fruitful, that the Scripture, from the Mouth of God, tells us, that it was a Land which flowed with Milk and Honey, and that this was the glory of all Lands. Before the Children of Israel drove out the Inhabitants, it was governed by 30 Kings: And afterward it was divided into two Kingdoms.
A Description of Asia.

Dom in the Days of Rehoboam, the Son of Soloman. David numbring the People of the Land, found the Account to be Thirteen hundred thousand Men of War, excluding the Benjamites, and the Tribe of Levi. The Fruits of this Land were these in special, Balm, Honey, Spices, Myrrh, Nuts and Almonds: Nor is their Wheat to be forgotten, nor their Oyl, with which they traded in the Market of Tyrus, besides the forenamed Commodities, Ezek. 27. 17. That it did excel in Palm-trees, Strabo tell us, and the Roman Coins, which in their Reverse represent a Woman sitting in the Gesture of a Mourner under a Palm-tree, signifying Judea captivated. But the Almighty, as he drove out and destroyed the Nations which dwelt in this Land before, so did he afterwards his own People, because of the Greatness of their Sins, so that the Land (as he tells us by his Prophet) spewed them out, turned part of this Country whereabout Sodom and Gomorrah stood, into Slime-pits, or the Dead or Salt-sea, when as before it was for Pleasantness like to the Garden of God; even so did God deal with his own unthankful and Rebellious People. First he carried the Ten Tribes into Bondage by Salmanasser, who at this day are not to be found; the other two Tribes were carried away into Babylon, where they endured 70 Years Captivity. And last of all, for rejecting and crucifying his own Son the Lord of Glory, they have been destroyed, driven out of their own Country, and continue as Vagabonds thorough the whole World: And the Fruitfulness of this goodly Country doth scarce appear at this day, according to that of the Psalmist, Psal. 107. 33, 34. He turneth Rivers into a Wilderness, and the Water-springs into dry
A Description of Asia.

dry Ground: A fruitful Land into Barrenness, for the Wickedness of them that dwell therein.

No Man hath observed the great Increase of their Seed, which Isaac found (who sowed in that Land, and reaped an hundred fold) at this day; the Balm, which Justin the Historian writes of, brought in their Treasure, was a plant, not as some have thought, proper or common to Arabia, but as Pliny notes, peculiar to the Land of Judaea or Syria, as others call it; and of that high price, that it was valued at an equal Rate, and sometimes double to Silver, is now no where to be found: Nevertheless, lest Men should think in their foolish Imaginations, that this Land had never been such, as it is by the word of God himself commended to be, in some Places there are certain marks and signs, of the ancient Fertility thereof; for in a certain Plain divers Miles long and broad, there is found such fruitful Pastures, that in so hot a Country the Grass is seen to grow in some places as high as a Man's Middle, in other places as high as to the Breast. But though the Lord for a time hath cut off this his People, and turned their fruitful Land into Barrenness; yet he hath abundantly shewed us in his Word, that the fullness of the Gentiles being come in, God will have Mercy upon, and take into his Favour this his ancient People, re-establish them in their own Land in security, and without all doubt, restore the Land to its former fruitfulness. All which let us humbly pray to God the Father, that for his infinite Mercies in Jesus Christ, he will speedily accomplish and turn the Wilderness into a standing Water, and dry Ground into Water-springs. Amen.
The First Book of the Wars of the Jews.

The Proem.

In the great Volume of Josephus there were Historical Narrations made of things, as they had reference in chief to the Romans and other Nations: This lesser piece or Epitome, rather declares Matters as they relate principally to the Jews themselves, and the State of their Commonwealth, from the Maccabees unto their final Subversion and Ruine of the second House. Therefore according unto those things that we have found in the Book of Joseph the Priest, Son of Gorion, and in other Books written according to the most certain truth, we will draw forth and rehearse some things for the Comfort that may thence arise; especially seeing all the Prophets have bent and directed their Prophecies and Predictions to this point, that the Kingdom of the House of David should be restored, and flourish in time to come. Therefore if there had been any Kings of the House of David during during the time of the second Temple, then should we have been in suspense, yea, even now already our hope had been dash'd: But there was no Kingdom of the House of David in that Age, have only a certain Dominion that Zerubbabel and Nehemiah had. Yea, rather the Kingdom remained at that time in the House of the Maccabees, and in such that were toward Them, and their Servants. But now to the purpose.

C H A P. I.

When Alexander, the first King of the Greeks, had established his Kingdom, he died, being yet but a young Man, and his Kingdom was divided among four of his Captains, as it is written, While he is yet alive, His Kingdom shall be broken and delivered into four Coasts of the Heavens, Dan. 8. He left behind him a Son of tender Years, called Archelaus, whose Tutor or Governour perceiving him to be toward, gave him impoisoned drink, and made him away. These Captains made War one upon another, of whom one that was named Ptolemy, procured Moses's Law to be Translated into Greek, to the intent he might find some occasion to pick a Quarrel against Israel. For by their Law he sought Means to withdraw them from their Religion, according to Psal. 129. Many a time have they afflicted me from my Youth up, may Israel now say. There were Seventy ancient Men that Translated the Law, whom Ptolemy the King separated one from another, putting every Man apart in a House by himself. But they all agreed in one sense, albeit they changed thirteen places, which was not done without Miracle, that all agreed together in the Meaning and Writing, as though one alone had written. These thirteen places be these.

First, God created in the beginning. Here no word or thing is put before the Name of God, and also for that in the Greek Tongue, the Thing that doth is put before, and that this is made, is placed after, left this word Berisbeth should be taken for a Creator, and Elohim for a Creature.

The second, I will make Man according to the Image and Likeness, Gen. 1. I, for we, that it should not be thought, as though he were one that consulted with others therein.

The third, And God finished the sixth day, and rested the seventh, Gen. 2. Sixth for Seventh, left it should seem as though He had made any thing in the seventh day, and in it ended his working.

The fourth, Go to, I will go down, and there will confound their Language, Gen. 2. I, for we, left by speaking in the Plural Number, He should have been thought to be many.

The fifth, And Sarah laughed, speaking to them that stood by her, Gen. 18. With them that stood by her, for, to her self, because Ptolemy the King should not mock them, and say, who shewed you what she said to her self.

The sixth, Because in their Fury they killed an Ox, and in their Will they brake the Crib, Gen. 29. Crib for an Ox. Left the King should deride them, and ask, what hath a Man to do with an Ox?

The seventh, And Moses took his Wife and his Sons, and set them upon that that could bear a Man, Exod. 4. That that could bear a Man for an Ass, left the
The War of the Jews.

The King should deride our Master Moses, because he rode on an Ass: And that he should not say, how should an Ass bear a Woman and two Children? He would never have done it, if he had not been a Beggar.

The eighth, And the dwelling of the Children of Israel, in Egypt, and other Lands, was 430 Years, Exod. 12. Notwithstanding, they abode not in Egypt but 210 Years, and that is that their Father Jacob told them: Descend ye (the Letters of the which word in Hebrew signifies 210) thither. Furthermore, the computation of 430 Years, is from the Year that Isaac was born, which was the holy Seed unto Abraham.

The ninth, And unto the little ones of the Children of Israel, stretched he not his hand, Exod. 4. Little ones for Princes. As who would say, yea also unto their little Ones he stretched not his Hand. Because he should not say, the great Men escaped, but the Children of the Sons of Israel escaped not.

The tenth, I took of them nothing of value, Num. 16. Of value for an Ass. Left he should say he took not an Ass, but he took one Reward.

The eleventh, Which things thy Lord God hath divided, that they may shine on all People, Deut. 4. That they may shine is added, left he should take an Argument thereof, and say, Lo the holy and blessed Lord hath divided them to all People, and hath given them licence to worship them.

The Twelfth, He went and worshipped strange Gods, which I commanded not to worship, Deut. 17. To worship is added, left he should say, now hast thou called them to strange worshipping of Gods.
The Wars of the Jews.

The thirteenth, They translated an Hare Little feet, because the King's Wife was called Hare, lest he should say the Jews mock me.

When these Seventy Elders had translated the Law into the Greek Tongue, Ptolemy rejoicing much in their Wisdom, honoured them with Prince-y Apparel and great Rewards, brought them home again, merry and glad. Moreover he sent by them Oblations to our God. At that time there were many that condescended to follow the Laws of the Gracians, but these Seventy refused. Nor long after Captain Seleucus, Ptolemy's Companion in Office, died, in whose stead Antiochus reigned in Macedonias. This Antiochus making War upon Ptolemy, bereft him of all his Dominions, and slew him. After that he subdued the Land of Israel, then under the Regiment of Ptolemy, and waxed very proud: He hated Israel also, because they loved Ptolemy, and aided him in the Wars against him.

This is that Antiochus that builded a great City upon the Sea Coast, and called it Antiochia, wherein he made a Golden Idol, commanding that the Children of Israel should be brought unto it, and worship it. But some of them chose rather to suffer death for the Religion of their God, and some other fell from the Synagogue, their Mother Church. Before this he took away also their Sabbath, their New Moon, and League of Circumcision: forbidding that in any wife they should observe these Commandments in any place throughout all his Dominions. For the which he put many of the Israelites to death, and oppressed them more than did ever any of their Enemies or Adversaries. The second Man in Honour next himself in Jerusalem, was one Polipus, he erected an Image in the Temple, commanding the People of Israel to worship it; and whosoever was disobedient, to be slain. Therefore he put to Death Hannah and her seven Children, as it is mentioned in other places. When Antiochus perceived this, it increased his Hatred towards Israel, in so much that he did his endeavour that none of them should escape or be left alive, except such as would worship the Image. Then fled many of the Israelites to the Mount Modiit, and to Jericho, because of the Law of Polipus and Antiochus his Lord, having to their Governor the High-Priest Mattathias Son of John, otherwise called Chasminame. The Priest enjoined them to fast and punish themselves before the Lord with Weeping, Sackcloth and Ashes. And after this he faith unto them, if ye will jeopard your Lives for the Holy Lord, why die we like Women? Let us go and fight with Polipus, and if we die we shall die with Honour: Peradventure the Holy and Blessed God will help us, and will not root out the Remnant of Israel. To this Council every Man assembled, and made a Covenant with him upon this thing. Polipus hearing this, gathered his Forces together, and made towards them to destroy them, and what Israelite forever he found in his way he flew him. Mattathias the Priest, and all the Remnant of Israel, understanding that Polipus came against them, they went up the Mount Modiit with their Wives and Children. Then put he himself and his Sons in Armour. He had five Sons, Judas the eldest, the next Jonathan, the third Joacan, the fourth Schimeon, the fifth Eleazer. All these were valiant Men of War. When Polipus came to them, he craftily spake to Mattathias, Mattathias, saying: Thou art one of the chief Men in Israel, and a Man of Honour and Estimation: Come down therefore, and all that be with thee, worship the Image, and strive not against the King, that ye may live and not be destroyed. Thou shalt be their Prince also, if thou shalt be conformable. But the Priest in no wise would be seduced by him, but rather cursed and reviled him. Mattathias had an Altar at the Foot of the Hill, whereupon when he had offered Sacrifice to the most Blessed God, there came one of the wicked Israelites out of Polipus's Camp, and killed upon it a Swine. This Villain was young and lusty, but the Priest was old: Yet when he saw what this lewd Fellow had done, crying to his God to strengthen him, he challenged a Combat between himself and the Fellow. Which thing being liked both of the Fellow and of Polipus with his whole Army, Mattathias came down with his drawn Sword in his Hand, and the Fellow stood against him ready to receive him. But the Priest rushing upon him by the assistance of his God, overcame him, cut off his Head, and cast his Carcass upon the Altar, whereat Polipus and his whole Host were much astonied, beholding one another. The Priest stood still by the Altar, crying. Which of you will come to me Man for Man? Then Polipus picked out a strong Champion, the best of all his Army, and brought him out of the Arraies of the Host to teach him his Leccion, how he should behave himself with the Priest. The Priest therefore drew toward the Camp, with his naked Sword in his Hand, as though he came to join with their Champion: But leaving him, he turned his Sword upon Polipus, struck off his Head, and fled to the Hill.
Then blowing their Horns and making a shout together, they rushed down upon the Grecian Camp. But when the Grecians saw that their grand Captain was slain, they fled; Chasmoname and his Sons, with all Israel, followed the Chace; overthrew them, and made great slaughter.

This done, Mattathias the Priest went to Jerusalem, purified the Temple, restored the Worshipping of God, and commanded all that were born during the time of Polipus, to be circumcised, for by the means of his Inhibition they were uncircumcised. Thus being established, he sat upon the Throne of the Kingdom, and drove the Greeks out of the Land of Israel. His Kingdom endured one Year, which was the 212 Year from the building of the second House. After this he fell sick and like to die, charged his Sons to keep the Observations of the Lord, and to walk in his Ways: Also to play the Men against the Grecians, for the Religion of the Lord. Then brought he forth Judas a tall Man and a hardy, and placing him in the Sanctuary, took a Horn of Oyl, and poured it upon his Head, whereat the Iraelites clapped their Hands, and gave a great shout, saying, God save the King, God save the King.

Soon after Judas gathered an Army of Israel, and made an Expedition against the Remnant of the Greeks that were left in the Holds of Israel, and whatsoever he took in hand, God gave it good success. Notwithstanding Antiochus sent against him a Puissant Army, under the leading of one Captain Pelonius, against whom Judas so Warred, that the Grecians went to wrack, for he espied his time when they were destitute of Victuals, and speedily fet upon them, beat them down handsmooth, and approached to Captain Pelonius; flew the Valiantest about him, yea and him also. When Antiochus heard this, he was in a great Rage; wherefore he chose out a most Valiant Captain, called Lysias, and sent him against Jerusalem with 1000 Horsemen, and Foot-men without number. Judas having knowledge thereof, commanded a Fast throughout all Israel for three days; and afterwards took Muster of all his Army, and made over them Captains of thousands, hundreds, fifties, and tens. These said to their Soldiers, Whosoever is afraid, &c. Whereupon many of the People returned home, yet there remained 7500, of such Courage all, that one would not have run away for a hundred. Lysias divided his Host into three parts, committing them unto three Captains, Nicanor, Bagrii and Ptolemy: But after the Israelites had once given a great Shout, the Lord beat down the Greeks, so that the Israelites destroy'd nine thousand of their Enemies, and spoil'd the whole Host, and they that remained alive took themselves to Flight. The next day King Judas kept his Sabbath, together with all Israel, in the Temple, for the Battle was upon the sixth day. The morrow after the Israelites returned to the spoil of those that were killed, and after to pursu'e others that were not able to resist, but they found none, for they fled into Astaroth Karnaum.

During the time of these Wars, Antiochus invaded the Land of Persia, for they had moved War against him, and done Injury, wherefore he fought against them: But having the overthrow at their hands he returned to Antiochia with great Shame, where also he found his Armies with another dishonour honour and Foil: Wherewith he was in such Rage, that he gathered together all the Valiantest and best Warriors in all Gracia, yea all that were able to bear Weapons, swearing he would bring with him such an Army, that all the Ground about Jerusalem should not suffice them to stand upon, whom he would have with him, even for his Foot men only: And he set forward his Horse-men, with Horses and Wagons laden with all manner of Munition for the Wars, as Bows, Shields, Targets, Swords, and Spears, Breast-plates, and Morions, besides a great number of Elephants, and such, that twelve Valiant Men might fight upon one Elephant, the Elephants being to them as a Fortress. But King Judas taking Heart to him, put his Trust in his God, and joined Battle with him. At length, when he with the Power of Israel approached to the Elephants, they flew them down-right, so that the Elephants roared, the Horses, and all the Beasts that drew the Baggage and Furniture, were very sore afraid. King Antiochus also being mounted upon his Mare, and not able to sit her, in her flight was thrown down: His Servants therefore finding him, took him up, and bare him awhile on their Soldiers, and (being a corpulent and gross Man) they were not able to carry him farther, but cast him down in the way. The Lord had plagued him also and his whole Hoast with a dry Scab, or rotten Matter, and with other most horrible Diseases: Therefore as he saw all these things, he confessed it to be the Hand of God. Whereupon he made a Vow, that if he escap’d, he would circumcise himself, with all his Soldiers, and would convert them to the worshipping of the God of Israel: But God heard him him not. He fled therefore on Foot as well as he might, and died by the way, through his grievous and sore Diseases, and Opiter his Son Reigned in his stead. King Judas, with all Israel, returned with great joy to the House of the Lord, offered Sacrifice: And as they had laid Wood upon the Altar, and the Sacrifice upon that, they called unto the Lord, lovingly to accept their Sacrifice, and in the mean space, Fire came forth of the Altar by its own accord, consuming the Sacrifice and the Wood, the like never chanced to them unto this day. This Miracle was wrought the 25th day of the Month Elul, or August.

The King made an Expedition also into Arabia, to War upon the People thereof, and made of them a great Slaughter, and brought them into Subjection, and made them Tributaries. In his return he set upon a great City of the Greeks, won it, and razed it. After that, he made a Road into Greece ten days Journey: Where came against him, with a mighty Army, the chief Men in King Opiter's Realm, next his Person: But Judas discomfited him and all his People. From whence he went to the City Sypolis, that was under the Romans, where came forth to meet him Godolias, with a Royal Present, informing him that they had ever born the Israelites good Will, were their Neighbours, and shewed them Pleasures. The King examined the Matter, and found their words true: So receiving their Presents, departed thence.

After this Gorgorius, a Captain of the Romans, moved War with Judas, but Judas struck a Battle with him, and destroyed his whole Army, so that none escaped.

Opiter
Opiter, Son of Antiochus, hearing what Acts Judas did in all Countries round about: He mustered all his People, levied a Puissant Army, wherewith he came and besieg'd Bethar. Then cryed Judas and all Israel to their God, with Fasting and Sacrifices. The Night after, Judas divided his Men into certain Bands, commanding them to give the Græcians a Camisado, and to enter their Camp whilst it was dark; Which they did, and slew very many of the best of the Græcians; about Four thousand preparing nevertheless for the Field against the Morrow, where also the Israelites did bear down many of the Greeks. In that Battle was slain Eleazer Son of Mattathias the King's Brother. For when he espied one with a golden Sword upon the Elephant, he thought it to be King Opiter, who had 20 Elephants in his Army; therefore he took heart to him, and beat down the Soldiers of the Greeks on both sides, were they never so strong, till he came to the Elephant. And because the Elephant was so high that he could not reach them that sat upon him, he thrust his Sword into the Belly of the Beast, to overthrow the King, whereat the Elephant shrunk together, and fell upon Eleazer, that he died there; for whose sake all Israel mourned, and made great lamentation.

But Opiter hearing this, straightway made suit to King Judas for Peace, and a League to be made between them; which after Judas had consented unto, he returned home into Greece again, and by the way fell into the hands of his Enemies that slew him.

After him succeeded Demetrius his Enemy, who was the cause of his Death. There were at that time, certain evil disposed Persons of the Jews, that that served the King of the Gracians in his Wars; namely, one Alkimus, who went to the King of the Greeks, at that time lying at Antiochbia, and stirred him to move War upon Israel and King Judas. By whose suggestion, Demetrius sent against Judas a Captain called Nicanor, with a strong Army. He now coming to Jerusalem, let Judas understand, That he bare him good Will, and was desirous to make Peace, and to enter into a League with him. Therefore as Judas came forth accompanied with his Brethren the Sons of Chasmoname, Nicanor met him in the way, embraced him and kissed him: After that, lead him to his Pavilion, and set him upon his Seat of Honour. King Judas also, after he returned from the Camp, made unto Nicanor a great Feast, calling him and his Noblemen with him into Jerusalem, where they eat and drank at the King's Table. King Judas was yet unmarried, wherefore Nicanor moved him to a Wife, that he might have Issue, and not lose his Succession, whose Counsel Judas allowed.

This done, the lewd pick-thank Alkimus declared to King Demetrius, the League that Nicanor had made with King Judas; whereat Demetrius being wroth, writ to Nicanor, That he had Intelligence of his traiterous Practices; Nicanor was in Jerusalem when this Letter was delivered him: When Judas heard of the Contents of the Letter, he fled out of Jerusalem into Samaria, where he founded a Trumpet, and gathered Israel together.

Nicanor upon these Letters entred the House of the Lord to seek Judas, but he found him not. Then he examined the Priests, who sware they knew not what was become of him.
After he had now fought him in every Corner throughout Jerusalem, and could not find him; in a fume he sware he would beat down the Temple: And gathering together all his Hoast, he made speed against Judas.

When he heard of Nicanor's coming, he issued out of Samaria to meet him, and after they had joined Battle, Judas flew of the Greeks to the number of eighteen thousand Horse-men, took Nicanor alive, and did intend to kill him. But Nicanor besought Pardon of him, alledging that the King knew well enough, that he began not this Battel with his Will, but lest he should transgress the Commandment of the King his Master. Wherefore, (faith he) I humbly beseech your Majesty not to kill me, and I will swear unto you that I will never bear Arms against you, nor annoy you any more.

Upon this, the King made a League with him, and dismissed him. So he returned to the King his Master with shame enough. After this, Demetrius died, and Lysia Reigned in his stead; yet the wicked Men ceased not, but moved again King Lysia to make a Voyage in his own Person, with a puissant Army against Judas: But having the overthrow of King Judas, he fled unto Asdotum, till he had strongly repaired again his Army. Then came he the second time upon Judas, in which Conflict the Israelites were put to flight. King Judas notwithstanding, fled neither one way nor other, but called to his Men, and exhorted them to return and stick to him, yet they would not obey him.

So he abode alone with his drawn Sword in his Hand, unto whom none of his Enemies durst approach nigh, but with Chariots and Horse-men they environed environed him, and Archers shot him, wounding him sore, till he fell down dead to the Ground, and they that were about him were taken alive. The time that he reigned over Israel was six Years. Many of the Greek Captains were slain also in that Battle, and the King himself so wounded, that he was fain to get him into his Country to be cured of his Wounds. After he had recovered his Health he returned again, came to Jerusalem, and to all the Cities of Israel, with the Power of the Greeks, wherewith he so afflicted them at that time, for the space of four Months after the death of Judas, that the like Tribulation was never in Israel. In the mean season, the Israelites resorted to Jonathas the Son of Mattathias, and made him King in Judea's stead, and were sworn unto him. This Jonathas fought divers great Battles against the Greeks, having the Aid of one Samnius of the Kindred of Alexander the First, who had made a League with Jonathas, and took his part against Greece, wasted and spoiled it sore, till at length the King of the Greeks slew Jonathas by a Train. His Reign over Israel was six Years.

Then was Simeon his Brother King in his stead, against him Antiochus the Second, King of the Grecians, came to War; but Simeon met him, and laid first an Ambush to entrap the Greeks, and then ordered his Battle in Array against Antiochus. After that, he with his whole Host, made a Face, feigning as if they fled, and retired; till they perceived Antiochus, who pursuèd them, to be within their danger, then the Ambush brake forth upon the Greeks, made a very great slaughter. After this Simeon returned to Jerusalem with great Joy.

Then
Then sent Ptolemy King of Egypt, an Embassage to Simeon King of Israel, offering him his Daughter in Marriage. To this Request, when King Simeon had consented, Ptolemy came to Jerusalem, where was made him a great Feast, and they were allied together. Whereupon Antiochus, King of the Graecians, writ to Ptolemy King of Egypt, privily to murther Simeon King of Israel, whom Ptolemy durst not but obey, for at that time the King of Egypt was in subjection to the Greeks. Therefore, when Simeon came into Egypt to see his Father-in-Law Ptolemy, he was received with great Feasting; but at the same time he had Poyson given, that he died thereof. Besides this, also his Son which came with him, Ptolemy cast into Prison. These things justly chanced unto Simeon, for that he had transgressed the Word of the Lord, that forbade all Alliance with the Gentiles. The time that he reigned over Israel was Eighteen Years.

Then John his Son reigned in his stead, who was called Hircanus in the Greek Tongue. The same Ptolemy King of Egypt, invaded Israel with all the Power that he could make. But John the Son of Simeon met him, and the Lord overthrew Ptolemy with his whole Host, that they were slain of the Israelites, and pursued to the City of Dagon, about which the Israelites made Trenches, and Besieged it. Now within the Town they had the Mother of King Hircanus, whom Ptolemy caused to be set upon the Walls, and to be scourged with Whips in the sight of her Son. When Hircanus saw the great Affection of his Mother, he would have raised his Siege, and departed from Ptolemy: But his Mother called unto him, and said, My dear Son John, regard regard not my Trouble, for all Chastnings come from God. Proceed manfully with thy Siege against this City for it is in a great Distress, and revenge Me, thy Father and Brother, murdered by Ptolemy. The King followed her Advice, and manfully raised a Mount, from which he battered the Walls with Engines of Iron, like Chariots, till they began to shake. Wherefore many of the Soldiers of the Town fled, and their Companies began to shatter. Ptolemy seeing this, commanded to afflict his Mother yet more, and to encrease her Scourgings, until the Intrails of Hircanus were moved, that he could not abide longer to see his Mother so cruelly handled, but leave the Siege, and let Ptolemy escape: Who nevertheless killed his Mother, and fled into Egypt.
The Wars of the Jews.

In the Fourth Year of King Hircanus's Reign, Pius, King of Greece, came and besieged Jerusalem with a great power and strength, whom Hircanus was not able to meet, and encounter withal in the Field, but suffered himself to be closed up in the City. The King of the Grecians therefore, raised great Towers against the City, apart from the Wall, digged a Trench, and cast up a Mount. Then planted they their Engines, named Rams, against the Gates, so the City was hard Besieged: For they beat down one of the Turrets that stood upon the Wall, whereat all Israel was afraid, and agreed together to issue out and skirmish with them, whatsoever should come thereon, Life or Death: Which, although Hircanus liked not, yet did they so, and slew many of their enemies, and put them also to flight, that they were constrained to encamp themselves further off from Jerusalem. Then the Israelites came to the Towers that the Greeks had builded, and razed them to the ground.
Thus they issued out daily, skirmishing with Pius until the Feast of the Tabernacles. Then sent Hir- canus to Pius, desiring him, that he would grant them Truce, and let them be at Peace while the Feast lasted: His Request Pius granted, and sent a fat Ox to be offered to the God of Israel, covering his Horns with beaten Gold, and dressing him with fillets of Crystal and other precious Stones, clad also in a Garment of Purple, and divers other precious Cloaths: He sent moreover a Plate both of Silver and Gold, full of divers kind of Spices, all to be offered unto the Lord. When Hirkanus saw this, he went out unto Pius, and after he had made Peace with him, he made him, and his chief Men of War a great Feast, and gave him a Present of CCC. pound weight of Gold: He went also with Pius to Aid him against the King of Persia, that at that time rebelled against him. But he tarried there not long, because the time of Pentecost was at hand. Wherefore Hirkanus, and the Hoaft of Israel returned; but Pius and his Army of the Grecians proceeded: whom the King of the Persians met in the Field, slew Pius himself, and vanquished the residue, that almost none remained: Where- of when Tidings came to Hirkanus, he was very glad, and returned to Jerusalem with Peace and Joy.

After this, Hirkanus made many great Battles with the Nations about him, and had ever Victory.

He also came to the Mount of Corizim, where he won a Fort of the Seflaries and Samaritans, and razed the Temple that the Seflaries had there as their House of Sanctuary, which they built by the Licence of Alexander the first King of the Greeks: He that built it was Manasse the Priest, Brother to Sime-on the Just. But Hircanus, the High-Priest, pulled it down Two hundred Years after that it was builded. From thence he went to the City of Samaria, and Besieged it. This was the Mother City of the Samaritans and Sectaries, which was brought to such Distress, by the long Siege of Hircanus, that they within were fain to eat the Carcasses of Dogs.

The Feast of Propitiation then at hand, Hircanus made speed to Jerusalem, to execute his Office at that Feast, (for he was High-Priest) appointing for Generals of his Army Aristobulus his eldest Son, and his second Son Antigonus.

In the mean season, they within the Town writ to the King of Greece, to come and succour them; which he did with a great power. But these Two young men, the King's Sons, went to meet them, with the strength of the Israelites, and gave them the overthrow, killing them up almost every one, to the number of Twenty one thousand fighting men, and the rest fled.

That done, the young Men returned to the Siege of Samaria. King Hircanus their Father liad Tidings of the coming of the Grecians against his Sons, so that he perceived they should have the Grecians of the one side of them, and the Samaritans and Sectaries on the other: But he knew nothing what was happened, for that Victory chanced the Ninth day of Tisre, or September. His heart therefore was careful for his Sons, and for Israel; notwithstanding he proceeded in his Office according as the Feast required: As he entered into the House of Sanctum Sanctorum, or the most Holy, to offer Incense, and to call for Mercy for his Children, and for his Army, he heard a Voice speaking unto unto him. Never trouble thy mind with thy Children and with the Host of Israel, for yesterday the Lord of Mercy heard them, and according to the greatness of his Goodness, for thy Fathers sake: Let thy heart therefore be right, and thy hands pure. So the King going out of the Sanctuary, declared it to the People. Whereupon the next day he sent Post to Samaria, and was assiduously certified again, that this was true. Wherefore King Hircanus was magnified greatly of all Israel, for they knew that the blessed Lord accepted his Doings, inspiring him with the Holy Ghost, and increasing his Kingdom and Priest-hood. After this, he took a Journey to Samaria, besieged it a whole Year, and at length won it, flew all also that bore life within. He razed the Walls, the Palace, and burnt up the City. He had Wars also with the Romans, and the Arabsians; and God prospered all that ever he took in hand. Shortly after, God gave him rest and quietness from all that dwelt about him, and from all his Enemies, so that Israel rested boldly in peace and tranquility all his time.

On a time, the King made a Feast to all the Sages of Israel, that they might make cheer with him. And being pleasantly disposed, he said, I am your Scholar, and whatsoever I do, that do I by your Authority. Wherefore I pray you, if you see any fault in me, or if I do not as becometh me, tell me of it, that I may reform my evil Way. Then every Man greatly extolled and commended him, saying, Who is like unto thee, our Lord the King, so worthy of the Kingdom and Priest-hood, so notable in good Works, whose Works be done for the God of Heaven, which hast also done us so much good in Israel? The King was well pleased with with their Answer, and rejoiced greatly. Yet was there one among them, an undiscreeet Man, called Eleazer, who spake unadvisedly to the King. And it please your Majesty, it were sufficient for you to have the Crown of the Kingdom, ye might leave the Crown of the Priest-hood to the Seed of Aaron, for as much as your Mother was Captain in Mount Modit. Incontinent the King was moved, and sore displeased against the Sages: Which certain of his Servants that hated the Sages, and smelled somewhat of Sects, perceiving, one of them informed the King, that whatsoever that undiscreet Person had spoken, it was not without advice of the Sages.

Whereupon the King demand of the Sages, What Law shall that Man have, that in despiught of the King spake things to his Reproach? They made Answer, He is worthy to be whipt. Then said one of the Sadducees, The matter is plain, that according to the Minds of the Sages, and at their bidding, he upbraided thee, and therefore they would not award him to die. Whereat the King held his peace, and gave never a word of answer: so all the joy was turned into sadness. The next day at the commandment of the King, Proclamation went to all the Cities of the King's Dominions; That they should stand to the Ordinance of Saboch and Bisbus: And whosoever shall refuse to follow their Decrees, or would observe the Traditions of the Sages, and obey their Will, should suffer death. This was John the High Priest, which had the Priest-hood Forty years, and in the end became a Sadducee. Notwithstanding, the Israelites obeyed not the King's Commandment, but rather privily followed the Ordinances of the Sages. The King himself and all his Servants followed the Traditions of the Sadducess, making inquisition for them that stuck to the Constitutions of the Sages, and putting to death as many as he could get knowledge of. By this means he drew much people of Israel into this Opinion. The time that Hircanus ruled over Israel was 31 Years, and then he died.

After him Reigned his Son Aristobulus, for he had three Sons, Aristobulus, Antigonus and Alexander: This Alexander was hated of his Father, and banished out of his presence. He went therefore and made War upon Tyre and Sidon, subdued them, and compelled them to be Circumcised.

Aristobulus regarded not the High Priest-hood, but set light by it; wherefore he would not execute the Office thereof, but took the Kingdom upon him, and set the Crown upon his Head, and was called the Great King. Besides this, he banished his Mother, and Alexander her Son, his younger Brother, and would not suffer them to dwell in Jerusalem: But he loved his Brother Antigonus, and made him Lieutenant-General of all his Wars, setting him forward into the Wars against his Enemies, wherein the young Man Antigonus had good Fortune, and prospered in all things that he took in hand, and returned safe to Jerusalem, where he entered into the House of the Sanctuary to pray for his Brother the King, which at that time was grievously Sick; and also, to acknowledge before the Lord God his Goodness and Mercy towards him, in that he had aided him against his Enemies. Then came a certain wicked Person unto the King, and informed him with this Tale: Thy Brother (faith he) returning from the Wars, inquired of thy health, and when it was told him thou wast sick, he said, I will go to him to day and rid him out of the World. When the King heard this, he was wroth toward the Sages, and commanded his Brother to be apprehended, and carried to the Place of Starton, there to be kept in Prison, till he had made further Inquisition of this matter. In the mean space, the Queen the King's Wife, commanded him to be put to death there, without knowledge of the King's mind; but when the King heard that his Brother was killed, he cried out, and wept bitterly, smiting his Breast in such sort with his hand, that he swounded, and much blood issued out of his mouth. He Reigned over Israel Two Years.

After him his Brother Alexander Reigned, who was also called King Jania, being brought out of Prison, where his Brother had put him, and made King of Israel. He was a mighty Man, and valiant in all his Wars against his Enemies, prevailing against them. He had Wars against the Philistines, namely Asam, and Ascalon, whom he put to the worst, and overcame them. This Man refused not the Priesthood, but was High-Priest. It chanced on a time, when he stood at the Altar to offer Sacrifice, one of the Sages cast a Cedar-Tree on him, whereat he lifted up his right hand upon the Altar, crying, Give me my Sword. Then the Sages kneeled down before him, and sware they did it not of any contempt: But rather (say they) that we thus sporting before the Lord, would be merry upon the High solemn Day. But the King's Servants answered roughly again, saying, Although ye play and rejoice, yet it is not the manner of the Country to use any such despightful Custom with the King. The Contention waxed waxed hot against them, till at the length the Sages spake evil of the King, casting in his Teeth, that he was an unhallowed and suspended Person; and that his Grand-Mother, on the Father’s side, was a Captain in Mount Modiit, whereby her Seed was stained. The King was sore moved at that, insomuch that he commanded all the Sages to be slain. Therefore, wheresoever they found them, in the Sanctuary, or in the Streets of Jerusalem, they killed them forthwith. Then the King commanded that every Man should obey the Governance and Traditions of the Sadducees. So in those Days had the Sages great Tribulation, some fell on the Sword, some fled away, and some tarried at home with great dishonour.

After these Matters, the King made an Expedition into Arabia, entered the Country as far as the Rock of the Wilderness, against Hattam, King of Arabia, and subdued his Land. After that, he Warred on Medaba and the whole Land of Moab, vanquishing them, and bringing them under Tribute, and so returned with Honour to Jerusalem. When he had after this, well betought him of his Doings, it repented him of his evil Ways: Wherefore he altered his mind, and began to make much of the Sages, submitting himself to their Ordinance, and esteemed their Traditions.

There was at that time, a kind of Sect that were called Pharisees, of whom such as had escaped, the King sent to call them home again; and when they came into his presence, he spake unto them words of comfort, saying, My Brethren, ye shall understand, that the thing which is once done, must needs be termed as it is, and cannot be revoked;
voked; and truth it is, you cannot excuse the Reproach that ye did me, nor I cannot call again the Blood that I have shed. Notwithstanding I confess my Fault unto you, and have changed my Indignation to Love, praying you to put out of your heart all Rancour and Malice, lay away all your Mourning and Sorrowfulness of your Minds, rejoicing in your Reconciliation and Atonement with me, and be of good Chear. But they made him answer: We will not lay away our Hatred and Enmity, for thou speakest but Deceitfully, and we speak that is Truth. Furthermore, thou hast killed our chief Men and Elders; neither hast thou only done us this Injury, but, as Hircanus thy Father began this Mischief, so thou hast holden on, and continued it: Wherefore this Hatred between thee and us hath taken some Root, neither can we leave our Lamentation till thou die, and God take Vengeance on thee for our Sakes. Then shall we rejoice, when we see Vengeance. So they departed from his Presence, neither did the King give them any Answer at all. But when they saw the King to be incensed against them, and by that means the matter might redound to their own harm, after consultation had, they went to the King of Greece, whose name was Demetrius, shewed him what Hircanus and Alexander his Son had done to the Pharisees, and all the Israelites that bare them good Will and followed their Traditions, and how they also hated Alexander, for the Mischief that he had wrought them; so that if any Man will come and revenge the Malice of Alexander, they would be ready to aid him. Demetrius followed their Advice, and assembling together all his People, to the number of 400000 Horse-Horse-men, and Foot men without Number, he took his Journey, and encamped against Sichem.

The King Alexander raised Six thousand Horse-men to aid him. But the King of the Grecians writ privily to the Ancients of the Sectaries, that they should not aid Alexander; to the Soldiers also, that Alexander had hired, he sent Rewards, Gold and Silver, that they returned home to their Country, and aided not Alexander; whereupon he was not able to withstand Demetrius. Therefore, hearing that Demetrius was removed from Sichem towards Jerusalem, intending to take him in the City, he fled by Night, with a few of his Men, to the Mountains, and lurked there.

When the Men of Israel that were in Judea, heard that the King was fled out of Jerusalem, and that the City was in fear to come into the hands of the Grecians, they gathered themselves together, and stood for their Lives, as though all had been one Man, to the number of Ten thousand, and set upon Demetrius's Camp, killed all his best Men of War, and spoiled all his Hoast, that he fled from them, and came home into his Country with great dishonour.

This done, the King took heart to him, and returned to his Kingdom, but the Pharisees fled to Beth-shemesh, fortifying themselves against the King; who having intelligence thereof, gathered an Army and went against them, won the City, and took Eight hundred of the chiefest Pharisees, bound them in Chains, and brought them to Jerusalem.

Then Banquetted he all his Servants upon the Roof of his Palace in a high place, where his learned Peers did eat and drink, till they were drunk. And in his merry mood, he commanded those Eight hundred hundred Pharisees Prisoners to be fetch’d forth, and to be hanged every Man of them upon Gallowfes before him, at which fight he drunk and laughed heartily.

After this he fell sick in the Four and twentieth Year of his Reign, of a grievous Disease, a Quartane Ague, that held him Three Years; and for all this he shrunk not, nor letted to go to the War to encounter and fight with his Enemies, what Nation ever they were round about him, as though he had been a whole Man.

In the 27th Year of his Reign, which was the Third of his Sickness, he made an Expedition into the Land of Moab, against a certain City called Rabaga, to get it by force. At which time he was very sick and weak; wherefore his Wife Alexandra, the Queen, went with him, fearing lest he should die by the way. And as he encamped himself against the City, and urged it fior with Assaults, his Sickness increased upon him more and more. Wherefore his Wife perceiving that he was like to die, wept bitterly for him, and said, To whom fhall I be fo bold as to fhew my Face when thou art once dead, seeing thou haft wrought fuch Mischief against the Pharifees, whom all the Land favoured, and following their Traditions, obey their Instructions? If they fhall be disposed to revenge themselves upon me and thy young Children, they fhall have Aid of all that dwell in the Land. The King answered, Weep not, nor fhew any resemblance of Pensiveness; I will tell thee what thou fhalt do, and if thou wilt follow my Counfel, thou fhalt prosper and Reign, thou and thy Children, as thou wouldft defire; but cafe I die, there is no Man
Man in the World need know thereof: Tell thou every Man therefore that asks for me, that I am sick, and will not that any Man shall come at me. In the mean while anoint and season me with Balms, fight with courage against this City, till thou win it, and then return to Jerusalem with joy: And beware thou put on no mourning Apparel, nor Weep, but bring me unto Jerusalem, and lay me on a Bed like a sick Man, and after, call together the chief of the Pharisees, bring them where I am, and speak unto them gently in this sort: Alexander hath been ever your Enemy, I know it very well, wherefore take him if ye lift, and cast him into the Fire, or to the Dogs, or bury him, it shall be at your choice: I know well they are pitiful Men, and so full of Mercy, that they will bury me honourably, and appoint some one of my Sons, whom they like best, to be King. The Queen did therefore as she was instructed of the King. And when she had won Rabaga, she joyfully returned to Jerusalem: After that gathered together the Elders of the Pharisees, and spake to them as the King had advised her. The Pharisees hearing that the King was dead, and that his Body was in their hands to do withal what they lift, they answered the Queen, God forbid, we should do this unto our Lord, the anointed of God: He was the King, and High-Priest: What, though he were a Sinner, yet his death shall be an Expiation for all his Iniquities. Therefore we will bewail him, and mourn for him; yea, we will carry his Coffin ourselves on our Necks, and bury him as it becometh a King's Majesty, and so they did. The time that he Reigned was 27 Years: After him Reigned his Wife Alexandra in his stead; for the Pharisees, Pharisees, after they had finished the Seventh day of the Mourning, they committed the Kingdom unto her. She had two Sons by the King, the elder was called Hircanus, the other Aristobulus: Hircanus was a just Man and a righteous, but Aristobulus was a Warriour and a Man of Courage; besides that, of a familiar and loving Countenance. He favoured also the learned Men, and followed their Instructions, but Hircanus his elder Brother loved the Pharisees.

On a time therefore when the Queen sat in the Throne of her Kingdom, she called the Ancients of the Pharisees before her, honoured them, and commanded to release, and set at liberty all such Pharisees as the King her Husband, and her Father-in-law, had put in Prison; and taking the Pharisees by the Hands, she commanded all Israel to obey their Ordinances. Then made the Hircanus her Son High-Priest, and Aristobulus, Lieutenant of the Wars.

She sent also to all the Lands that her Husband and Father-in-law had subdued, and demanded the Noblemens Sons for Pledges, which she kept in Jerusalem. So the Lord gave to the Queen quietness from all that were under her Subjection. She gave also the Pharisees Authority over the learned folk, putting them all in their Hands to order at their will.

Whereupon straightway they found one Do-grus, a great Man amongst the learned folk, whom they slew; and much People besides of the Ancients of that Sect; so that the Sectaries were in great Distress. They gathered themselves together therefore, and came to Aristobulus the Lieutenant of the Wars, and with him they came to the Queen, saying unto her, Thou knowest the Enmity that is between us and the Pharisees, which hate thy Husband band and Father-in-law, yea, and thy Children also. We were his Men of War that went with him in all his Affairs, and aided him; now thou hast given us into their Hands to be murdered and banished out of the Land: What will Hartam King of Arabia do, when he heareth this, that we shall forslake thee? He will come and revenge him of all the Battles that thy Husband fought against him. Yea, the Pharisees will take his part, and deliver thee and thy Children into his Hands, that there shall not be left unto Hircanus the King, and his Son Alexander thy Husband, any Name or Remnant at all. The Queen gave them no word of Answer; whereat Aristobulus was Angry, and letted not to utter it to his Mothers Face, but she would not hear him. Wherefore Aristobulus counselled the Settaries to go their ways, and depart out of Jerusalem, to choose them Cities in the Land of Judea, where they might dwell with their Honour, and not to suffer themselves to be slain under the Pharisees hands. Wherefore departing from Jerusalem, they dwelt in the Cities of Judea. Not long after this, it fortuned the Queen fell sore sick, that she was like to die, whereof when Aristobulus heard, he feared lest the Pharisees would make his Brother Hircanus King, and at length apprehend him; wherefore he fled away by Night to the City of the Sadducees, to be their head, and make War upon his Brother if he should presume to Reign. He came therefore to the Prince of the Sadducees, called Galustius, who was a good Man of War: And after he had gathered a strong Army of the Sadducees, his Mother, the Queen, sent unto him, that he should return unto her; which he would not do, but rather went went to War with the Nations that dwelt about him, where he won Twenty Cities, and got him great Renown thereby.

Now as the Queen his Mother waxed ficker and ficker, the chief Pharisees came unto her with her Son Hircanus, weeping before her, and saying, How they were afraid of her Son Aristobulus, who, if he should come into Jerusalem, and take it, he would deliver them up into the hands of the Sadduces. Unto whom she answered, I am as you see at the point of death, not able to talk much with you; there is here in my House great Treasure, that my Husband and my Father gathered, and their Parents, Kings of the Posterity of Chasmoname, take that to you, and make my Son Hircanus King over you. If Aristobulus will disturb him, and make War against him, ye may levy Men of War therewith, and succour him as you think good. And even with this she fainted and died, and was buried amongst her People, after she had reigned Nine Years over Israel. The Pharisees therefore and Priests, with all the Inhabitants of Jerusalem, made Hircanus her Son King in her stead.

Aristobulus hearing Tydings of these Things, assembled his Army and came toward Jerusalem to fight against his Brother. But Hircanus met him, and encountered with him nigh unto Jordan Jericho.

The Sadduces of Aristobulus's Hoast were good Men of War, and too strong for the Pharisees: wherefore Hircanus and the Pharisees had the Overthrow at Aristobulus and the Sadduces hands, who with this Victory proceeding forth to Jerusalem besieged it, and brought it to great distress. Wherefore the Priest and the ancient of the People people consulted together, and came forth to Aristobulus, fell prostrate on the Earth before him, and besought him, that he would not scatter abroad the Inhabitants of the Land. He condescended unto their Desires, upon these Conditions; That he should enter into Jerusalem with them, and be King, and his Brother Hircanus should be High-Priest; whereupon they agreed. Then as Aristobulus entred into Jerusalem, his Brother came out of the Sanctuary to meet him, and with embracing, he kissed him. So Aristobulus was King, and Hircanus executed the Office of the High-Priest: The Lord also gave Israel Rest and Peace for a while.

But afterward the Lord sent an evil Spirit among them, which was the cause of translating the Kingdom from the Stock of Chasmoname, and of the destruction of his Posterity for the Sin of Hircanus the Great, and the Sin of Alexander his Son: In that they shed so much innocent Blood, and drew Israel from the Obedience of the Prophets, unto the Lyes and Trifles of the Sadduces. For thus it chanced.

The Sadduces beat into Aristobulus's Head, that as long as his Brother Hircanus lived, he or his Kingdom could never be established. Whereupon Aristobulus devised how to make away Hircanus; which thing a certain Man called Antipater was aware of, a Man of most power in all Israel, and thereto also wise, expert and learned in all Wisdom, both in the Laws and in the Knowledge of the Greek, just of his word, and prudent if any strange or new Matters chanced. His Offspring was not out of the Children of Israel, but of those Romans which chanced to be vanquished, and become subject under the Dominion of the Israelites, being but Strangers, and and of a noble House in Israel. He had four Sons, Joseph the Eldest, the next Palsilus, the third Herod, and the fourth Pheroras; they had also a Sister called Salumith.

Antipater favoured Hircanus so entirely for his Justice, and Uprightness sake, that he opened unto him his Brother Aristobulus and the Sadducees intent, giving him Counsel to fly to Hartam, King of Arabia; but Antipater himself went before to break the Matter to Hartam, of whose coming Hartam was very glad. Then Antipater declared unto him, how Hircanus was in mind to fly unto him, because of Aristobulus his Brother: If thou wilt help him (faith he) and lend him speedy Aid, thou shalt easily set Aristobulus beside the Kingdom; for all Israel is enclined to Hircanus, and favour not Aristobulus: Hartam answered, I am afraid of the Jews, and their Craftiness, Alexander, his Father, put me thrice to the Foil in Battle by his subtilty, and took my Dominions from me.

Then Antipater swore unto him, He shall be (faith he) thy true and trusty Friend, to do whatsoever thy Heart desireth. Thus Hartam was persuaded, and they made a League together. Then Antipater turned to Jerusalem, caus'd Hircanus to fly in the Night; and they both went together to the King of Arabia, who much rejoiced at Hircanus's coming, and received him honourably. When they came together to treat of the League, Hartam demanded Restitution of such Cities as Hircanus's Father had taken from him, to whom Hircanus consented in all things. Wherefore Hartam rais'd all the People of Arabia, and led them to Jerusalem to War upon it. To Hircanus also came all the Men of Judea, save only they that dwelt at Jerusalem; so betwixt them they beset the City round about. It fortuned that in the solemnity of the Passover, they could not have their service of the Solemnity in the Holy Place, because of the Wars; whereupon a certain just and perfect Man of the Town, called Honiauriga, brake out privily into the Camp of Hircanus and Antipater his Councillor, and besought them with much Prayer and Tears, that they would grant a Truce unto Jerusalem, while the Feast of Sweet-Bread lasted, that they might execute the Service of Solemnity in the Holy Place; to whom Hircanus said, Thou art a Just Man, and often when thou hast prayed, the Lord hath heard thee, pray now therefore unto the Lord to deliver Aristobulus into our Hands, and that Israel may rest. Honiauriga answered, Am I a God? or able to remove Battles, that be stirred up for many Mens Iniquities? Thus when he seemed to be unwilling to pray, Hircanus's Men compelled him, drawing their Swords, and saying, If thou wilt not pray, thou shalt die for it. Therefore, as he saw his Life in Jeopardy, he cried unto the Lord, O Lord everlasting! which hast chosen thy People Israel out of all People, and hast set thy Name in his House, may it please thy Majesty to plant among the Children of Israel Friendship and Brotherhood; take away from among them this Hatred which is risen of nothing, and let not the one of these Factions prevail against the other, seeing they all be thy Servants, and Children of thy Covenant. When the Servants of Hircanus heard him say so, they ran upon him with their Swords, and killed him: But God deferred not his Vengeance, for he struck the Hoast, as well of the Arabsians, as of Hircanus, with a grievous Pestilence.

CHAP.
AT the same time came from Rome a famous Captain called Pompeius, to War against the Country of Armenia: This Pompeius sent one of his chief Men to Damasco, of whom, as Aristobulus (thus besieged) had heard, and that an Army of the Romans was come to Damasco, he sent him a Present of Four Hundred pound weight in Gold, desiring him to remove the Army of the Arabians from him, and to raise the Siege.

In those Days all the World obeyed the Romans. That Captain therefore writ unto Hartam, King of Arabia, in this wise: Depart from Jerusalem, if not, thou shalt understand, thou hast broke thy League with the Senate of Rome, and the whole Army of the Romans shall shortly invade thy Land. Hartam, on the sight of this Letter, raised his Siege, and departed from Jerusalem. Hircanus also, and Antipater, departed with Shame and Reproach.

Aristobulus upon that, gathered a great Power, and pursued after them, gave the Arabians and Israelites, that took Hircanus's part, a great Overthrow, and after returned to Jerusalem with great Joy.

Shortly after, Pompeius came to Damasco, where Aristobulus presented him with a Vine of Gold, marvellous artificially wrought. The Roots of the Vine, Leaves, Clusters, and Grapes that were upon it, were pure Gold, the weight whereof was Five Hundred pound; Pompeius was very glad thereof, and sent it to Rome to the Consul. And the whole Bench of The Senate, which was of the Number of Three hundred and Twenty Senators, wondred at the Cunning and Wit of him that made it, and with great joy they bare it into the Temple of their Gods, placing it in the Presence of the great Idol Jupiter, so called after the Planet Jupiter.

Pompeius writ his Letters to Aristobulus, with great Thanks and Commendation for the same, assuring him, how both he and the whole Senate favoured him, and that he should have a Friend of him, to speak in his Cause as long as he lived. Hircanus hearing of this, was clean dashed, and in despair. But Antipater comforted him, saying, Let not the Friendship that is betwixt Pompeius and thy Brother, dismay thee; I will go to him, and make him thy Friend. Upon that he went to Pompeius, and perswaded his Mind to hate Aristobulus, and to favour Hircanus, informing him thus; If thou (faith he) defend Hircanus, all Israel will be content to be under thy Protection, for they love him every Man; but if thou defend Aristobulus, the People will not obey thee, for they hate him. Pompeius charged him that no Man should be made Privy to their Communication; for I (quoth he) will send for Aristobulus to come to me to Damasco, and then I will cause to be laid hands upon him, and deliver him bound to his Brother, restoring the Kingdom to him. Aristobulus, upon the sight of Pompeius's Letters, resorted unto him. Hircanus also came from the Rock of the Wilderness, and as they appeared together before Pompeius, Antipater desir'd that he would do Justice betwixt Hircanus the King and Aristobulus his Brother, that rebelled against him, and took his Kingdom from him without Cause, whose Sayings a Thousand Thousand of the Elders of Israel stood up and witnesed to be true: Aristobulus answered, I never strove with him for the Kingdom until such time as I saw all these that made Hircanus King, to run in great Obloquy, and to sustain much Reproach, because he was so feeble a Person, and of no great Wit, nor fought much the Kingdom; yea, till all Nations that were about him, whose Dominions our Progenitors Conquered, began now to despise him, to pass little for offending him, to deny him Tribute for his Simplicity and Mopishness, with lack of Courage.

When Aristobulus had said, there stood up a great Multitude of goodly and beautiful young Men, apparelled in Cloath of Hyacinth and Purple, with mighty Targets upon them, and other Ornaments of Gold, Crystal, and precious Stones, affirming with one accord, That Aristobulus said the Truth: Namely, That Hircanus was not favoured by the Kingdom. At which Pompeius marvelled, saying, Happy is this People, having so many goodly Men true in their words, and wise: Happy also were the Senate of Rome, if they could bring to pass, that this great Nation might be under their Governance. So he took his Journey to Jerusalem with Hircanus, and Aristobulus. But after Aristobulus perceived Pompeius stood not to the Promise he made him at the beginning, or the Vine, he set light by him, and fled from him to Alexandria in Egypt, whither Pompeius followed with his Hoast, and besieged Alexandria. From thence Aristobulus fled again to Jerusalem, and Pompeius pursued him also thither, writing to Aristobulus a Letter of Truce and Pardon. So Aristobulus came forth unto him, and Pompeius did him at that time no harm, but demanded manded to be given unto him all the Vessels of the House of the Lord, which Aristobulus refused to do; Pompeius, in a rage, caused to lay him fast in heavy Iron Chains, and assaulted Jerusalem, Battering the Walls very sore, till they of the Town issued out against him, and slew of his Host 12000 Men.

After this, had the Israelites Civil Wars within Jerusalem, because the Siege was grievous unto them; for they were divided into Factions: One part said, Let us open the Gates to Pompeius and let him in, that we may submit our selves under his Protection. The other said, Let us fight against him unto death. But much People disliked that, so that that side prevailed that would yield. Wherefore Pompeius entred the Town, and the House of the Sanctuary, killed much People of the Priests, and the People of the Land made Hircanus King of Israel the second time, and Antipater his Counsellor. Moreover he set one Socerus, a Roman, in the Country, to receive the Tribute, and departed, leading Aristobulus with him bound in Iron. And because he took his Journey toward Arabia, Hircanus and Antipater went with him to conduct him.

Aristobulus thus being Prisoner, and his Two Sons with him, it fortuned that one of them (called Alexander) escaped; And having Intelligence, that Hircanus and his Counsellor were gone out of Jerusalem, he came thither and rebelled against Hircanus, made up the Breaches of the Wall that Pompeius had battered; Yea, the Israelites resorted unto him, and made him King in Hircanus's place. Whereupon he gathered an Army, and went forth to meet with Hircanus as he came homeward from Pompeius, where he gave Hircanus the overthrow, and and Securus, the Receiver of the Tribute, fled and escaped.
The Wars of the Jews.

Then Alexander returned to Jerusalem, from whence shortly after, Gabianus a Roman, with a strong Army, compelled him to fly to Alexandria. And being in the same place besieged also of Gabianus, his Mother, Aristobulus's Wife, went forth to Gabianus weeping, and besought him that he would not destroy her Son: For whose sake he did Alexander no harm.

Gabianus therefore having gotten all the Land of Judea, made Hircanus King of Jerusalem now the third time: Who set Roman Captains and Rulers in Jericho, and in Zephory, and through all the Land of Israel.

It fortuned after this, that Aristobulus got out of Prison at Rome, and came into Israel, to whom on every side resorted Men in such sort, that he had a puissant Host of Israel. Wherefore when he had taken Muster, he chose out Eight Thousand of the best, and with them went against Gabianus, where was a sore Battle fought between them, till the best of Aristobulus's Men were slain, and only one Thousand left, wherewith he fled to the Mountains. But the Romans followed the Chase, and slew them every Man. Yet Aristobulus would not yield, but fought alone, although his Helmet was broken, till he had divers sore Wounds in his Head: And then he fell to the Ground, and the Romans took him yet alive, and brought him to Gabianus, who comforted him, commanding his Surgeons to heal him, and after sent him to the Consul and Senate of Rome, where he was sent to Prison yet once again. And thus, the Senate taking pity of Aristobulus's Wife, which was was reported to be a very wise Woman, released her two Sons out of Prison, and set them at liberty. Alexander, the one of those, could not be content, but rebelled once again, against Hircanus, and the Roman Governours. For he gathered together much People of Israel, Encountred with one of the Roman Governours that Gabianus had appointed, and gave him the Overthrow: But proceeding further to fight with Gabianus, had the worse, and many of the Israelites were slain, yet he escaped, and fled. This done, Gabianus came to Jerusalem, and Renewed the Kingdom of Israel to Hircanus the fourth time.

About this time, one of the Senators Wives at Rome conceiv'd a Child, and died in the Birth and Travail thereof: They therefore that were about her, straightway ript her, and got the Child out alive, whom they named Julius, and because his Mother was cut, they called him Caesar. This Child growing to great towardness, and coming to Man's Estate, the Consul and Senate sent him into the Wars, and whatsoever he did, he had good Fortune and prosperous Success. He deprived the Grecians of their Empire and Dominion, translating it to the Romans: Many Provinces also besides that, he did subdue, and returning to Rome with a Power, attempted to get the Dominion and sole Power over them. But they had made solemn Statutes, in the time of their Progenitors, never to suffer any King among them, or any Man to have perpetual Rule over them; wherefore they would not make Julius King: Upon this rose amongst them great and mortal Wars, so that Julius slew a great many of them, and without number. When Pompeius understood that Caesar Reigned Reigned at Rome, and had killed the Consul and Senate, with all the Nobility of Rome, he gathered together his whole Army out of Arabia, and made toward him. Julius having Intelligence of his coming against him, sent for Aristobulus out of Prison, spake friendly unto him, gave him a Power, and made him grand Captain thereof, bidding him go and Encounter with Pompeius: Indeed his Army was a strong Army, and he himself a King of no small Prowess and Valiantness; Pompeius hearing that Aristobulus came against him, was sore afraid of his Valiantness, and of his Host; wherefore he sent to the Inhabitants of Jerusalem, that were under his Obedience, that they should present Aristobulus with some Gift, whereby they might deceive him, and Poison him. The Inhabitants of Jerusalem, at his Request, sent unto Aristobulus a Present, by certain Noblemen, whereat Aristobulus was right joyful, and did eat and banquet with them, till he was overcome with drink; then they poisoned him, and he died: The time that he reigned over Israel was Four Years and Six Months. He was a good Man of War, hardy in Fight, and a Man of amiable Countenance.

Pompeius receiving Tidings of his death, the more gladly proceeded toward Rome to besiege it; but Julius met him in the way, and destroyed him and his Host, whereby the Empire was established to Julius. He, after this, sent Presents to the King of Syria, and into Egypt, by his Captains, to allure them to his Friendship: Antipater advised Hircanus to aid Julius, if perchance he might win his Favour, which Hircanus did; and Antipater was Captain of the Host, who played the
the Man, and found such Favour with Julius, that he made him Lieutenant of his Wars; and after he had fought sundry and great Battles, he returned to Jerusalem with great Honour, and by the way prospered much more. Hircanus after this, made Phaselus, Antipater's Son, Governour of Jerusalem, and Herod his third Son President of Galilee. There was a certain young Man, at that time, in Jerusalem, called Hizkias, a valiant Man of War, to whom adhered all such as were in any Distress, and he became their Captain. These went and ranged about in Syria, roving and murdering in such sort, that the Syrians were weary of their Lives, for fear of them. Wherefore the King of Syria sent unto Herod, Ruler of Galilee, desiring him to kill that Hizkias and his Complices. Whereupon Herod prepared himself, and went to meet with Hizkias, as he return'd from the Spoil of Syria, and came upon him unawares, and slew him and his Men. Whereupon when the King of Syria was certified, he sent a noble Reward unto Herod, of Silver, Gold, and precious Stones, by which, and by like Means, he became very famous. These Noblemen of Juda made their Complaint unto Hircanus, upon Antipater and his Sons, for their oppressing the Land of Juda, desiring that Herod might be summoned from Galilee, to appear in Judgment, and answer with others for killing of Hizkias. The King therefore sent for him, and he upon that came to Jerusalem, appeared before the Judges, Princely apparelled, with a gilt Sword about him; whose Pride an ancient Man (called Samai) blamed, and reprehended also his stout Heart, but he would not give Ear unto him, nor yet regard the Judges. When Hircanus perceived that the the Judges had almost determined to give Judgment against the young Man, and to make him away, he took pity on him, and said, We will not give Sentence to day, to morrow is a new day; and by that means delivered him out of their hands. Herod knew not afore that it was a matter of Life and Death, that Night therefore he fled to the King of Syria, declaring all what hapned unto him: The King of Syria let him have a strong Army, and came with him himself, purposing to besiege Jerusalem: But his Father Antipater, and his eldest Brother Phasaelus, came unto him, and rebuked him, saying, Is this the Reward that thou renderest unto King Hircanus, that took pity on thee, and would not have thy blood shed? Therefore they willed him to depart from Jerusalem; unto whom he condescended, after he had once let the Inhabitants of Jerusalem know what he could do, and had shewed them his Power. Julius, Emperor of Rome, about that time (as he was worshipping in the House of his God) was murdered by the conspiration of certain of them, which had served Pompeius that was slain, as is aforesaid: The Name of one of them that killed him was Cassius, of the Country of Macedonia, who fled thither, being afraid to tarry at Rome: This Cassius had great Dominions in Macedonia. Antipater also, of whom we spake, was a great scourge to the noble Men of Juda, and a great deal forer Man than was Hircanus himself; yea, Hircanus could do nothing in comparison of him, for he had no rule himself, but Antipater and his Sons bare all the sway throughout all the Realm: Moreover, Antipater was in great estimation with all the Kings of that time. And forasmuch as he so fore oppressed oppressed the Jews, they therefore hated him, and conspired to kill him.

There was a Man in great Authority about Hircanus, named Malchias, by whose means they wrought this Matter: He corrupted the King's Butler with Rewards, to put Poison in Antipater's Cup, which as soon as he had drunk he died. These things his Sons Phaselus, and Herod, dissembled and winked at, as though they knew nothing; notwithstanding they privily writ unto Cassius, that reigned in Macedonia, certifying him of this Deed. Soon after came Cassius to Tyre, from whence he sent Messengers to Hircanus to come unto him, who came, and with him Malchias, Phaselus, and Herod: Cassius entertaining them all at his Lodging, willed his Men, that whatsoever Herod bad them, they should do it. Herod willed them to kill Malchias, they flew him therefore sitting hard by Hircanus's side. Hircanus demanded of the Sons of Antipater the causes hereof; who answered, Is it not manifest, that King Cassius's Servants flew him, and we know not why? Therefore Hircanus stood in fear of Phaselus and Herod, being certain that this was their Deed. Wherefore he said unto them, This Malchias was worthy of such death, for he was a crafty Man, and an Usurer.

These things done, Octavius Augustus, Brothers Son unto Julius that was murdered, came to Rome; and the People of Rome made him their Emperor. He had a Fellow in Office named Marcus Antonius his Uncle. Octavianus therefore seeing to the Government of Rome, sent Marcus Antonius to War upon Cassius, and to revenge Julius's death. Unto him Hircanus sent a Present, a Crown of Gold, in which were were set sundry precious Stones, praying him to strengthen his Kingdom in his Hands, and to be a means of a League to be made between Octavianus Augustus, King of Kings, and him; as there was between him and Julius; which Antonius granted. About that time Antigonus Son of Aristobulus writ to Pagurus King of the Persians, to aid him against Hircanus, to remove him, and to restore the Kingdom to himself, promising to give him for his Travel Five hundred pound weight of Gold, and an Hundred Israelitish Virgins. So Pagurus gathered an Host against Israel, and Antigonus departed out of Jerusalem with much People of Israel that took his part, and joined themselves to Pagurus.

These came to Jerusalem, besieged it, fought many Skirmishes, and gave many great Assaulds unto it, till at length they undermined the City; then took they Hircanus, and slew Phaselus. And to the intent Hircanus might be clean removed from the Priesthood, Antigonus that had deprived him of the Kingdom, cut off (besides that) one of his Ears. But Herod escaped, and fled to Augustus, Emperor of Rome.

Pagurus therefore having made Antigonus King of Jerusalem, returned home into Persia, carrying Hircanus as Prisoner with him. But Augustus appointed Herod to be King over all Judea, giving to him a very strong Army of the Romans to obtain it withal. In the way thither, Herod met with Alexandra, Hircanus's Daughter, and Marimi her Daughter, that she had by Alexander, Son of Aristobulus, and brought them again into the Land of Israel, where he took Marimi to Wife, and solemnized the Marriage with her in the Mount of Galilee, for there the chief of all Israel dwelt, with with whom he took peace. Marcus Antonius, Companion in Office with Octavian Augustus, about that time made a Voyage through all the West Countries, to subdue them to the Romans, together with Egypt, Damascæ, and Syria. Him Herod accompanied to the Flood of Euphrates, and helped him not a little. For the Arabians lay in wait for him in the way, and intercepted all that would aid Marcus Antonius. Herod met with them, and vanquished them. Wherefore Antonius was very glad of Herod’s Valiantness, and brought him again to Israel, together with Cassius his Captain and Lieutenant of the Wars, having also his Letters to all the Captains of Syria, of this Tenour. Ye shall understand, that our Lord and Master, Octavian Augustus, King of Kings, hath appointed Herod, the Son of Antipater, to be King of the Land of Juda. Therefore as soon as these Letters come to you, ye shall with speed aid him. No Man shall be excused; all that can bear Arms shall go with him to Jerusalem, to vanquish Antigonus, the King’s Adversary, who refuseth to go with him, it shall be lawful for the Warriors to slay him forthwith. I Marcus Antonius, have sworn by my Sword, I will not alter this that I have said. When the Captains of Syria had read this, they resorted wholly to Herod, so that his Host was wonderfully encreased. Antigonus hearing of this, sent one Pompeius, Lieutenant of his Wars, against them, who fought a fore Battel with them, that much People was slain in that Battel. Notwithstanding at length Antigonus’s Host went to the worst, and had the Overthrow.

So Herod and Cassius proceeded to Jerusalem, and besieged it the Third Year after Herod was made King of Israel. And when they had battered tered down a piece of the Wall, Cassius with the Romans entred into the Town, and made a great slaughter in Jerusalem. They entred also into the Sanctuary, and attempted to enter into the Santorum; but Herod and his Men leapt between it and them, and stood with their drawn Swords in the Temple door, to withstand their Enterprise. Herod was also displeased with Cassius for his Cruelty, and said, If ye will destroy all the Inhabitants of the City, upon whom shall I Reign in the Kingdom that Augustus hath given me? Wherefore straightway Cassius caused Proclamation to be made through all his Hoft, That no Man, upon pain of Death, should kill one Israelite more. This done, Herod apprehended Antigonus, and delivered him bound to Cassius. He rewarded also Cassius's Soldiers both with Gold and Silver. Then Cassius offered a Present unto the Lord, a Crown of Gold, for he was sore afraid of God's displeasure, because he had fought against the Holy City. That done, he took his Journey and returned into Egypt, and Antigonus as Prisoner with him. Thither sent Herod unto him a Royal Reward, to make away Antigonus, and to murder him, fearing lest he should make claim unto the Kingdom again: Whereunto Cassius consented, and slew Antigonus.

CHAP. III.

Thus was the Kingdom surely Established to Herod. Then he made Wars upon all the Nations that were about him, constraining them to become Tributaries, by which means he grew to such Power, as never any of his Predecessors were to be compared unto him. After all this, Pagurus, King of Persia, released out of Prison Hircanus, Son of Alexander, and promoted him to be Head of all the Israelites that were fled into the Land of Senaar, and into the Dominion of the Persians, and he became their King. This Hircanus had a fervent desire to see the Holy City, and the House of the Sanctuary; also how Herod (whom he took for his Son) and his Kingdom did. Herod hearing that Hircanus (who had been Prisoner in Babylon) was now set at Liberty, and in great Honour, he was afraid of him, mistrusting least the Israelites would restore unto themselves the Kingdom of their Fathers; wherefore he cast in his Mind how to do him a Mischief: He then writ this Letter unto Pagurus, the Contents whereof were such; Thou shalt understand that Hircanus is he that brought me up, and used me even as his Son; now therefore since I came to be King in Jerusalem, I have called to my remembrance the goodness that he hath done to me, wherefore my desire is to reward him according to his Benefits; therefore I require thee to send him to me, otherwise assure thy self of Wars between thee and the Israelites, with their Confederates.

Pagurus having read this Letter, sent to Hircanus, giving him to understand; That if he would go to Herod he might: But notwithstanding Herod's Threats, he ceased not to give Hircanus all good Counsel he could, advising him to take heed of Herod, because he is (faith he) a Bloodshredder, and a breaker of his League: And he hath called thee for no Love he beareth thee, but because because he feareth thee. As long as thou livest shalt he never sleep soundly, least the Kingdom should be devolved unto thee: It is better for thee to remain here in some Honour, though it be not of such Estate, than go thither to die with great despight, and end thy Old Age with a bloody Death. Furthermore thou shalt know, such is the Disposition of Men's Hearts;
If there be two Men, the one in Honour, the other in Contempt; after time shall come, that the Despised shall be had in Honour, and the Honoured be neglected; never will he that is now honoured, and before was in Contempt, be content to see him that was before Honoured, nor speak friendly to him: For he will think hitherto, according to his accustomed manner, he hath despised me, how much more when his Dominion is taken from him, and his Servants Reign in his room? Moreover, Herod knoweth right well, that Mens Hearts are inclined to him that is the true King. And it might be so, if thou wert meet for the Priesthood, that he would promote thee unto it, and be Governour of the Kingdom himself: But seeing thou art dismembred, having one of thy Ears cut off, and thereby art unmeet for the Priesthood; thou shalt remain in Jerusalem, deprived both of Kingdom and Priesthood, which is uncomely for thee. Such Counsel gave Pagurus, King of the Persians, unto Hircanus: Yea, and all the Jews that were in Babylon, besought him that he would not go unto Herod.

Notwithstanding he would not be persuaded, and why? For it was the Lord's Will and his Deed, that the Injury done unto the Sages whom his Father and Grand-Father slew, and the Injury committed
mitted to Honiauriga, might return upon his Head and be revenged, so that no Remnant of the House of Chasmoname, no Name, no Residue, no Kinsman, or Potterity should be left alive. Hircanus therefore took his Journey toward Jerusalem, and Herod came forth to meet him, embrace him, and kissed him; after brought him to his House, and feasted him daily, calling him his Father before all Men, albeit in his Heart he conspired to kill him, which Alexandra his Daughter, and Mother-in-Law to Herod, knew well enough, who opened it unto Hircanus, but he would not credit her at the first, till on a time he perceived the Matter clear to be so: Then devised he how to fly to Maloc King of Arabia; he sent therefore to Maloc to send him Horses and a Chariot to fly withal; but the Messenger dealt unfaithfully, and lewdly with him, for he brought Hircanus's Letters privily unto Herod, who rewarded him well for his Labour, and bad him go to Maloc, and to let him know what Answer Maloc gave. The Messenger upon this, went and delivered the Letters to Maloc, who fulfilled Hircanus's Request, sent him Horses and a Chariot, writing in this sort: I have sent thee Horses and Horsemen, come therefore unto me, and whatsoever thy Heart desireth, I will do it for thy sake. So the Messenger brought the Answer secretly to Herod; whereupon he sent straight to the Place in which he understood Maloc's Men to lurk, waiting for Hircanus, and caused to apprehend them alive. Then Herod commanded to call together the Elders, before whom he willed also Hircanus to be brought, and of him the King demanded, Tell me whether thou hast written any Letter to Maloc, King of Arabia? He answered, I writ none.
The Wars of the Jews.

Then was Riftius the Messenger brought in as his Accuser, and the Men of War also of Arabia that were apprehended, who declared the whole Matter before the Council, so that Hircanus was quite dashed. Then the King commanded him to be put to death, and so was the Kingdom established unto Herod. The time that Hircanus Reigned was Forty Years and Six Months. After the death of his Mother he Reigned Three Years, and Aristobulus his Brother removed him, making him Priest: Again, Three Years after he returned to his Kingdom, and Reigned Four Years.

Then Antigonus, Son of Aristobulus, deposed him, cutting off his Ear, and banished him out of the Holy City. So after, when Herod his Servant came to the Kingdom, he returned to Jerusalem, and Herod shed his Blood guiltless: Yet notwithstanding had delivered Herod from the Hands of the Elders, who would have put him to Death, for the Death of Hizkias. From that time Hircanus wrought no Evil in the sight of the Lord, nor offended him in any great matter, save only in this, that he bare too much with Herod in shedding the innocent Blood, wherefore his own Life went for the other: Therefore happy is he that never forgetteth any part of his Duty. Marimi, the Daughter of Alexander, the Son of Aristobulus, the Wife of Herod, had a Brother, whose Name was Aristobulus, him Herod would in no wise promote to the High Priest-hood, because he feared the Children of Chasmoname, although his Wife made earnest Suit, and lay fore upon him for the matter: But the King made High-Priest one that was nothing of the Kindred of Chasmoname, whose Name was Haniel, Haniel. Notwithstanding, when he had once dispatched Hircanus, his Wife's Progenitors, Father of Alexandria, his Mother-in-law; then he deposed Haniel the High Priest, and preferred his Wife's Brother Aristobulus to the Dignity, who, although he were but a Child, yet he was wise, and of good understanding, and beautiful withal, so that in all Israel was not a goodlier nor handsomer young Man than he was. And this Haniel was the first that ever was deposed from that Office of the High Priesthood; for never did King of Israel attempt the like afore Herod, who did this to quiet his Wife, and to fulfil his Mother-in-laws mind: Notwithstanding this, Alexandra, his Wife's Mother, was not content, nor satisfied, for the Death of her Father was such a Grief: but always spake snappishly to the King that he committed her to Ward. Then she writ to Cleopatra, Queen of Egypt, Wife unto M. Antonius, a Noble Man of Rome, declaring unto her all the mischief that Herod had done to the Posterity of Chasmoname, and desiring of her Aid. To whom Cleopatra made this Answer, If thou canst find the means to come to me secretly, thou shalt perceive what I shall do for thee.

When Alexandra had read the Letter, she sent to Aristobulus her Son, the High Priest, shewing him that she would fly to the Sea Japho, and from thence would take Shipping into Egypt, persuading him also to fly with her. We will (faith she) make two Coffers, one for me, and another for thee; and we will with Rewards allure our Servants to carry us out privily, whereby we may fly to save our Lives. This their Device was perceived of one of Herod's Servants, who forthwith made the King privy unto it.
The King commanded his Servant that betrayed them, that when they did convey the Coffers, they should bring them to him; which the Servant did. So when the Coffers were brought to the King's Presence, he caused them to be opened, and took out Alexandra and her Son Aristobulus; to whom the King spake sharply, and rebuked them sore. But Alexandra answered him again as short; insomuch, that the King, moved with Anger, flung away from her into his Chamber, saying, It is better to sit solitary in a Corner of the House, than with a brawling and scolding Woman in an open place. The King dissembled the matter, and shewed no great displeasure a Year after.

As Aristobulus the High-Priest, appareled in his Pontifical Vestures, stood in the Temple, nigh unto the Altar to offer Sacrifices, the Israellites beheld his Beauty, his Wisdom, and Behaviour in the Ministry; whereat every Man rejoiced, praising God, that had not taken all away, but left one to revenge the Injuries done to the House of Coasmoname. The King hearing this, was sore afraid, and not a little displeased, thinking to himself the Israellites would restore the Kingdom of their Fathers unto him: He perceived every Man's Heart to be inclined towards him; wherefore he deliberated a while, and in the Feast of the Tabernacle he removed to Jericho with all his Household; whereas he made a great Feast to all his Nobles and Servants, placing them every One after his Degree before him. Aristobulus, High-Priest, he set upon the right Hand; and as they eat, drank, and made merry, certain of the King's Servants were disposed to go swim in Jordan. To these the King had given secret secret Commandment, that they should desire Aristobulus to go and bathe with them in Jordan, and then to drown him. So when they were going, they came to Aristobulus, and moved him to keep them company, which he would not, unless the King gave him leave: Wherefore he asked the King leave, but he denied him at the first; yet at length the young Man entreated him so instantly, that the King bid him do what he would.

He went therefore with the other young Men to swim. The King presently took his Horse and returned to Jericho with all his Train, leaving the young Men behind, which continued swimming till Sunset; and as it began to be dark, they drowned the Priest Aristobulus among them. Whereof when Tidings came to the King, and it was known that he was dead, the People wept, and made great Lamentation, considering his Virtue, Nobility, and Beauty, every Man was full of Sorrow, that he should have so short a Life; and they bewailed so much, that it was heard afar off. But Marimi chiefly, and Alexandra, the young Man's Mother, could in no wise be comforted. Yea, the King also wept and made great moan, for it repented him that he had done so wicked an Act; yet all the People knew well enough, that the thing was procured by the King; insomuch, that Alexandra, his Mother-in-law, letted not to tell it to his Face, that he was the murderer of her Husband, and of her Father, and now last of all her Son, to whom the King answered neither good nor bad.

From that day forward there was continual Hatred between Alexandra and Marimi, and Kiparsim, the Mother of Herod, and Salumith his Sister, that that came of base and servile Blood. For Marimi cast in their Teeth, to their Faces, That they were not of the Seed of Israel; but prophane, unholy, and of base Birth. Notwithstanding Herod loved Marimi as his Life, wherefore he would never displease her as long as she lived, nor say so much to her, as, Why saidst thou so?

These things done, Marcus Antonius, a Nobleman of Rome, next unto Octavian Augustus, King of Kings, being sent by Augustus to War upon the Kings of the West-Countries, reigned in Egypt; and by the provocation of his Wife, rebelled against Octavian Augustus, made War with him both by Sea and Land. And forasmuch as Egypt is near adjoining to the Land of Israel, Herod joined with him, and helped him. For Marcus Antonius had aided him before in such sort, that no King durst meddle with him for fear of Marcus Antonius. Whereupon when Marcus conspired against his Prince and Master, Herod aided him with an Army, with Horsemen, and with Ships also, against Octavian. In which Wars Octavian got the Victory, slew Antony, and all his People, coming by Ship into the Isle of Rhodes, and so into the Land of Egypt.

Herod hearing that Marcus Antonius was slain, and that Octavian Augustus was come into Egypt, he stinted for fear of the displeasure of Octavian. Yet at length he took heart unto him, prepared a Royal Present to be carried before him, and followed after to Octavian Augustus. And setting forwards, he called Joseph, the Husband of Salumith his Sister, whom he made chief of his Household, commanded him, that if Octavian put him to death, he should poison Marimi his Wife, saying, It should not not be seemly for Kings, that any mean Man should marry with a King's Widow, and sleep with her upon the King's Bed.

So then he took his Journey towards Octavian Augustus, who then was at Rhodes, where he understood Octavian to be displeased with him, for that he had aided Marcus Antonius. Therefore as soon as Herod came to Octavian Augustus's presence, having his Crown upon his Head, he took it off, and fell down prostrate upon the Ground, at Octavian's Feet, saying, Most noble Emperor, I confess my trespass against your Majesty, that I loved Marcus Antonius my Companion in League, who was my Neighbour, and aided me; and 'tis true that your Majesty, since the time you made me King, have heard of mine Affairs that hapned unto me, but never succoured me. This Marcus Antonius did not so. I confess therefore, that in his Wars against your Majesty, I aided him with an Army, with Horsemen and Ships: Neither went I out with him for any Wars upon mine own Borders; but whenever I went with him I helped him to the utmost of my Power. When he was falling, I bolstered him up, and when he stumbled, I raised him again. Amongst all these I protest also, that I would not be counted of your Majesty a breaker of League; but now Marcus Antonius is dead, wherefore whether that it shall please your Majesty to restore me my former Estate or no; for as much as I have kept touch with Marcus Antonius against your Majesty, amongst others; if you put me to death, you will do me no wrong, but Justice because by the Law of Arms I have deserved Death.

When Octavian Augustus heard him speak so, he said unto him, Arise thou King of Israel in Peace; be of good Comfort, and fear not, for thou art worthy to be nigh, yea, next unto my Person. I know that Marcus Antonius was inticed by his Wife, and would not follow my Counsel, for if he had, I dare say, he never would have conspired against me. So he commanded the Crown to be set again upon Herod's Head, and made a League with him. Then they went both together toward Egypt, to be revenged upon Cleopatra. But that wicked Woman, when she saw her City to be overcome, put on her most precious Apparel, and sitting upon the Throne of her Kingdom, commanded a Viper to be brought unto her; which as soon as she had suffered to sting her Breast, she died. As Oltavian Augustus came to the Palace, and saw her sit there, he rejoiced that he might be revenged on her, and commanded to thrust her from her Throne; but when they came to her, and found her dead, it grieved Oltavian very sore.

In this while Joseph, Salumith's Husband, disclosed unto Marimi, that the King had commanded, if it so happened to him to be put to Death by Augustus, that he should poison her. Whereupon Marimi conceived yet a greater Hatred toward the King, insomuch, that when the King was returned in safety, and found, and with Honour also from Oltavian, and that all his Men and whole Household rejoiced greatly, Marimi shewed no Contenance of Gladness, no, not when the King himself told her how greatly he was magnified and honoured of Oltavian Augustus, but always she was very sad: Salumith, the King's Sister, perceiving that Marimi so vexed the King, she told him how Joseph her Husband had lain with Marimi, whiles he he was with Augustus. But Herod (say what he could) gave no Credit to her Words, knowing that the envied Marimi, until at length he asked the Cause of Marimi, why she rejoiced not as others did, when he returned in safety from Augustus, but was very sad, which shewed her to have Rancour and Malice in her Heart towards him? She answered, Thou hast said heretofore, that thou lovest me above all thy other Wives and Concubines; yet thou didst will Joseph, thy Sister's Husband, to poison me. When Herod heard this, he was exceedingly abashed, that Joseph had disclosed his Secret, and began to mistrust with himself that which Salumith told him, that he had slept with his Wife indeed, and upon that, detected that Secret. Therefore he departed out of his Palace in a great Anger and Rage, whereby Salumith perceived that he detested Marimi, and therefore she accused her further, suborning false Accusers and Forgers of Lyes, to witness that Marimi would have poisoned the King, whereof she had divers Presumptions also by her Countenance. She added moreover, If thou (faith she to the King) let her escape thus, she will speedily destroy thee, and bereave thee of thy Kingdom; the Law giveth a Man this Counfel, If any Man go about to murther thee, prevent him, and slay him first.

With this, and such like Words, she so moved the King, that he commanded to bring Marimi forth, and to be beheaded in the High Street of the City. And as she was brought forth into the Marketplace of the City, all the Women of the City followed her: Alexandra her Mother also cursed and railed at her, saying, Come out thou that hast abhorred thy Husband, and conspired against thy Lord: Alexandra
Alexandra wept also, as though it had been for the Wickedness that her Daughter had committed, thinking surely to please the King by that means, and to blear his Eyes, if, peradventure, he might suffer her to live, till she might have opportunity to poyson him. Marimi thus going to Execution, held her Peace, and looked neither to the Right-hand nor to the Left, nor yet feared Death any thing, knowing that she was innocent in Deed and Thought, and therefore God would render her a good Reward in the World to come; therefore she bared her Neck without fear, and they cut off her Head, shedding the innocent Blood. But God made no delay in punishing the same, for there fell a sore Plague and Pestilence in the House of Herod, so that his chief Servants, his Noble Women and Concubines died sore thereof, yea, throughout Judea reigned vehemently; which Afflictions all Israel knew well enough, chanced unto them for the Blood of Marimi. They cryed therefore unto the Lord, saying, Wilt thou for the Offence of one Man, deal so cruelly with the whole Congregation? The Lord took pity therefore upon the Land, and withdrew the Plague from the People. The King repented him also that he had shed Blood without a Cause; and Love so grew in his Heart, that he was sick, and at Death's Door. Then Alexandra, Marimi's Mother, sought means how to poyson him, which being uttered unto the King, he commanded to apprehend her, and to kill her. In this manner dealt Herod with all the Posterity of the Macchabees, leaving none alive that were called by that Name: Herod put to Death also Josephat, the Husband of Salumith.
The King had two Sons, Alexander and Aristobulus, by Marimi his Wife: They were both at Rome when their Mother suffered; for their Father the King had sent them thither to learn the Roman Tongue: When they heard Tidings of their Mother's Death, they wept and mourned for her, hating their Father for his Cruelty. Soon after, the King their Father recover'd of his Sickness, was established in his Kingdom, builded strong Cities, and rose to great Prosperity. In the Thirteenth Year of his Reign their fell a great Dearth in the Land, wherefore the King took out of his Treasure much Gold and Silver, and precious Stones, wherewith he sent into Egypt, and procured plenty of Corn, and refreshed with Bread all that lack'd, and were in distress of Hunger: yea, he spared not his own proper Goods: And not only to the Israelites shewed he this Liberality, but also to all that came unto him out of other strange Nations, hearing of his Renown: Moreover, in all his Wars he had good Fortune. Besides this, he thought it good to renew the House of the Sanctuary, whereupon he deliberated with the Israelites to have their Advice for the building of it, after the same quantity and measure that Solomon King of Israel had builded it. For the Jews returning from Captivity in the time of Coreseb, began to build it after the measure that Coreseb prescribed them and not as it was before. The People of Israel hearing that the King was purposed to pull down the Temple to the Ground, and build it afresh, they made him no answer, fearing, lest when he had pulled it down, he would not be so hasty to build it up again. But the King perceiving what they feared in their Minds, said he would not slack the matter not rest till he had brought it to pass. He said moreover, that he would take out of his Treasury plenty of Gold and Silver, and give it to graving, also precious Stones, Stones of Thasies and Marble. To the Carpenters also, and Masons, he would deliver Timber and Stones, Gold and Silver, Brass and Iron, to make all things necessary to the work. Wherefore if he pulled down the House, he was able to build it straightways again.

So he pulled down the House, and repaired it again, and finished it in length a hundred Cubits, all of white Marble, so that the whole height of the Stone was in all, an Hundred and twenty Cubits. For the Foundation, was 20 Cubits within the Ground, and 100 above. The breadth of every Stone was Twelve Cubits, and the thickness thereof Eight Cubits; every Stone was of like bigness: The Gates of the House he covered with fine Gold and Precious Stones finely set therein: The Thresholds were of Silver, and the Tops also. He made also a Vine of Gold, a marvelous cunning piece of work, the Arms thereof, or bigger Branches, were glittering Gold; the lesser Branches, Slips, or last shoots of Gold, somewhat Red, and all above was yellow Gold, whereupon hung clusters of Crystal. The Vine was so great that it weighed a Thousand pound weight of pure Gold. In all the World was not the like to be seen. He made also a Porch, and before the Porch two Walls of Silver, marvelously and cunningly wrought. Behind the House, toward the West, he made a Court of a hundred and fifty Cubits long, and a hundred in breadth, which was paved with pure Marble, toward the South and North. The length of the Court was also a Hundred and fifty Cubits, and 100 in breadth. He erected.
ereected in it also a Hundred and fifty Pillars of white Marble in Four Ranks. The length of one Rank was Forty Cubits, and every Pillar was Forty Cubits high, and Three Cubits thick.

The Pillars were all of like measure, as the Court of the North-side, and of the South was also of like measure, with all the Pillars thereof. Towards the East, the Court contained Seven hundred and Twenty Cubits, even to the Brook Cedron: No Man ever saw the like Building in all the World. The Vine that he made, placed he before the Porch. In the extrem parts of the Court, he made also Walks and Galleries of such height, that they that walked therein might easily see the Waters running in the Brook Cedron, by the space of a Cubit. Between the Porch and the House also (as though it were a Vail or Partition) the King made a Wall of Silver, of half an handful thick; in the which was a Door of beaten Gold, and upon the Gate a Sword of Gold, of twelve pound weight. There were certain Posies Graven in the Sword, as this; What Stranger soever approacheth nigh here, let him die for it. So the things that Herod made in the Temple were wonderful: Neither was there ever heard of, in all the World, any King that was able to erect such a Building.

When the Work was finished, the King sent to Saroas his Pastures for his Cattle; from whence were brought him Three hundred young Bullocks, and very many Sheep, according to his Princely Estate. So then they dedicated and hallowed the House with great Joy and Gladness.

There was one certain Day in the Year, when as the King was accustomed to make a great Feast to all all his Court, to all his Nobles and Sages in Israel: Against that self same day the King was minded to finish his Work, which made both him more glad, and all his People. The same also was commanded to be done in all the Provinces of his Kingdom, sending his Letters by his Pursuevants, to the Noblemen, Captains, and Presidents of the Provinces, that they would observe that Day after the same manner every Year. The People also that were squandered in their Enemies Countries, their head Rulers and Captains came out of every Country, far and near, to see the House and the King, for they could never believe it, till they had seen it: And when they had seen it, it exceeded far that they had heard of it.

These things done, the King's two Sons, Alexander and Aristobulus, which he had by Marim, came home from Rome to Jerusalem, in a great Heat and Fury, with a strong Company, yea their Hearts were very heavy also; for Alexander the elder had Married the King of Cappadocia's Daughter, and Aristobulus the Daughter of Salumith; the King his Fathers Sister. These coming to Jerusalem, went not to the Court to do their Duty to the King their Father, neither would they see him; whereby the King gathered, they were devising some Mischief against him: Moreover, all his Men gave him warning to take keed of them, and to keep his Power or Guard about him. He had a Wife of base Stock out of the Country, before he came to the Kingdom, by whom he had a Son named Antipater. And when he had put Marim his beloved Wife to death, he called home his Wife, which he had disdained before, to his Court.
Wherefore now, seeing the two Sons of Marimi hated him, he appointed Antipater, his Son, to be Heir apparent; and to raise his Estimation, he gave him all his Treasure, made him Lord and Ruler of all that he had; affirming, that he should reign after him. This Antipater had a subtle Wit, and his Talk was daily to his Father, If it like your Majesty, wherefore should you give me all these things, when as these two Lions shall be ever in my top, and ready to destroy me. By such surmis'd Means he raised Discord and Hatred between them and their Father, albeit the King was loath to hurt his two Sons.

Not long after, he took a Journey to Rome, to Octavian, and his Son Alexander waited on him, hoping that Octavian would be a Means for him to turn his Fathers Hatred from him, and put all Malice out of his Mind. When the King was come thither, Octavian rejoiced much at his coming, saying, I have thought long to see thee. To whom hast thou left the Land of Juda? Herod answered, for the Homage that I owe unto my Lord the Emperor, I am come to appear before him, and to declare my Chances with this my Son his Servant. So he told him the whole Matter, from the beginning to the end. Then Octavian Augustus blamed the young Man, because he hated his Father. The young Man answered, How can I otherwise do? How can I forget the most chaste Womb that bare me, which was the holy Stock? If I forget my Mother that was slain guiltless, and without Crime, then let me forget my right Hand. These, and such like Words, spake the young Man, not without Tears, in the presence of Octavian; so that his Bowels were much moved, and the Noblemen that were about about Otfavian could not abstain from weeping, but lamented greatly.

Otfavian first reproved Herod for his great Transgressions and Cruelty; then laboured he to pacifie the young Man with comfortable Words, bidding him to honour his Father, and to submit himself unto him. When he had done as he willed (for he would not strive against the Emperor's Commandment) Otfavian took the young Man by the Hand, and put it into Herod's Bosom. Then his Father kissed and embraced him, so that they both wept; after that, they took their leave and departed from Otfavian, who comforted them, and gave them a Gift, committing it into Herod's Hands.

Herod yet perceived, that the Hatred of the Children of Marimi would not be appeased: Whereupon when he came home to Jerusalem, he called together all the Elders of Israel, and said unto them, I had determined once to place one of my Sons Captain over the People of the Lord, but I might not do it without the Consent of Otfavian Augustus.

Now therefore I have appointed my Three Sons, and have divided my Kingdom equally amongst them: Help ye them against their Enemies, but in no wise shall ye help one of them against another: And if ye perceive any Breach of Friendship between them, do what lyeth in you to make it up: Whereunto he made them swear presently in Jerusalem; and the Bond being made, each Man departed home to his House.

But for all this, the Hatred between Antipater and his two Brethren was nothing diminished, for he feared them, because they were of the House of Chasmoname, and allied with King's of great Power;
Power; he suborned therefore false Accusers, to say unto the King that the young Men, Sons of Marimi, were determined to destroy him: Likewise he set Variance between Salumith and them; for she was in greater Estimation than he, insomuch that the King did nothing without her Counsel; the same wrought he also between Pheroras the King's Brother and them. But to Salumith he said, Doft thou not consider how the Sons of Marimi know that their Mother was put to Death by thy Counsel? Therefore if they may bring to pass to make the King away, they will hew thee to pieces. But when the young Men heard this, they came before the King, and swore they never intended to hurt their Father, and with weeping they so persuaded the King, that he believed them; and they got his Favour again: Whereat Antipater was not a little displeased, therefore he hired false Witnesses, to say they saw Alexander the King's Son, upon a certain Night, with his Sword drawn before the King's Palace, minding to Murther Antipater. He suborned also certain of the King's Servants to witness against Alexander, that he should give them great Rewards to allure them to his Pleasure, and to abuse them in unnatural Venery, which they refused. Moreover, that he desired them to poison the King, which they would not agree also to do: Whereupon the King was sore displeased towards him, commanding not only him, but all that took his part or defended his Integrity, to be apprehended and put in Prison, that Execution might be done upon them. Then Alexander writ unto Archelaus his Father-in-law, desiring him to come to Jerusalem to his Father Herod.
This Archelaus was a very wise Man, and a noble Counsellor: When he was come to Jerusalem, Herod was very glad of his coming, and demanded what Matters brought him thither at that present; he answered, I have heard that Alexander thy Son and my Son-in-law, hath attempted to rebel against thee; it is not possible but my Daughter his Wife should be necessary to this thing, and yet she hath not shewed it unto thee, wherefore I utterly detest her, as one that hath conspired against thee; yet nevertheless I know well, that for the love thou bearest unto me, thou would'st spare her, for this Cause I am come unto thee, that when thou hast put him to death, I also may slay my Daughter; for it is better that we should make them away, than they us.

Herod hearing this was very glad, and gave Credit to his Friendship: When Archelaus perceived that Herod had a good Opinion of him, he altered his Communication, saying to the King, First let us diligently examine, and well try the Cause, forasmuch as there are many false Witnesses, and lying Persons in the World, and let us not shed innocent Blood upon any uncertainty: For Archelaus had a great suspicion that Herod had given too light Credit, knowing how ready he was to hear an evil Tale, which was the Cause of the Mischief that befel upon the People of his House. Well, Herod thought his Counsel good. One of them that accused the King's Children, was Pheroras the King's Brother; and to say the Truth, he was the chief of all. Herod loved Archelaus, the King of Cappadocia, as himself Archelaus perceiving, turned his Tale to rebuke the King, saying, Thou art now waxen old, and well stricken in Years, thou sufferest these Back-biters to rule thee, who stir thee to work all these Mischiefs in thy House; yea, Pheroras thy Brother hath falsely provoked thee against thy Sons. When Pheroras heard these words, he was sore afraid, for indeed he had seduced the King. Therefore came Pheroras to Archelaus, and besought him to save his Life. Archelaus answered him, If thou wilt obtain Pardon for thy Wickedness, come and fall before his Feet, and confess that thou hast spoken falsely against his Sons, then I will promise thee that he shall be merciful unto thee, and to his Sons. Pheroras did so, confessed that he had falsely accused the King's Sons. Then Archelaus besought the King for Pardon, and he granted it; after that he entreated him that the young Men might be delivered out of Prison, which the King also commanded to be done. The young Men therefore came before the King, and fell down at his Feet, and the King was loving to them, and embraced them kindly. He made great Joy also, that Archelaus came in so good an hour to him, to whom he gave for Gift Seven hundred pound Weight of Gold, with many precious Stones, and Concubines, and dismissed him. But Antipater again suborned false Accusers, and writ counterfeit Letters, in the Name of the King's Sons, to one of the Captains, declared how they would conspire and kill the King; and by such means he encreased the Enmities between them and their Father many ways, that the King commanded them to be put in Prison, and most strong Irons to be laid upon them. Besides this, Antipater had surprized and won the Hearts of the King's chief Rulers and Servants, that they procured his Barber to bear false Witnesses.
witness against Alexander, how he hired him to kill the King at such time as he should shave his Beard. When the King heard his Barber speak, he was much troubled in his Mind, insomuch, that he said, I am weary of my Life, to hear these Pick-thanks, that open my Ears to fill my Head with Tales. I can do no way better, than to give Charge, that whosoever brings me any such occasions hereafter of any Body, shall suffer Death for it: Wherefore he commanded the Barber to be slain, and his two Sons to be brought forth and hanged upon Gallows's, shedding their innocent Blood.

Then rejoiced Antipater, supposing himself to be as sure of the Kingdom, as though it were in his Hands; when he was not aware, that although he was never so high aloft, yet was there one higher than he, who considered his Doings. Alexander had two Sons, Thigarus and Aristobulus; and Aristobulus had three Sons, Herod, Agrippa and Alexander.

When the King returned to Jerusalem (for he was in Samaria, by the Lake side, when his Sons were put to Death) he commanded that his Nephews should be brought to the Court, and taking pity on them, embraced and kissed them, weeping very sore, both he and all his Servants: For it greatly repented him for the heinous Deed that he had done. But when the time of Mourning was past, he called the chief of Israel together, and said unto them, I am now grown in Age, and waxen gray headed, uncertain how shortly I shall die. I see here before me these little fatherless Children, which I never can behold without great Anguish of Mind; for when I look upon them, I call to remembrance what great damage I have done unto their Father in my furi rious outrageousness. Now therefore I would commit them to the Tuition and Custody of some Man that might be a Patron and a Father unto them, to succour them continually with his Power. All the People answered that he had well spoken. He spake therefore unto his Brother Pheroras, Thou shalt be their Patron and Defender, and shalt give thy Daughter to Thygarus, Alexander's Son. He also commanded his Son Antipater to give his Daughter to Herod, Son of Aristobulus. And the Marriages were knit, and Composition made in the King's Presence.

When Antipater marked the Love that the King bare towards the Nephews, he began to be in great Care; for Thygarus, Alexander's Son, had a Grandfather by the Mothers side, a King of great Power; namely Archelaus, King of Cappadocia.

He falls down therefore at the King's Feet, to dissolve and break the Friendship that he bare towards his Nephews, and to leave speaking in their Cause as he had done, but he prevailed not. Therefore he left his Father, and went to Pheroras the King's Brother, made a Confederacy with him, and desired him to frustrate the Bond that was between himself and Herod, and also between him and Thygarus, the Son of Alexander, that was hanged. So Pheroras came to the King, turned his Mind, and dissolved the Covenant of Marriage. This done, Pheroras and Antipater (that fate upon the King's Throne) were become great Friends, banquetting one another Day and Night, and discoursing of their Affairs.

When this came to the King's Ear, he was sore afraid of their Combinings, and commanded that his his Brother Phæoras should for evermore be banished the Court. Antipater, his Son, was sent to Octavian Augustus, to establish the Kingdom unto him, and to enter in League with him: For Herod was so old, that he could not go.

Antipater journeying toward Rome, passed thorough Egypt, desirous to see it before the Death of his Uncle Phæoras: And as he travelled by the High-ways of Egypt, there came a certain Merchant with a Vial in his Hand, close covered, which cried, saying, Who will buy a thing of great Price before he see it? Antipater marvelled at his Words, and asked him what was in the Vial: But the Seller told him not what it was before he had bought it, and paid dear for it: Then whispered he in his Ear, telling him that it was a strong Poyson that would kill one out of Hand. This Vial Antipater sent to Phæoras, to be kept until he returned from Rome: In the mean Season Phæoras died, and his Wife hid the Vial. After, when Antipater came Home again from Rome, Phæoras’s Wife and he fell at Strife, insomuch, that the objected unto him, That he was the Cause Phæoras was banished the King’s Presence, the Sorrow whereof was his death. On the other side, Antipater went about to accuse her, sowing Discord between her and the King, to stir him against her. He suborned also a certain Eunuch or gelded Person, to go to the King, and inform him, how that at what time he took displeasure with Phæoras his Brother, and banished him his Presence, Phæoras procured a strong Poyson, and gave it to his Wife, commanding her to destroy the King therewith: The King hearing this, was wroth with the Eunuch, and said, I search-ched for that venom long ago, when it was noised that thy Household Servants would give it me to drink, but I could not find the thing to be true; yea, I have been too rash in such Matters, for I put my Wife Marimi to Death without cause, and Alexandra my Mother-in-law, with my two Children. When Antipater heard that the King credited not the Eunuch, he made suit to the King, to send him to Octavian the second time; for he was afraid of the Vial that was in Pheroras's Wife's House. He had writ also with his hand, how that he sent it, intending therewith to poison the King's Sons Children. But he that prepareth a Pit for another, oftentimes falleth into it himself: So desiring the King to send him, he let him go.

After this, the King commanded to make search, if the Eunuch's words were true or no; he sent first for Pheroras's Household Servants, and examined them whether ever they could perceive that Pheroras was in mind to hurt him. They all sware, No.

Then the King commanded to scourge them very sore, but they confessed nothing, although some died under their hands in the Examination: Some he ordered with many kind of Torments: Of some he caused to pluck out their Teeth; and as he had scourged a certain Woman-servant, which had been very trusty to Pheroras, at the length when she could no longer stand for strokes, she cryed out and said, The holy and blessed God revenge us on Rostios the King's Wife, Antipater's Mother, which is the cause of this. The King hearing these words, had let her alone, she will disclose all: Then spake she, Antipater made Feast every foot for
The Wars of the Jews.

For thy Brother Pheroras and himself, and as they eat and drank, they devised how to poison thee, especially whenas Antipater was going to Octavian, for they said, Except we destroy him, he will destroy us, as he hath done all the Children of his House. Moreover he loveth the Children of his Sons that were put to death, which grow apace, and it is possible he may change his Mind, and make one of them King. Antipater also said to thy Brother, the King makes as though he were much my Friend, but I trust him not; he gave me (faith he) a hundred pound Weight in Gold, but all that satisfies not me. When the King heard this, he told how he had given Antipater this Gold secretly: and the Woman said moreover, there is a Vial of strong Poison in Pheroras's House, that thy Son sent out of Egypt; straightway the King sent to Pheroras's Wife, that she should bring him the Vial of Poison her own self, when she saw the King's Eunuchs come to fetch her whether she would or no, she got up to the top of her House, and cast her self down head-long to kill her self, because she would not see the King, nor abide his Torments, but she did not thereof; whereupon the King's Messengers brought her in a Horse-litter, and set her before the King: Then she confessed to him, how Antipater his Son had conspired with Pheroras to kill him with a Poison that he had bought in Egypt, and sent it to Pheroras when he went to Octavian: and how Pheroras being at the point of Death, repented him thereof, charging that we should never give that Venom to Antipater, but pour it upon the Ground, that the King might not be poisoned therewith; and I did as
as he bade me, cast it out all, save a little that I kept in the Glass Bottom, for I ever feared that which is now come to pass.

Then at the King's Commandment, the Vial was brought forth before him, and there was a little of the Venome left, wherefore they give better Credit to her words; so that the King was content with her, and bad his Physician heal her: And she recover'd.

This done, the King writ to Antipater to come home with speed, because I am old ( faith he ) and weak, uncertain how shortly I shall die.

CHAP. IV.

The King had also two other Sons at Rome, Archelaus and Polemus: So when Antipater writ to answer his Father's Letters, he signified unto him, that his two Sons had defamed the King, and flandered him unto Octavian. But the King answered him, Come and bring them with thee, and I will order them as thou thinkest good. Notwithstanding Antipater lingered for the space of six Months, to see if he might learn something of his Father's Doings, but he could hear nothing: The Messengers his Father had sent, lay upon him every day, and urged him to make haste: Therefore, at the seven Months end, he took his Journey towards Judea, and came to Cesarea. There heard he his Father had taken Displeasure with his Mother, and banished her the Court, but he could not learn what should be the Cause, therefore he was stricken with such fear, that he would have gone back again. But they that waited upon him, him, being desirous to go home to their Houses and Families, dealt craftily with him, and persuaded him, that if he should now turn back out of his way he should justify his Enemies words to be true; but if thou come once to thy Father's Presence (say they) who loveth thee so entirely, thou wilt prevail against thy Foes, and get the upper hand of them that trouble thee.

So he followed their Counsel, and came to Jerusalem. When he entred into the City, no Man came forth to meet him, nor once to bid him welcome home: For all the People hated him for his Lyes, Slanders, perverse and wicked Counsel, but chiefly for fear of the King. Yet he went forward to the Court, although with a fearful Heart. When he came to the King's Presence, he fell down and did his Duty; but the King turned away his Face, and could not abide to look upon him. He went home therefore unto his House with a heavy Heart, hanging down his Head, and hiding his Face. Therefore his Mother told him how their Counsel concerning the Vial of Poison was bewrayed, and how the King was wonderfully incensed toward him; That it increased his fear more and more. The next day, by the King's Command, he was brought forth; and, before all the Chief of Israel assembled together, the King sate to Judge Antipater's Cause: There the King rehearsed unto them his Son's Lewdness and Lyes, how he had seduced him, and incited him to kill his Children that were of the King's Blood, far better and more virtuous than he; insomuch that with a loud Voice, the King burst out, and bewailed his Wife Mariam, whom he had put to death without a Cause, that his two Sons, that were far off, might hear him.
Then Antipater lift up his Head, and began to speak craftily and subtilly. First he forgot not to give gentle Words to pacifie his Father's Wrath, but that he could not do; after he fell to entreaty, in such sort, that all the Nobles were moved to pity, and bewailed his evil Fortune, not without Tears, save only Niraleus, the King's Secretary, who loved the King's Children that were put to death. He rebuked them all that were sorry for the Calamity of Antipater, crying with all his might, Where are ye Alexander and Aristobulus that were slain guiltless? Lift up your Heads and behold this wicked Man fallen into the Pit that he himself made; see how his Foot is caught in the Net that he himself laid for others. Mark you not how your Maker revengeth your Death, and requireth your Blood at his Hand in the time of his Destruction? For the wicked Man is spared until the time of his Death. So the King himself, very much incensed, sent to fetch a condemned Person out of Prison, who being brought before them, and tasting a little of the Poison in the Vial, fell down dead therewith.

Then the King commanded Antipater to be carried to Prison, and to be laid in strong Irons. The Fortieth Year of his Reign, which was the Seventieth Year of his Age, King Herod fell sick, and no Remedy, no Physick could be found to help him, neither his Servants nor Physicians could procure him any Rest, so grievously came his Disease upon him, with shortness of his Breath, and through the Anguish of the manifold Evils that had hapned upon him by his own Folk. Whereupon he cryed out, saying, Woe may he be that hath none left to succeed him in his Kingdom, or none to go before his Coffin, and mourn for for him at his Death. Then called he to his remembrance his Wife Marimi, and his Sons, rehearsing them by name, howling and weeping still continually. Upon a certain day, when his Sickness came sore upon him, he called to his Servants to fetch him some pleasant Apple, to see if it might comfort his Heart; and when they had brought it, he asked for a Knife to cut it, and one was brought him. Then he gathered his Strength unto him, and reared himself upon his left Arm, and perceiving his Life to be full of Sorrow and Lamentation, he took the Knife with his right Hand, and fetched his Sway to thrust it into his Belly; but his Servants stepped to him, and caught his Arm, holding his Hands, and would not suffer him to do it. Then he wept sore, and all his Servants, that their Voice was heard out of the Court, and shortly all the City was in an Uproar, saying, The King is dead, the King is dead. Antipater being in the Prison, heard the noise, and asked what Business is this? They answered him, The King is dead. Then he rejoiced wonderfully, saying unto the Jaylor, Strike off my Irons, and let me out, that I may go to the Palace, and I will remember thee with a good Turn. The Keeper answered, I fear lest the King be yet alive; I will go therefore and know the Truth, and come again by and by. Antipater seeing he could not get loose, wept for Anger at the Keeper: So the Keeper came to the Court; which being told to the King, he commanded him to be brought before him: Then the King asked him, What did Antipater (I pray thee) when he heard this Mourning, and that I was dead? The Keeper answered, He was very glad thereof, and when I would not smite off his Irons, and let him out, he wept for Anger. The King cried unto his Lords Lords, see how he hated me, being yet in Prison, if he were here, he would do what he could to kill me, he would not do as my Servants did, make haste to wrest the Knife out of my Hand. As true as God liveth, he shall never have that which he gapeth for; so the King commanded he should be put to Death; and there was not one that would intreat for him, or desire the King to the contrary, but every Man was glad of his destruction.

The King commanded the Keeper to bring him forth to the Market-place; which done, his Head was cut off, and so he misfled of his purpose; moreover, the King commanded his Body to be taken and carried to the City of Ankalia, there to be buried, but not in the City: That done, and the People being returned from the Burial, the King sent to call all the Nobles of Israel together; and enforcing his strength, he sat up in his Bed, and commanded to call his Son Archelaus, on whom he laid his Hands, and made him King over Israel; then shouted every Man, God save the King. The King lived five days after the Execution of Antipater, then he fainted and died. He reigned over Israel 40 Years; he was a worthy Warrior, a wife and prudent Man, a goodly Man of Person, having God on his side. He ever loved the Sages, Hillel and Samai, with their Companions: He enriched the second House more than all other Kings, and was more liberal than all the Kings that were before him. His Gifts and Rewards were rich, for he counted Gold and Silver as Chaff and Stones: He kept Israel in peace from all his Enemies; he builded also a fairer Temple than K. Solomon: But he made the Yoak of tribute and exaction in Israel more heavy, and gave open Ear to evil Tongues. He
He was a cruel Blood-shedder of poor and innocent Persons, and Archelaus his Son reigned in his room. He willed before his Death, that they should bury him in the City Erodion, Two Days Journey and a half from Jerusalem: So they put him in a Coffin covered with Gold, set here and there with Precious Stones, the Bed under him was wrought with Gold and full of Precious Stones, likewise upon his Head was a Cloth of Bayes, powdered with precious Stones, and upon that a Royal Crown, made fast to the Left-side of the Coffin, and on the Right-side was a Regal Scepter; upon the Bier was also a Cloth of Bayes, very thick powdered with precious Stones, Crystal, Amethysts, and very many Sapphires. Then all the chief Men of War went about him in their Coats of Fence, and drawn Swords in their hands, with Helmets on their Head, as in the time of War. After them came Archelaus his Son, that was made King; then followed him all the People. There were fifty of his Servants that went about the Bier, every one having a Chafing dish of Gold in his Hand, wherein they burnt sweet Woods and Perfumes continually; as many as went about him, casting upon the Hearse pure Myrrh. He was born by certain great Lords, and Noblemen of Israel, upon their shoulders, going leisurely, and with a Majesty, till they came to Erodion, where they buried him with great Honour, the like was never done to any King. These things done, there referred together such as hated Herod, and were weary of their own Lives whiles he lived, rejoicing that they had escaped his Hands; saying, We have looked till our Eyes blearèd, waiting for the Death of Herod that Tyrant, and Blood-shedder, that oppressed us with such heavy Yokes, that left us nothing to live on, for the Tributes and Taxes that he laid upon us; yet now Archelaus his Son is worse than he. Wherefore they consulted together, and cast their Minds and good Will toward Antipater, the Son of Salamith, the King's Sister, one of the blood of Chasmoname, and went with him to Octavian Augustus, requesting him to translate the Kingdom from Archelaus to Antipater; but he would not grant them their Suit. Yea, he rather confirmed and assured the Kingdom to Archelaus, who wrought Wickedness in the sight of the Lord, for he married his Brother Alexander's Wife, that had Children by Alexander, and committed many great Offences.

The Ninth Year of Archelaus's Reign, it chanced upon a Night he dreamed a Dream: He thought he saw nine Ears of Corn, very good and full grown, upon one Stalk; then came a great Ox and did eat them up all at one bit; by and by he awaked, and perceived it was a Dream; therefore calling one of the Sages of Israel unto him, he shewed him his Dream: The Wise man said, this is the Interpretation of it: The nine Ears fresh and full, be the nine Years which thou hast Reigned; The great Ox is the great King Octavian Augustus; This Year thou shalt be removed from thy Kingdom, because thou hast neglected the Word of God, and hast married thy Brother's Wife: To this Archelaus answered him neither good nor bad. Within Five Days after, Octavian came towards Jerusalem; and when Archelaus went to meet him, he put him in Prison, deposed him from the Kingdom of Israel, and made Antipas his Brother King in his stead: He turned his Name also, and called him Herod; that done, he returned to Rome. While Antipater was King, died the Emperour Octavian.
Octavian Augustus, in the Fifty Sixth Year of his Reign, and Tiberius Caesar succeeded him.

This Antipas also wrought Wickedness in sundry Abominations more than any that was before him, for he took his Brother Philip's Wife from him which had already Children by Philip; for this shameful Deed, Rabbi John Baptist, the High Priest, rebuked him, wherefore Antipas put him to Death.

There was at that time one Jesus, a Wise Man, if it be lawful to call him a Man, for he was a Worker of wonderful Works, and a teacher of such Men as gladly did hear the truth; and had many Disciples, both of the Jews, and also of the Gentiles. This Man was Christ, who after he was accused of the chief Rulers of our Nation, and condemned by Pilate to be Crucified, was nevertheless much beloved by them, who loved him even from the beginning. To these he appeared the third day alive, according as the Prophets by Divine inspiration had told before, as well of this, as also of many other things which should be done by him. And even to this Day the Christian Sett, which took their name of him, continueth.

Against this Man Antipas before-named, came Tiberius, Emperor of Rome, to whom when Antipas repaired, he apprehended him, laid him in Irons, and sent him into Spain, where he Died: Archelaus also that was deposed before, died in the time of this Tiberius's Reign. Then Tiberius made Agrippa (the Son of Aristobulus whom Herod put to Death) Antipas's Brother, King in his stead. The time that Antipas Reigned over Israel, was Eleven Years. In Agrippa's time died Tiberius Caesar, and Caius succeeded him: This Caius called himself a God, and would suffer no Man to worship any thing in his Empire but himself: He continued not long in this Dignity, but decayed and died. After him succeeded Claudius.

Claudius being dead, Nero Cæsar was Emperor, Agrippa Reigned over Israel 23 Years. In his time Nero sore oppress’d Israel, by setting cruel Presidents over them, which left them nothing to live upon; and besides that, he punished them with divers Torments, until at length they were constrained to rebel against the Roman Empire and Nero Cæsar; to rid themselves from under his Subjection. And above all other, one Florus, President and Captain of the Roman Army, most grievously oppress’d the Jews, and had done many Things very wickedly. For not only he shed innocent Blood, ravishing at his Pleasure, Wives, and deflowering Maids in the Cities of Juda, but also robbed, with great Cruelty, every Man of his Goods; he polluted the Temple, and upon the Beams thereof, he hung those that he took Displeasure at.

It chanced that Berenice, King Agrippa’s Sister, came at that time to Jerusalem out of Devotion to visit the Holy Place. She seeing Florus violently oppress’d the People, and for payment of Exactions and Tallowage to slay many of them, even at the entrance of the Temple, she came forth weeping unto Florus, beseeching him to spare the People; for she pitied them very greatly: Yet Florus relented nothing; but when she was departed from him, he flouted and mock’d her, though she were the King’s Sister, and that in the Temple of the Lord.

There was present at that time, a valiant young Man, Eleazar the Son of Anani the High-Priest. He, while his Father was executing his Office, could not not abide to see the Israelites so mis-used at Florus's Hands; but being kindled with a fervent Zeal, found a Trumpet, whereby there assembled about him forthwith divers Companies of young Men, goodly Warriors, by whose Aid he raised a great Commotion, and encountered with Florus and the Roman Soldiers, of whom he made great Slaughter, prevailing much; and getting at length the upper Hand of Florus, overthrew all the Host, so that Florus was constrained to fly alone out of Jerusalem into Egypt. In the way as he fled, he chanced to meet with King Agrippa coming from Rome, from Nero Cæsar, and going home into Judea, to whom Florus declared what had hapned to him through the Youth of the Jews at Jerusalem: And as Agrippa had passed Egypt, and drew toward Jerusalem, his Sister Berenice directed her Letters unto him, moving him to rejoin with the Jews, and to aid them; the People also came wholly the space of Forty Miles out of the City of Jerusalem to meet him, and fell down flat before him, crying, God save our King Agrippa: But the King studied all he might to procure Quietness and Peace to the City, and People. So he entered into Jerusalem, accompanied with two Noble-men of Rome, worthy Captains, whom he brought with him in his Train; and when he came into the midst of the City, the People cried mainly out unto him, saying, Deliver us, O King, and let thy Hand and Help be on our side to succour us, for we will never more be under the Roman Subjection. The King hearing this, pitied the People very much, notwithstanding, he was not content that they were minded to rebel against the Roman Empire. Wherefore he called the Peopeople together at the entrance of the Court of the Temple, where were present the Elders of Israel, and all the chief Men, with the High-Priest Anani, and declared unto them the Power of the Romans, the Strength of their Kingdom, and what Nations round about them they had subdued, in such fort, as no remainder of them was left: Wherefore he besought them not to provoke the Romans, nor to destroy the People remaining in Israel.

He added moreover, If ye will give ear to mine Advice (faith he) I know it well, dear Brethren, that there resteth in your Heart a great Grief, and I myself am full of Sorrow and Anguish, that we are not of power to withstand the Romans; albeit if you will be ruled by Counsel, ye shall find a Redress for this Matter. For where Counsel is, and good Deliberation, there's safety, and things come to prosperous Success; ye shall sustain for a while the Toak of the Roman Captains, till I certify Nero of the Matter by my Letters, and intreat him to rid us of these Rulers. I beseech you be not hasty of Liberty: Many seeking Liberty, have fallen into further Captivity and greater Bondage; there be among our People many evil disposed Persons whose delight is in Wars, for it is their whole study, amongst whom many good Men do also perish; wherefore hear my Words. As for them that be Wise, they may perceive the Matter themselves; they that lack Experience, let them learn Wisdom at my Sayings. Keep therefore silence, which shall be as well to mine as your own Commodity, for I shall not need to strain my self, but speak the softer with less pain; and ye on the other side may the better hear and understand what I say. If ye hold not your peace, ye shall have two Discommodities; ye shall interrupt my com-communication, and hinder your selves from bearing. But now to the purpose: Ye shall be content, and suffer till I write to Rome of these Matters, that Caesar may remove these evil Rulers, and send us them that be more humane and gentle; if ye may have such an one, then shall you not think your selves in Bondage, but in Liberty; and worthy, for them only is servitude grievous, when as the Ruler is an unjust Man; and wicked. Now therefore stay your selves, quarrel not with them for although they be wicked, yet will they be ashamed to do wrong openly, for what they do, they do it secretly; but if you should accuse them too much, they would rub their Foreheads, and do it openly without all shame; so should you make of your Judges and Rulers your open enemies. But it were far better to suffer an unjust Governor than a just Enemy, for the one robbeth Men privately, the other is an open destroyer; provoke them not therefore. Consider the wild Beasts, that be under Mens power, and kept in Chains, as Lions, Bears, and Leopards: If a Man let them alone, they are quiet and harm no Man: But if a Man go to their Dens and anger them, they will fly upon him and worry him, and others too that be present: The same ye may perceive in a Fever and an Ague, which if a Man will go about to cure at the beginning, he shall make it more grievous; but if he will remedy it by leisure, the fervency of it will easily be quenched. Now therefore refrain your selves, and take heed that you draw not Caesar upon your heads, and the whole Roman Empire: Caesar coveteth not your harm, neither sent unto you these Rulers to hurt you, his eyes cannot see from East to West, nor his hand reach from Rome hither, for it is flesh and blood; but if you will abide till I may send Embassadors to Caesar, I doubt not but I shall remove these Rulers, and rid you of them peaceably, without any War.
or Bloodshed, if ye be utterly determined to resist the Roman Empire, ye shall understand ye be in no wise able to do it, for God is every where on their side, so that they be Lords throughout all the World, and all People serve them, and shall do so till their End shall come: But if you will not do this for your Sakes, yet do it for your own Countries Sake, your Children and Wives, the Sanctuary and Priests, whom ye are bound to love and spare, lest you cast away and undo them all at once. I beseech you take my words in good part, for I have spoken nothing but what is for your good, and that may further our peace with the Romans, which I most wish. If you will be ruled and choose Peace, I will take your Part, and do the best I can for you; but if you will needs have War, ye shall have it alone for me, I will not meddle with you.

With this, Agrippa fell on weeping, and so did also all the Elders with him, and the Men of most Wisdom, the chief in all Israel; yea, Anani the High-Priest also, could not refrain from Tears: Notwithstanding, Eleazar his stout Son, with his routs of Warlike Young-men about him, they wept not at all, nor would hearken or give any ear to wholesome Counsel, but all at once, with their drawn Swords, violently rushed upon the Roman Captains that came with Agrippa, and slew them, their Men, and all the Multitude that was with him in Jerusalem and Judea. The Elders in Judea, with the wisest and goodliest Israelites, seeing what was done, departed from Jerusalem, fearing Nero and the Cruelty of the Romans: Therefore they took the Town of Sion, and remained there, for they would not be taken of the Romans to be of the same Confederacy with the other: The Seditious Seditious hearing that, took the Temple of the Lord; so Sedition and Civil Wars fell between the Seditious and the Ancients: For when Eleazar heard, that the Elders and the Heads of the People were fled to the Mount Sion, he and his Company set upon them, prevailed against them, and flew a great many of them; Agrippa perceiving the Power of the Seditious grew apace, he sent out of his Camp, where he lay without the Town, two Valiant Captains, one named Darius, the other Philippus, with 6000 Men to succour those Elders and Sages that were desirous of Peace: These prevailed against Eleazar, and the Seditious that took his part; made a great slaughter of them, skirmishing for the space of Seven Days together, and at length put them to flight, and pursued them to the Temple. From that time forth the Wars increased more and more, between Eleazar and his Complices, and Agrippa with his Host, and the Sages, Elders, and Princes that took their part. Upon a time when the Captains of Agrippa entred the Temple, certain Cutthroat Murtherers, raised by the Seditious, mixt themselves amongst the King's Bands, and getting behind their Backs, wounded them with Daggers that they had under their Jackets; so that the King's Soldiers having Lances, and great arming Swords in their Hands, such as they use in the Wars, could not wield them in the Press; by this means many of them were slain, and the Seditious got the Victory. Thus Darius and Philippus, with the Roman Army, were put to flight; and the Elders with the Sages, that were desirous of Peace, departed out of Town and fled to K. Agrippa. Then had Eleazar and the Seditious, the whole Rule of the City, and all to to their great Damage: For the fury of the Seditious increased to such Outrages, that they set on fire King Agrippa's House that he had in Jerusalem, spoiled all his Treasure, and all that was any thing worth they divided amongst themselves. They burnt the Books of Accompts, and Bills of Debts, every one that were in his Palace. Berenice's House also, the King's Sister, they set on fire: And they slew also the cunning Artificers that were Masters of the King's Works; so their Rule and Power in the City grew every Day more and more grievous than other.

C H A P. V.

IN those Days dwelt the Jews and Aramites together in all the Cities of Syria, amongst whom also was War waged: For the Caesareans brought the Romans into the Town against the Jews, and slew them as many as they could find in the Town. The Damascians also conspired together to destroy all the Jews that dwelt amongst them, which thing they kept secret from their Wives, because for the most part they favoured the Jews Religion. Therefore the Aramites upon a certain Night, Armed for the purpose, beset all the Ways and Entrances into the Town, and Houses also, and slew about Ten thousand of the Jews, coming upon them unawares, when they were in their Beds, nothing mistrusting any such Matter. When the Jews of Jerusalem heard how the Aramites had dealt with the Jews in their Country, suddenly they put themselves in Arms, and in a Fury and Rage, like as it had been Lions and Bears that had lost their Whelps, they ran to Damasco, burnt their Holds, put the Damascians to the Sword, Men, Women and Children, even the very fucking Babes: yea, their Oxen, Sheep, Camels and Asses, with all other Cattel, leaving none alive. And thus they dealt with many Cities of the Syrians, slaying and killing them, not sparing either Old or Young, Male or Female, but destroyed all in most cruel wise; even the very Infants and Sucklings they haled from their Mother's Breasts, and murdered them insomuch, that all the whole Land was full of the stink of the dead Bodies that were slain, for there was no Man left to bury the Carcasses. So the Jews wasted all the Land of the Aramites, and had destroyed it, had not Cassius, a Captain of the Romans, delivered Syria and the Country of Zapha. The People therefore departed wholly from Aram, to return into Judea, and in the way they came to Scythopolis, a City in Syria, intending to besiege it, for it was yet left untouched, and was very strong: At that time also the Jews and Aramites dwelt together in it. The Jews therefore that were without, offered peace to the Jews that dwelt in the Town, but they refused it and defied them, railing at them, and for their friendly Offer, requited them with opprobrious Words, and with Injuries also.

For those Jews that dwelt in the aforesaid City, with the Aramites, lived together like Brethren, and for the most part they were of the Levitical Tribe, stout Men and hardy. The Host of the Jews without the City said unto them: We come friendly unto you, and would aid you. The other Jews within answered: We will neither your Friendship nor nor Aid: The Army of the Jews hearing that, consented and agreed to raise their Siege, to go to Jerusalem, and there to remain, for they had a great Booty of Gold and Silver that they had gotten together of the Spoils of Syria.
The Wars of the Jews.

After this, the Syrians that dwelt in Scythopolis said to one another, put cale the Jews return again and make War upon us, surely if they should so do, these Jews that dwell among us would join with them, and deliver up the City into their Hands, and then would they be revenged upon us, and destroy us, as they have done the other Cities of Syria: Therefore they agreed to say unto the Jews and Inhabitants of the City with them, We understand your Country-men will Invade us again, and make War upon us, wherefore depart ye forth of the City with your Wives and Children, and lodge in the Wood nigh unto the City, till their Army be gone again, and then you shall return unto us. The Jews were content to fulfil their Minds, went out of the City and placed themselves in the Wood.

There was amongst them a certain young Man, named Schimeon, a good Man of War, fierce, big made, and very strong withal; he in the favour of the Gentiles had slain many Jews, and destroyed much of the People of God. For during the time that the Jews besieged Scythopolis, he issued out continually, and skirmished with the Host of the Jews, many times putting them to flight, and never would suffer them to waste the Town, or to do any harm to the Inhabitants thereof.

Now as Schimeon with his Father Saul, an honest old Man, and the rest of the People of the Jews that dwelt in Scythopolis, remained together boldly in in the Wood, without mistrusting any harm, the Romans joined with the Syrians in great Number, entred the Wood and slew the Jews, all that ever they could find, to the Number of Thirteen thousand: Schimeon himself, with his Father, and their Families, had pitched their Tents nigh unto a fair Fountain that was in the Wood, to whom, when their Enemies came to slay them, and destroy their whole Families, Schimeon ran upon them with his drawn Sword, made a great slaughter of them, and constrained them to retire: But when a great Multitude environed him, and he perceived all the rest of the Jews were slain, he with the Household only remaining, neither saw he any way to escape, he stept upon a little Hill with his naked Sword, saying, Hearken unto me ye Syrians and Romans, and ye that dwell in Scythopolis. I will speak unto you a few words of Lamentation. Now I perceive that justly and not without a Cause, ye make War against me, without any favour or consideration that I delivered you from the Host of the Jews, and never suffered them to do any Displeasure to you, your Wives and Children, nor to your City, as they had done to other Cities of Syria. For I am he, that for your Sakes have Warred against my Countrymen to please you withal: Yea, both their Blood, and mine, have I pledged unto you: And have kept inviolated the Love of Strangers, hating my own People, of whom for your Pleasures I have slain oft both the Fathers and the Children; and now ye render Evil for the Good I have done unto you. But indeed God of his just Judgment hath stirred you up to reward me in this sort, to murther me, that have so often preserved you: Now therefore ye shall bear me witness that I shall sufficiently and sharply enough, take Vengeance of of my own Life, not without rage and fury, most severely, because I have slain my Fellows and Friends; I will therefore lay my self to be avenged of my self, for my Brother's Blood that I have shed; and so shall be revenged of their Blood, and ye shall well perceive me to be of that Courage, that rather than ye shall slay me, and after Boast and Brag how ye have killed Schimeon, I will bereave my self of my Life, and punish the shedding of my Brother's Blood no otherwise than the Law punisheth a Murtherer and Man-killer.

When he had spoken this, his Eyes were filled with Blood, and his Face with Rage, and so inflamed with Fury; laying apart all pity, ran and caught hold of his Father, haled him out of the Wood, and flew him. Then flew he his Mother, left she should intreat him for the Children, and be sorry for their Sakes: That done, his Wife came running of her own accord, and held her neck down to the Sword, left she should be constrained to see her Children die. Yea, Schimeon's Children came and offered themselves to be slain, left they should see the Death of their Father, or remain after him to be delivered to the Enemies. After this, he flew all his whole Family, that not one of his should come into the Hand of their Enemies. Finally, he gathered their Bodies together into one place, like a Valiant stout Warrior, and then boldly goared himself on his own Sword, left any Man else should impair his strength, or boast that he had killed him.

All this Schimeon did with a great Courage, to take punishment of himself, because he had bestowed his Love rather upon Strangers than upon his own People, and to declare his Force and Manhood.
So he died an abominable and detestable Death, save only it was an Argument of his haughty Mind and great Courage, as it is said before.

Now when the Jews had thus Rebelled against the Romans, and slain their Soldiers and Captains, King Agrippa went to Rome, and recounted unto Nero Caesar, the Emperor of Rome, all that was hapned; whereupon Nero sent Captain Cassius (that was at that time in Syria, and had made War upon the King of Persia, and vanquished him and all his Power, and subdued his Dominions to the Romans) and with him a Puissant Army of the Romans, commanding him to go into Judea to offer Peace unto the People, to comfort them, and to bring them again into League with the Romans, if it might be. Cassius therefore took his Journey towards Judea, Agrippa met him in the way, and informed him what had hapned unto him concerning the Jews; how he had offered them Peace, and they would have none of it; how also they had burnt his Palace, and sacked it. Cassius hearing that, was very glad that he had gotten such an occasion to Revenge the Blood of the Romans and Syrians, which the Jews had shed: Wherefore he levied a mighty Army and came to Cesarea, and wheresoever he did espy the goodliest Buildings, those caused he to be burnt. From thence went he to the City Japha, which he besieged both by Land and Sea, and at length won it, where he flew in the Streets 8400 Men. After that he came to Judea, where he first burnt all the Country about it, and whomsoever he caught without the Town, he flew them: But the Citizens of Zippory went out to meet Cassius, and besought him for peace, whom he he spared, he came not nigh their Town, nor flew any that dwelt in their Country. The Seditious Jews that were in the City of Zippori, hearing of Cassius's coming, fled unto the Mountains, but in the way they lighted upon part of Cassius's Army, whereof they flew 200 Men, and wounded their Captain Glaphyra: Yet at length the Seditious were put to flight, and many of them, Glaphyra with his Horsemen pursu'd, overthrew and destroyed; the rest fled to the Mountains. Then Glaphyra, Captain of Cassius's Army, went to Cæsarea, that was subdued to the Romans, there to cure his Wounds that the Jews had given him. Thence went he to Antipire, which as he would have assaulted, he perceived it to be furnished with a great Power of the Jews and Seditious: These hearing Cassius also was coming, they went purposely to fight with him; but perceiving that Cassius's Power was very great, they determined to encounter with him in the Plain of Gibeon, Fifty miles from Jerusalem: Whereupon the Jews with their Companies feigned themselves to fly, to the intent they might draw the Romans after them; and within six Days they came to Gibeon, and there rested: Cassius pursu'd after them with all his Host, till he came to Gibeon, which he Besieg'd and Assaul- ted also. It chanced then upon one of the Sabbaths in the Morning Watch, the Jews (Armed at all points) issu'd out of the Town, to give their Enemies a Camisado; so after they had given a Token of War, they Marched toward the Host of Cassius, whereof they flew 515 Horsemen, and Footmen Twenty seven thousand, with the los's of only 22 of their own Company. In that Battle did well appear the Valiantness of Mugbas, a Captain of the
The Wars of the Jews.

the Jews Army. One Blaudius also played the Man at that same time; for at the Commandment of Eleazer the Priest, chief of the Seditious, he set first Foot within the Roman Camp. Then began the Jewish Warriors to be famous, after they had once so manfully encountred with the Romans. This done, Cassius and Agrippa sent their Ambassadors once again to Jerusalem, to Eleazer, the Son of Anani the Priest, chief of the Rebels that were in Judea and Jerusalem, requiring Peace, and to come in League with Eleazer, left the People of the Jews should be utterly destroyed by the Romans Incurions, and Invasions on every side. But Eleazer refused to hear the Legates, and slew one of them, because he made too many words, in persuading the Peace and League.

Upon this, Eleazer assembled the Priests and People together, to go out and fight with Cassius. Cassius perceiving how Eleazer, and the People were affected, and what minds they were of, how they had utterly conspired to destroy the Romans that were there, and to consume them clean, having a sufficient trial also of the Force and Valian\-nels of the Rebels; he determined fully to go to Rome, for he perceived he was not able to match with the Seditious, neither his own Power to be compared with theirs. Wherefore he would go see what end should come of the Wars, and what Counsel Caesar's Majesty would give. Taking his Journey there-fore to the City of Japha, he found there Letters of the Romans, for thither was their Army come. From thence went he with them and his own Army to Rome, and made report to Caesar of such things as had chanced: Whereat Nero was much abashed, and not only he, but all the People of Rome were fore atto-
nied to hear of the great Puissance and Valiantness of the Jews: For which Cause the War ceased for that Year, so that the Land of Judea was at great rest, and quietness that Year, through Eleazer's means, the head Rebel, especially from the hands of wicked Cassius, that had sworn to revenge the Romans, to extinguish the Jews, and that he would destroy all the Race of them, as none should be left alive.

Therefore these are they that delivered Israel in the time of the second Temple, out of the Hands of their Enemies: What time as Wars were moved against the Jews and their Country: What time also Commotions and Tumults began in Israel. The first War was made by Antiochus the wicked King of Macedonia; who had determined not to leave one Man in Israel. His mischievousness proceeded so far that he slew the People of God, the Sages, and wise Men, Princes, Elders, and young Men, Children great and small, Israelites, Levites also, and Priests, until all the chief Men of Judea cast their Heads together, and went to Mattathias Son of Jochanan the High-Priest in the Mount of Modiit, where he hid himself for the Iniquity of Antiochus and his Rulers, crying upon him, and saying, Deliver at this Season the People of the Lord, and never think to escape thy self, whilst the most wicked Enemy rangeth thus, and runneth upon thy People, and sheddest thy Blood: For the Blood of all Israel, what is it but thy Blood? and the Eyes of every Man are fixed on thee, hoping that thou shouldst assist and aid them in this Calamity, that they may find deliverance by thy means.

Mattathias
Mattathias hearing this, wept bitterly, and said,
Fear ye not, nor let these Macedonians dismay you; the Lord shall fight for you, be ye only quiet. So then was Mattathias stirred, and delivered Israel out of the Hands of Antiochus, and after he had overcome him, he was High-Priest for one Year, and then died. In whose room succeeded Judas his Son, who executed the Office in the Temple six Years, and was slain in Battle. Then his Brother Johanan was chief in the Temple eight Years, and died likewise in Battle. Afterwards his Brother Simeon was Ruler eighteen Years, whom Ptolomey, his Wife's Father poisoned at a Banquet.

Then Johanan his Son succeeded his Father in the Office; this is, he that was named Hircanus, first of that name so called, because he vanquished a King of that name: He reigned 31 Years, and died.

After him reigned Aristobulus one Year; he was called the great King, because he first put the Royal Crown upon his Head, and turned the Dignity of the High Priesthood into a Kingdom, unhallowing and staining the Holiness thereof, 480 Years and three Months after the returning of Israel from Babylon. He being dead, his Brother Alexander reigned 27 Years: After whose death Alexandra, his Wife, held the Kingdom nine Years, and then died. In whose stead succeeded her Son Aristobulus, and reigned three Years. In this time Pompey, a Roman Captain, came against Jerusalem, won it, and apprehended Aristobulus, bound him in Irons, and carried him Captive to Rome; in whose place he ordained Hircanus, his Brother, to succeed, who reigned forty Years. During his Reign rebelled Antigonus, Son of Aristobulus, Hircanus's Brother, and with the aid of an Army of the Persians, encountered with Hircanus, took him Prisoner, and sent him to Babylon, cutting off his Ears, that he should never after be meet either for the Priesthood, or for the Kingdom. Antigonus reigned three Years. In his days Herod fled, and joined himself with the Romans, by whose help he flew Antigonus the Third Year of his Reign, and reigned after him 32 Years, and then died. After Herod, succeeded Archelaus his Son, who was taken by the Romans, the ninth Year of his Reign, laid in Bonds, and ended his Life at Rome. Next to him reigned Antipater his Brother, who changed his Name and called himself Herod; he reigned full ten Years, overcame and wasted Spain, because the King of Spain had ravished and taken away his Brother's Wife, and there died.

After him followed Agrippa, Son of Aristobulus, that was his Brother's Son; he reigned Three and twenty Years, after whose death his Son Agrippa reigned twenty Years. This is that Agrippa, of whom we now speak, and of the Calamity that befel in his time upon Israel; for all the while he reigned, the Wars between the Romans and Israel never ceased, until the People of Judea were led Captive into the Provinces of the Romans: At that time also the Temple was desolate, I mean the desolation of the second Temple, which we saw with our Eyes builded and destroyed.

The 20th Year of the Reign of King Agrippa, the 9th day of the 5th Month that is called Ab, viz. July, Nero Cesar sent a Present for a Burnt-Offering, to be offered at the Temple in Jerusalem, requiring Peace of the Elders and Sages of Judea and Jerusalem,
The Wars of the Jews:

J e a l e m, and that they would receive him into League with them, saying, My Request is, That you would offer my Present to the Lord your God, for his Service and Religion likest very well: So that I desire you to join in League with me, according as you have done with the Emperors of Rome, my Predecessors in time past. I have heard what Cassius, the Captain of mine Army, hath done to you, which displeasest me out of measure; wherefore I assure unto you a faithful League, by the Consent and Counsel of the Senate of Rome, that hereafter there shall never any Roman Captain stir Hand or Foot against you, but rather your Chieftains, Rulers and Judges, shall be all Jews and of Jerusalem: Yea, Agrippa your King, shall be Lord of all your Rulers, and what he commands you shall do it; the Romans shall only be called your Lord, and have no more to do with you.

So when the Legates came to Jerusalem, they went and spake with Anani the Priest, informing him of Nero's Mind, and shewed him his Present, placing it afore him. The Present was this; A Bull for a Burnt-offering, with a Crown of Gold upon his Head, his Horns also were covered with Gold; upon him was a Cloath of Purple, powdred with precious Stones; there went certain before him that carried ten Talents of Gold, behind followed very many Sheep for Peace-offerings. When Eleazer, Anani's Son, heard thereof, he came and cast out of the Temple the Lord Nero Caesar's Presents, saying, We will not profane and unhallow the Sanctuary of our Lord, with the Offerings of Strangers; for God will accept neither their Burnt Offerings nor their Peace-Offerrings. When he had so said, he founded a Trumpet, set his Men in Array against the Hoard of the Romans, that kept Watch and Ward in the City of Jerusalem, and slew many of them that Day, with one of their Captains also, and another they took alive; he being a valiant Man; and seeing the Routs of the Jews to urge him grievously, said unto them, Save my Life and I will yield; unto whom Eleazer the Rebel sware that he would not slay him, but spare him for his Manhood (for he had slain very many of the Jews before) whereupon he yielded himself.

Then Eleazer said unto him: Like as thy Sword hath made many Women childless, so shall thy Mother be made Childless of thee above all others, and therewith contrary to his Oath, he commanded his Servants to kill him. King Agrippa seeing this, was wonderful sorry. Therefore as he stood in one of the Streets, he cryed, O thou Rebel Eleazer, I pray God that this Mischief, whereof thou art Cause, and thy Sons, may light upon thee, and thy Father's House; which when it cometh to pass, we shall never be dismayed at. It appeareth they shall have somewhat to do, that study to make Peace and Tranquility in thy Days; for they are sure to be destroyed with thee. How long wilt thou continue to bring us into the Bryars, thou Enemy and Hater of the Lord? why dost thou destroy and waste the Vineyard of the Lord God of Hosts?
Eleazer answered him, What, takest thou upon thee
the name of the King; if thou be a King, why commandest thou not us to be punished? Where be thy valiant Soldiers? Let's see, come thou and they together and chasten Men, that it may be tryed whether thou be indeed a King or no; thou standest aloof off, and when thou speakest, thy Feet are ready to run away, as though a Dog should set himself against an armed Man,
man, and bark at him, bleating out his Tongue. With this he winked upon the Rebels his Complices to run upon Agrippa, and take him whilst he held him in talk: But that was perceived of one of Agrippa’s Servants whom he had appointed for the same purpose, to stand over against him as nigh as he might, to mark and spy if the Rebels would make any stir toward him, and to let him have knowledge: he therefore laying his Hand upon his Head gave a sign to the King to flee, saying, Away, away, for if thou tarry any longer the Seditious will slay thee and us together. Agrippa perceiving that, he got from thence with all speed, the Rebels pursued him, but in vain, for they could not overtake him. So he got to Japho, a Town under the Romans, where he was in safeguard. From thence he fled to Rome, and declared to the Emperor Nero the Mischief that befel at Jerusalem, and all that seditious Eleazer had done to his Offering; also how his Commandment took no place. Wherefore Nero joined unto him again Cassius with a huge Army, wherewith they both entred Judea, and won many walled Towns, amongst which they razed Japho. For the Romans perceiving the Power of the Rebels to encrease, were afraid lest they should get it into their Hands, whereby it might be an Annoyance in time to come to the Romans, chiefly seeing it was a notable Haven for their Ships to arrive in Judea.

After this, both Agrippa and Cassius led their Army toward Jerusalem, to War upon the Rebels, and utterly to destroy them. Eleazer and other Priests, with much People, hearing that, theyissued out against them, and found them encamped in the way, way, between Jerusalem and Japho; but after they had joined Battle, many of the Jews were slain by the Romans: the residue, Cassius and Agrippa put to flight, and pursued the Chafe unto the Gates of Jerusalem, Befieged also the City for the space of Three days. The fourth day the Priests and the People issued out suddenily unawares upon the Romans, set upon their Camp, and flew five thousand Footmen, and one thousand Horsemen; Cassius seeing that he nor his could escape, he chose out Forty thousand of his beft Soldiers, and placed them betwixt his Camp and the Priests, commanding them to stand all the Night sounding their Trumpets, and making of fire, that he and Agrippa might escape, and that they should not remove out of their place till the morrow. The Jews hearkning to the Sound of the Trumpets, and musing what they should mean, pursued not the Romans: But perceiving in the Morning they were gone toward Caesarea, three days Journey off, Eleazer with the People followed, and in the way found their Baggage strayed, that the Romans had cast from them to run the lighter, and escaped easer, which they let alone and purfued them to the Gates of Caesarea, But Cassius and Agrippa got fall within the Town, and from thence went both together to Rome, where they declared unto Nero the Emperor, how they sped at Jerusalem: And as they were making relation of this unto the Emperor, there came also a Post out of Persia, with Tydings that the King of Persia was revolted from the Roman Empire. These Things troubled the Emperor fore, to see almost all fall from him, that heretofore had obeyed the Empire of the Romans.
At the same time returned Vespasianus, Captain of the Host, whom Nero had sent into the West Parts of the World, as Germany, Britain and Spain, which Lands he had brought under the Subjection of Nero. To whom Nero declared, what Mischief the Priests had wrought to the Roman Host in Judea, how they had slain the Romans, and so forth, as he had heard of Agrippa and Cassius, which displeased Vespasian greatly.

After this, Nero sent Vespasian, and his Son Titus, to revenge the Romans on the Persians and Jews, giving them Commandment to raze their Walled Cities, to beat down whatsoever they found, without sparing either Man, Woman, or Child, Infants, sucking Babes, or Old Folks, but to slay all. So that Vespasian and Titus set forward with a chosen and pickt Army of the Romans, passed the Seas, and came to Antiochia. The Jews having intelligence of this, chose out of their Captains Three of the principal and most expert Warriours, of whom I Joseph, Priest, that wrote this History, was one; who, by the Divine favour, am not ignorant in Feats of Arms, and famous in Acts of Chivalry; and Anani the High-Priest, and Eleazer his Son. To these three they committed the whole Land of Judea, dividing it to them by Lot, and gave them a furniture of War. One third part thereof (which was whole Galilee from the Land of Nepthali and beyond) fell to Joseph the Priest, Son of Gorion, to his Honour and Glory, whom for his Worthines, they named also Josephon, because he was then anointed, appointed and consecrated to the Wars. The second Lot came forth, which fell unto Anani the Priest, who had the City of Jerusalem, and the Country about it, with a Charge to repair the Walls.
Walls of the City, to sustain the Brunt of Vespasian, if he should come so far. The third Lot fell to Eleazer the Son of Anani the Priest, to whom was joined Captain Jebosena, and other Jewish Captains. By the Virtue of this Lot, fell to him the whole Land of Edom, from Elat to the Red Sea. The rest of the Land from Jericho to Euphrates, with that also that is beyond the River, and all the Land of Mesopotamia, fell to Captain Menasebe's Lot. To other Princes of Judea, and to the worthielt Priests, they committed the fenced Cities from the Limits and Bounds of Jerusalem to Egypt.

Vespasian taking his Journey with his Host from Antiochia, came and pitched his Tents in Aramzafa. For he had devisd thus with his Counsel; First, to invade Galilea, and after to try what they could do in Judea. Josephus Gorion having intelligence of this his purpose, departed from Jerusalem to Galilee, built up the Towns that were destroyed, and repaired their Walls, Gates, Bars and Palaces: Ordained also Captains over the People, to lead and Govern them; some of Thousands, some of Hundreds, Tribunes and Decurions. He instructed the People also in Feats of Wars, what the Sound of Trumpets signified, what Sound served to fall in array, what to gather the Soldiers together, and what to divide them. After he had instructed them in the knowledge and Feats of War, he said unto them thus: Ye shall understand (dear Israelites) that ye go to Fight at this present against your Enemies, wherefore let no fear overcome your Hearts, nor dismay you at the sight of your Enemies, but play the Men, take a good Courage to you, to fight for your Cities, for your Country, and for your selves: Be not afraid of Death, but rather be stout Ibe Wars of the Jews.

About in defence of your Country, that ye be not led away from it, and to fight for the Sanctuary of the Lord, that it be not stained and polluted with the Uncleanliness of the Gentiles. Consider, that it is better to die in Battle, than to live in Captivity and Bondage: Therefore when as ye shall come to join with your Enemies, and shall see any of them beaten down and attempt to rise again; whatsoever of you is by and seeth him, remember the Zeal of your God, whereby it becometh you to revenge his Quarrel, and being moved therewith, strike him that he never rise again; but if you shall see any of your Fellows down, being inclined with the Zeal of your God, rescue him from the Hands of your Enemies; and if he be not yet killed, cure him. If he be dead, ye shall do what you can to bury him in the Israelites Burial; and so if we choose rather to die than to live, we shall prosper in our Wars; we shall die for the Covenant of our God, and deliver our Souls, bringing them to the light of Life in Heaven.

After he had laid this, he chose out of the Jews 60,000 Footmen, and but few Horsemen: And out of these he chose 600 of the best, such as not one of them will shrink from Ten, Ten from an Hundred, a Hundred from a Thousand, a Thousand from ten Thousand: With them Joseph went to the Cities of Agrippa that were in Judea, to win them: For Agrippa stuck to the Romans, were it right or wrong, with all the Power he could make. He went first to Tiarva, a great City that belonged to Agrippa, whereas both his Treasure and Munition of War lay. When he approached the City, he spake to the People upon the Walls, and offered them Peace, on condition that they should open the Gates, and deliver unto him all the Treasure of Agrippa, and all his Jewels; this if they would do, he
The Wars of the Jews.

he then would spare them, and kill none of them, Were it not better for you (faith he.) to take part with them that defend the Sanctuary of God and his Inheritance, than to join your Aid with Agrippa, which is confederate with your Enemies, and assaileth us, augmenting the Power of them that hate us, so that he refuseth not to fight against the Sanctuary of the Lord, and the People of his Inheritance? The Men of the Town condescending to Joseph, opened the Gates, and he entering the Town, made Peace with them, and they delivered him all the King's Treasures, for they liked Joseph's words, and consented to take such part as he took.

---

C H A P. VI.

At that time came News to Joseph, that troubled him sore; namely, That Tiberias had rebelled and revolted from the People that dwelt in Jerusalem, and were changed from his Lot, to become Vespasian's Subjects, who had set a Roman Captain over them. For reformation whereof, he left his Army at Tiarva, and took Six hundred young Men with him to Tiberias, coming on it suddenly, and at unawares: And as he stood on the Banks of Genesfar, he espied the Navy of the Romans, that there lay at Road to aid Vespasian, which Joseph charged to be broken in pieces, and to be scattered abroad in the Sea. The Men of Tiberias therefore seeing the Ships dispersed in that fashion, they conjectured it was done by some of Joseph's Host; wherefore the Romans fled to the Town, got in, and shut the Gates. Joseph, not-notwithstanding, came to one Gate of the City, and cried that the People might hear, saying, What meaneth this Conspiracy of yours against me? Ye fight not against me, but rather against the Lord God, whose Covenant ye have transgressed, and broke the Bond that we made with him; Ye have also violated your Oath that you sware by the God of Israel, that we should fight against our Enemies to abate their Pride. The People answered from the Walls, We beseech thee our Lord, hear thy Servants speak; God forbid we should join with the Romans, and not rather with the People of the Lord God of Israel, and his Sanctuary, with the People of his Inheritance: Howbeit there be amongst us certain proud Men, ungodly Persons, that have made a League with Vespasian, and have brought into the Town one of his chief Captains: Wherefore, and it please thee, my Lord, to enter the City with thy Soldiers, come unto us, that we may live with thee, rather than to perish in the Hands of them that hate us.

So they opened the Gates, so that Joseph went in and took the Town. Then he caused to apprehend those ungodly Persons that were there, about six hundred Men, and laid them in Irons, sending them to Tiarva, which he had afore taken: The other wicked Men that had aided Vespasian, he put to the Sword: But the chief Governour of the Town he apprehended alive, carried him out of the City, and commanded one of his Soldiers to cut off his Hands. Then the Captain besought Joseph, saying, I beseech thee, my Lord, let one of my Hands be cut off, and leave me the other. Then Joseph and his Soldiers laught him to to scorn, judging him to be no violent Man, nor of haughty Courage: Joseph bad his Soldiers give him the Sword in his own Hand, and let him cut off which Hand he lift, and leave him which he will. So the Roman Captain took the Sword, and cut off the left Hand himself, leaving him the Right, and so he was let go. He came therefore unto Vespasian's Camp to shew them what Shame was done him.

After this, the City of Zippori rebelled also, making a League with Vespasian and the Roman Hoaft. Joseph being certified of this, made thither with his Hoaft to besiege it; but the Town abode the Brunt of the Assault, that Joseph could prevail nothing against it, wherefore he besieged it a long season. About that time it was signified also to them of Jerusalem, that the Askalonites had entred in Friendship with the Romans. They sent therefore Neger the Edomite, and Shiloch the Babylonian, and Jehocanan with a Power of the common People, who came to Askalon, and besieged it a great space. Within the Town was a Roman Captain called Antonias, a valiant Man, and a good Warrior: Who upon a certain Night in the Morning watch, issu'd out of the Town with his Company, to give a Camisado to the Jews that besieged the Town, entred their Camp, and made a great Slaughter, continuing the same till it was Day-light, so that about 10000 of the Jews were slain; the rest never moved out of place, saying, It is better for us to die in this Battle, than to flee from our Enemies; therefore they took a great Heart unto them, and stood manfully in their Stations and Places, trusting in the Lord God of Israel; and when it was Day, they also set themselves in Array against...
Antony, flew many of his Men, not without loss also of their own part: So Shiloch the Babylonian, and Jehocanan of Jerusalem, were destroyed by the Romans, with other of the Jews, to the number of 8000 fighting Men that were under Shiloch and Jehocanan, and never a one of the Jewish Captains escaped that conflict, save only Neger the Edomite, who hid himself in a Sepulchre that was there in the Plain; whom the Romans in their pursuit sought, but found him not; wherefore they set on fire the Wood, that it burnt round about the Sepulchre wherein he lay hid, and consumed all the Trees, Shrubs and Bushes, but came not nigh the Sepulchre: For Neger had called to the Lord with his whole Heart, to deliver him this once from his Enemies, lest he should be shamefully handled of them, promising at another time to be ready to die valiantly in his Quarrel: So Neger escaped the Romans by the help of the God of Israel, in whom he put his Trust.

Shortly after, sent the Jerusalemites much People to Askalon, to the number of Eighteen thousand good Men of War, to Bury the Bodies of the Jews that were slain in the Conflicts by Antony. They fought also the Body of Neger the Edomite, but they found it not, till at length he cried unto them out of the Sepulchre, saying, I am here: For God hath delivered me out of the hands of mine Enemies, to the intent I may be avenged of them in the Wars of the Lord. So Neger declared unto them, at large, all things how they chanced unto him: Wherefore the Jews rejoiced greatly that they had found him alive, and that he was saved by such a miracle, and the Lord delivered him: Therefore they put their Trust in the Lord, believing believing that God would be present with them to aid them, whereof this Deliverance of Neger they took for a sure Token. The Romans kept themselves within the Town, for fear of the Jews that were come to bury the Bodies. So the Jews buried all the Bodies of their own part that were slain in both Battles, for the Romans were not able to prohibit and let them, but held them in the Town. And when the Burial was finished, they took Neger with them to Jerusalem, to give God thanks there, for his deliverance at that present. Then Joseph the Priest gathered his strength, and came upon Askalon with his whole Army, assaulted them, got the upper-hand, and won the Town; after slew Antony and all his People with the Sword, that of all the valiant Men of War that were with him, not one escaped: Besides this, also the Villages and Hamlets that were thereabout without the Town, he burnt them all: And so served he all the Towns thereabout, that had entred into League with the Romans, slaying both Jews and Romans that dwelt in them with the Sword, as many as he found, and their Houses he burnt.

This done, Joseph returned again to Zippori, fought with them, and got the upper-hand; there shed he much Blood of the People that had conspired with the Romans, utterly destroy'd them, burnt their Cities and Villages, led their Wives and Children Prisoners unto Jerusalem; and all the Romans he found there, he put them to death.

When Vespasian and Titus had heard of all that Josephus had done against the Romans, both how he slew the Garrisons, as many as he could find in Galilee, and all the Jews that had made any League with him and his Sons, they were wonderfully incen-fed, and in a great Rage. They took therefore their Journey, and came to Apitelma, otherwise called Achro, where at that time, Agrippa King of Judea was abiding, and Forty thousand Men with him, all good Men of War, and Archers every one thefe joined themselves with Vespasian's Army, by which means the Romans Camp became very great. Moreover, out of other Nations round about Judea, good Men of War without number joined with Vespasian. He had aid of the best Men of War out of Mesopotamia, Aremzafa, Ajar, Sinear, Persia, Chaldea, Macedonia, and out of the Provinces of the People of the East, yea, the People of Mizraim, Lod, Denan and Seba, with all Provinces far and near, that were under the Subjection of the Jews, cast off the Yoke from their Necks, and rebelled against the Dominion of Jerusalem, joyning their Power with the Roman Army, to aid Vespasian and Titus. For these were also Subjects unto the Jews that had fore burthened them; wherefore they came to help the Romans, and to invade Jerusalem and the People of the Jews. But the Edomites had not associated themselves unto Vespasian and Titus, for they were in Subjection to the Jews and served them; so that no one of them aided the Romans. For long before they had moved War against Jerusalem, and could not get the Victory, but the Jews prevailed against them, and subdued them.

Hircanus also the first King of the Jews circumcised them. They dwelt also in Jerusalem, kept watch and ward about the House of the Lord, and his Covenant, without all rebellion against the Jews and Jerusalem. And at that present were Thirty thousand of the best of the Edomites in Jerusalem, which which kept the Walls, and the House of the Lord. After this, Vespasian and Titus with all their Host, took their Journey from Acho and came to Galilee, and in the Mount they pitched their Tents: Wherefore when Tydings was brought to Joseph, how the Host of the Romans lay upon the Mount of Galilee, and how Vespasian had sent before him a great Power, to repair the broken Ways, to fill the Holes, and cast down the Hills; and to level the Way, that his People might pass the better, for he was fore moved against the Jews: Joseph issued out of Zippori with all his Power, set upon them and flew them, taking such Vengeance of them as was never the like before; for his God was with him. Vespasian and Titus hearing of this, determined to set upon Joseph at unawares, and to beset all the Ways, that he should escape of no side; but Joseph had intelligence of their coming, wherefore he left Zippori, and went to Tiberias, whither Vespasian followed: Joseph perceiving them coming, fled from thence to Jorpat, the biggest City in Galilee, close up the Gates, and there remained with his Army. Then sent Vespasian certain Noble-men, Embassadors to Joseph, to debate the matter with him in this wise: Vespasian General of the Roman Army, desirith to know what it should avail thee to be thus penned up within a walled Town, he wills thee rather to come forth to intreat a Peace with him, and to enter into a League together, for it shall be to thy avail to serve Cæsar Emperor of the Romans, that thou mayest live and not be destroyed, nor any of thy People with thee. Then Joseph sent Embassadors again to Vespasian, demanding Truce for a few Days, that he might deliberate upon the Matter with the People
People, and let them understand his words, Peradventure (Thafth he) they will be persuaded to make Peace with thee, and then will we enter League with the Roman Empire. So Vespasian ceased from fighting against Joseph, permitting him to consult of the thing. Upon that Joseph sent Embassadors to all the People at Jerusalem, to the Priests, chief Men, Rulers, and to the rest of the People, giving them to understand Vespasian's mind: To understand, Brethren, that Vespasian General of the Romans, sent his Embassadors unto me, enquiring, what it would avail us to be stiff against them, and not rather to come forth and intreat of Peace, and to join in League together, that we may serve the Emperor of the Romans, so to save our Lives and not to be destroyed: And I pray ye, why will ye lose your Lives, your Wives, your Sons and Daughters? Why will ye all fall together on the Sword? That both they that should be left alive among you, shall be led Captive out of your Country to a People that they never knew, whose Language they understood not; and your Country to be made desolate, your Sanctuary laid waste, that there shall not be so much as one Man left to enter into it? Never suffer this, you that be wise Men, but rather receive my Counsel, and come hither to us, that we may deliberate together, what Conditions of Peace we shall make for the safety of our Lives, rather than to be destroyed; and that we may use the Commodities of our Country, being at Peace therein: For Life and Quietness is to be preferred before Death and Banishment.

The Inhabitants therefore of Jerusalem, both Priests, chief Men, Rulers, and Noble-men of Judea, with the rest of the People, sent unto Joseph, saying: Take heed to thy self, that thou never consent to this, to receive Conditions of Peace with them, but be strong to fight, till such time as thou shalt consume them, or till thou and all the People die in Battle; and so shalt thou fight the Battle of the Lord, for his People and his Sanctuary, with the Cities of our God; in the mean season, be it as it may, but let not thy Power be with them.
The Wars of the Jews.

When Joseph heard the determination of the People of Jerusalem, how all sorts, with one consent, willed by the Embassadors the continuance of Wars, he was wonderful wroth, and in a great Fury issued out with all his People, and set them in array against Vespasian, and the Roman Host, in which conflict were slain very many of the Jews, and from that day forward Vespasian began fiercely to War upon the Jews. He departed thence to the City Gerara, a great City in the highest Galilee, besieged it, and won it, razed it, slew all the People, Man, Woman and Child, Oxen, Sheep, Camels and Asses, leaving nothing alive; and then he said, Now begin I to be revenged for the Romans, which the Jews murdered in the Land of Judæa. From hence he departed, and brought his Army to Jorpha, where Joseph remained; the first day that he encamped about Jorpha, he relieved his Soldiers with Meat and Drink plenty, and made them good Cheer, then furnished he every Man with Weapons.

So on the next Morning early the Roman Army gave a great Shout, and beset the City round about on every side. In this business Joseph stood up on a certain Tower, from whence he beheld the huge Camp of the Romans; wherefore he founded forth a Trumpet and gave a sign to Battle, issued out with the whole Power of the Jews that he had with with him, and set upon the Roman Camp at the foot of the Hill, continuing the fight from Morning till Night; and when it began to be dark, they ceased fighting, and departed one from the other; the Jews to the Town, the Romans to their Tents. In this Battle were many slain on both sides, as well Jews as Romans. The Romans advancing themselves proudly and stoutly, said, We will quickly vanquish this little Nation, as we have subdued all other Nations that we have conquered, that they shall annoy us no more, and afterwards we shall be at rest. The Jews also on the other side encouraged themselves against the Romans, saying, At this time we will all die together, for the Zeal of the Sanctuary of our God, and never suffer these unclean Persons to pollute it; and having once destroyed them, we shall be quiet: So what with the Pride of the Romans on the one side, and the stiff-necked Stubbornness of the Jews on the other, much People was slain in that fight, for it continued till the Second, Third, and fourth Day. In this while, all the Jews that dwelt about Jarpata fled unto Vespasian's Camp, and joined themselves to the Romans to aid them; and ever as Joseph skirmished with Vespasian without the City, Vespasian sent a power to assault the City. So Joseph and his Men fought with Vespasian without the Town, and the Jews that were within the Town defended the Walls against the Army of the Romans, that was a lesser Host made of the main Army: But the Jews that were within the Town, began to diminish every Day until very few were left. The hardiest also of Joseph's Soldiers, and the worthiest young Men that fought without, were all slain, except a very few, with whom

Joseph
Joseph fled and recovered himself into the Town, Rampering up the Gates after him: But as Vespasian, with all his Army, besieged Jorpha a long while, he espied at length a Conduit without, that ran into the City, whereof the Citizens drank, because the Water was good and sweet; that he cut off, and divided the Waters thereof besides the City, whereby the Inhabitants of the City were destitute of Beverage, having nothing left them but Well Waters. Joseph therefore perceiving that the Conduit Water, whereof they had accustomed to drink, was taken away, conceived with himself, Now will the Romans Brag and Boast against us, and think to take us at their Pleasure, whiles we have no Water, but shall be constrained to die for Thirst: He took therefore Garments, and dipped them in the Well-Waters that were in the Town, and hanged them here and there over the Wall, to declare to the Romans, that they had Water plenty in the Town, left they should conceive any hope of winning the Town, thinking they had no Water.

Then commanded Vespasian a Mount to be raised nigh to the Town side, to plant an Iron Ram upon, to batter the Walls with, and beat them down.

The manner of making an Iron Ram, is thus,

First, They take a great long thick Beam, upon the forepart whereof they put a great strong Head, made like a Rams Head, with Horns, all of principal strong Iron, the weight of it as much as half the Beam, and covereth the Beam to the midst. Then fastned they into the Ground, over against the place that they intend to Batter, two great Trees, like two Mafts of Ships, between which they hang the Beam Beam that is called the Ram, with strong Ropes made of Hemp, the best that may be gotten, and Iron Wier twitted together: At the hinder part of the Beam from the Wall-ward, are Rings of Iron surely fastned with Ropes made of Hemp and Wier, tied to them: That when the Assaulters will batter the Walls, they push forward the Beam as though it were a Spear, and fasten his strong Horns among the Stones. Then hang they Weights at the Rings of the hinder-part, and much People afar off take hold of the Ropes that come through the Rings behind, and hale that part of the Beam upon the Ground, and by such means they shake the Wall, they make it quake again.

Thus in many places they do wrest and wrench out the Stones of the Building, so that afterward the Wall falleth down. There be also other manner of Engines, as an Iron-Ram upon four Wheels bound with Iron, and fastned with Iron Nails. To this they make four Feet, as hath a Ram, as the bigness of the Beam requireth. The biggest for the most part is thirty Cubits long, and the least is ten. And look how many Feet the Ram hath, so many Wheels it hath also; for every Wheel hath his Foot by him: And when they will batter the Wall, certain Men appointed thereunto, draw the first a good way off, then a great multitude of Men take hold of the hinder part thereof, by four Porters or Leavers of Wood that are put therein, and with all their strength shove forward the Ram to strike the Wall they will batter. The Head of this Iron-Ram that goeth upon Wheels, hath no Horns but is blunt, made of the strongest kind of Iron, with a wonderful think Neck: They have also upon both sides of the Engine, a Pentifice of Wood for the Safeguard of them that shove forth the Ram behind, from the Arrows or Stones of them that are upon the Walls. The Ram that Titus used at Jerusalem, for the most part ran all upon Wheels. Of the other fort he had only a couple, as we shall declare in this place.
The Wars of the Jews.

The Beam of this Ram we even now describ'd, was as thick as Ten Men could fathom, and the length thereof was Fifty Cubits. It was also hollow within, and filled with Ox-hides folded and sowed together. The Wood served for none other purpose than that the fashion of the Leather might be set as upon a Mold. The hinder part of the Beam was covered over with Iron Plates. The Leather was put within, that the Beam should not break with the poise of the Weights that were hanged by the Rings behind, whereas Men appointed for the purpose, hailed at the Ropes to draw back the Beam. The Wood therefore that went about the Leather, served to keep the Leather in fashion. They covered it with an Iron Plate, lest they that kept the Walls should set it on fire: The Horns that were upon the Head of the Ram, were as many as they lifted, but never fewer than Ten, and then the Beam was Twenty Cubits long, nor also more than Fifty, and then the Beam was a Hundred Cubits in length. Betwixt every Horn was as thick as a Man could fathom, the length was a Cubit and a Half at least. The wooden Wall or Pentifice was as long as the Leather that was put in the Beam, and it was set on both sides toward the hinder part of the Beam, to defend the Men that laboured to batter the Wall, lest they should be hurt with Arrows or Darts.
The Ram that Vespasian used at Jorpata, which he besieged, and me in it, was made in this fort. The length thereof was Fifty Cubits; it had Twenty five Horns in the Head, which was as thick as Ten Men, every Horn also was as thick as one Man, and betwixt every Horn the space of one Cubit: The weight that was hanged at the hinder part, was a Thousand five hundred Talents, every Talent was about a hundred Troy weight: The Men that laboured in the executing of this Engine, were Fifteen hundred. To remove it from one place to another, or from one City to another, were appointed a Hundred and fifty Yoke of Oxen; or else Three hundred Brace of Horses and Mules: If they were to assault any Forts or Cities that stood on Hills, then they did divide it in Parts, and bring it up to the Siege by Piece-meal, and there it was set together again.

Now when the Romans had battered the Walls of Jorpata, and Joseph perceived them to shake, he took great Sacks, filled them full of Chaff; and hanged them down by the Walls, that the Horns of the Ram could not come nigh the Stones of the Wall, but light upon the Sack, which by reason of the softness of the Chaff, hindred and brake the stroke, that the Walls were less hurt: For the nature of soft things is, to give back to the hard, and to weaken their force.

But Vespasian seeing the Subtilty of Joseph, used also Policy for Policy; for he sent into the Town secretly, Jews, Spies, which when the Batteries should be, might cut asunder the Cords that the Sacks were tyed to, and with them slip down the Walls, where the Romans were ready to receive them, that they should not hurt them in the fall, and immediately they they struck the Wall with the Ram. There was at that present in the City, a certain valiant Man named Eleazar, of the House of Anani the High-Priest that then dwelt at Jerusalem: This Eleazer perceiving the Romans, to go about to batter down the Walls as they did before, plucked out of the Wall a mighty Stone, so that he made a great hole, or gap, whereat he did down the Wall, and straddling, did light on the Engine, made fast an Iron Chain to the Horns thereof, and got again up nimbly and quickly, from the Beam into the Town, with the Chain in his Hand, for the Wall was not very high above his Head as he stood upon the Ram; then the other tall Fellows took hold upon the Chain, fastened it to the Pillars and Walls in the Town, that the Romans might rather be constrained to break their Ram, than take it away from thence.

The Priest Eleazar yet once again boldly went down and sat upon the Beam, flew fifty Men that laboured about the Ram, and the rest he put to flight; then returned into the Town, being drawn up again from the Beam by them that were within the Town, greatly rejoicing in his Manhood. After that he went up upon a high Tower, from whence he tumbled down, with a mighty force, a great Stone and a hard, on the Head of the Ram, and brake it, that both a great part of the Head and the Horns fell on the Ground: For the Iron that it was covered withal was old and rusty, so that it was much wasted, and eaten therewith; the Ropes were also old. After that Eleazar went down again, took part of the Head that was broken, and hurled it into the Town; the Romans that remained, either he flew, or put to flight. The Archers shot at him, and wounded ed him with five Arrows, wherefore by the help of his Fellows upon the Walls he climbed up, otherwise he had not been able for the Grief of his Wounds.

The People then gave a Shout for Joy of the Victory of the worthy Priest Eleazar, that had slain the Romans, and broke the Ram, wherein they put their Confidence, and brought part of it into the Town, and fastned it with an Iron Chain, that the Romans could not pull it back again to them, nor have the use of it afterward; wherefore divers of the best Citizens of Jorpon armed themselves that day, being stirr'd with the great Courage that they had seen in Eleazar; and went down, hewed the Beam to pieces, brought the Poises with the Rings, and two Masts with them into the Town: And the same Day died Eleazar with great Renown, as one that had fought for the Sanctuary of the Lord, and for his People and Country of Israel, like a faithful Servant and Soldier of the Lord, whom all the People mourned for, burying him in the Town, honouring him for his Death, Worthiness and Faithfulness, appointing him a worthy Memory also, for that he had waged Battle with the Enemies of the Lord.

The young Men of the Jews seeing this, and especially two of them, the one called Nitra, the other Polipas, Men of great Wisdom and Understanding, and therewith expert in the Wars, being moved with Zeal of the God of Israel, opened the Gates, and issued against the Romans, skirmished with them, and slew many of them. But at length they were slain themselves in the Skirmish, for the Sanctuary of their God, for Israel and their Country.

When Joseph saw the Wars to increase more and more, he issued out, and made a great Slaughter in the the Roman Tents, burnt the Mount and Engines of War that the Romans had left, by which means the War waxed yet hotter, insomuch, that Joseph repulsed, the Romans. For when they saw the Jews so desperately give their Lives for their God and Land, they would not abide their force.

Vespasian seeing his Men shrink, he stood up, and encouraged them, exhorting them with fair Words and Promises, as well Gold and Silver, as Meat and Drink, wherewith the Romans allured, fought with Joseph that Day unto the Sun-setting: And as the Battle waxed hot, the Jews wounded Vespasian with an Arrow in his Right Leg, which sore dismayed the Romans when they saw the Blood run down his Leg; and that day was a sore Fight between the Jews and the Romans. Titus seeing his Father wounded, being sore abashed, ran to him to help him, to whom his Father said, How is it my Son, that thou art thus astonied? Take Heart to thee, and with a Courage revenge thy Father of the Jews that have now the better hand of us. So both Titus and Vespasian, with all their whole Host, fought that day a sore fight, and many were slain on both parts, yea, very few were left on Joseph's part with whom he returned into the Town.

The next day the Romans raised a new Mount, instead of that which Joseph burned, and planted another Iron Ram thereupon, between two Posts accordingly; for Vespasian had brought Four of this fort with him from Rome; but other battering Pieces upon Wheels, had he with him Thirty; what more, what less; the bigger fort were Thirty Cubits long, the lesser Ten. He brought also Ten Engines to hurl great Stones withal, which he had placed placed about the Walls. The Romans therefore renewed the Assaультs against the Town, as they were wont before. But the Town was now desolate and naked of the stoutest warlike Men; for they were all slain in the fights. Albeit Joseph remained and a few with him, who went every one, and the Women also, to defend the Walls, for there was almost no Men left for the War. Then the Romans flung, with the Engines that stood on the Mount, Stones into the Town on every side. It chanced that a great Stone hit a Woman with Child with such Violence, that it passed through her Body; and carried the Child with it, by the space of half a Mile. They cast up and raised yet other Mounts also, from whence they flung Stones. And another like chance hapened; A Stone came and hit one of Joseph's Men of War, a valiant Man, in such fort, that it divided, his Head from his Body, and made it fly a large Mile off. At the same time one of the Roman Soldiers devised with himself, how to hit Joseph with a venomed Arrow, and get him under a Wall where Joseph was to accomplish his purpose: But Joseph espied him, and cried to him, Hold thy hand, thou wicked fellow, and do not kill me: With that the Fellow started somewhat aside, being afraid at Joseph's Voice, and suddenly the Jews, out of the Town, poured hot Oyl upon him from the Walls, and his Skin was scalded off, and he ran away naked and howling, and yelling to the Romans Camp, where he died.

Vespasian, and his Son Titus, were fully determined to continue the Assault until the 47th day; notwithstanding the Walls were so high, that they could not win the Town. Yet at length the Men were so spent within the Town, that they that remained alive were so wearied with toiling, that they were no longer able to furnish their Watch upon the Wall. This upon a certain Night, Vespasian and Titus understanding, scaled the Walls at a Quarter where Watchmen were lacking, and after them many more of the Roman Soldiers followed, which went down on the inside, and brake open the great Gate of the Town, whereat entred the whole Army of the Romans. And being within the Town, sounded their Trumpet, and shouted to Battle. The Jews with the Alarm, Tumult and Hurlyburly of the Romans, awaked out of their Sleep, and were sore afraid. Notwithstanding, every Man took him to his Weapon, and drew to the Marketplace as fast as they might. They had made the Marketplace of the Town so large of purpose, that if any Business should happen, there might come together the whole City if they would: And as they looked about them, they saw the Roman Army entring into the Town, by the way that came from the great Gate. Then fought they with the Romans, and divided even in the Marketplace where they stood, exhorting one another, and saying, Let us die here fighting, and never suffer ourselves to be taken alive. But Joseph and forty Men with him, worthy Men, all fled away into a Wood, where they found a certain Cave, and hid themselves therein. All the rest of the Citizens were slain in that Conflict, for they would not yield, nor commit themselves to the Romans, they trusted them so little. For on a time, a certain Jew besought a Roman Soldier to save his Life, and the Roman swore unto him, saying, God deal thus and thus with me, if I slay thee, therefore yield yield and come hither to me. The Jew required him to give his Right-hand that he might trust him, and the Roman reach'd him his Left-hand. The Jew being dismay'd in that great fear, marked not that it was his Left-hand; but when the Roman had once hold of him, he kept him fast with that Hand, and with his Right took his Sword and slew the Jew that then was naked, having cast away his Weapon upon trust of the Roman.

When the Jews saw how the Roman regarded not his Oath, but slew the Jew, that upon the trust of his Promise and Oath had yielded himself unto him, they determined to die all together, and never to trust the Romans: Whereupon they resolved with themselves, utterly to die for the Holiness of the Lord God of Israel; but in so doing, they slew much People of the Romans, and far more than they had done in any other Battle; yet at length the City was taken.

When Vespasian had knowledge where Joseph and his Company was, he sent Nicanor, Pilerincus and Callianus with him to Joseph, to will him to come forth, and he should have his Life and not be slain; upon that Joseph debated the matter with them that were with him in the Den, requiring their Advice: For my part (faith he) if you will follow my Counsel, I think it best we go unto them: But upon this Condition, That they will make us a formal Assurance of our Lives, effectually as we shall require them; which done, I doubt not but Vespasian, when we come unto him, will extend his Favour toward us.

When these Men perceived Joseph to be inclined to yield unto the Romans, they said, We marvel at thee (O Prince Joseph) at thee, we say, that was chosen out of thousands of People, and promoted to the Priesthood, and Kingdom, to sanctifie and hallow the Lord God of Israel, who was also appointed Captain General of so great an Host, and hast seen with thine Eyes the shameful Reproach of thy People, with the Displeasures and Damages of thy Sheep, that thou hast yet any desire to live in this Dishonour. What seest thou that thou wouldst desire to live? Shouldst thou not rather desire Death than Life? Peradventure thou persuadest thyself, that they call unto thee to save thy Life, or for thy Commodity; but without doubt this were a vain Persuasion: For they call thee for none other intent than to take thee alive, and to brag how they took Joseph, that was consecrated and addicted to the Wars, and make it an Argument that their Power prospèresh. Now therefore (our dear Brother, and our Prince) consider that this they will do, yea, if they save thy Life. But put the case they put thee to Death, Were it not better for thee to die on thine own Sword than on theirs? Yea, if it were nothing but this, it is better for thee to die than live, lest thou shouldst bear their Reproaches, their Upbraidings, and their Quarrellings: And if they preserve thee alive, never think they do it for thy Good, but rather for thy Ignominy and Shame, which is far more Grievous than Death itself. Wherefore our dear Brother, and our Prince, what com's in thy Mind, that thou purposest to live, after that thou hast left thy People and thy Brethren? And to what purpose servest thou Life after they be gone? Mark diligently what Moses of worthy Memory our Master did, how he speak before God touching the People of Israel: O pardon their Sins, (faith he) or else blot me quite out of thy Book which thou hast written: He would would not live after the Destruction of his People; although the Almighty said unto him; Let me alone, that I may wreak mine Anger upon them and consume them. Why dost thou not call unto thy Remembrance Aaron his Brother, that went betwixt Life and Death, in withstand ing the Angel that Plagued the People, and offered himself to die for his People, that the Plague might cease from Israel? Where is King Saul, and his Son Jonathan, that Fought for the People of God and died in the Field? Could not Saul have saved his Life, and his Sons both, if he had been so disposed? But, when he saw Israel had the Overthrow in the Battle, had no desire to live longer, but chose to die rather than to live, and would not be separated from his Brethren neither in Life nor Death, as well he, as Jonathan his Son; these were dearly beloved, and most amiable Men (as the Scripture termeth them,) why dost thou not remember (our dear Prince) the Righteousness of David, the anointed of the Lord, who seeing a most grievous Pestilence to rage upon the People of Israel, said, Let thy hand (O Lord) I beseech thee, be turned upon me and my Father's House: For I am he that have sinned, I have transgressed: As for these my Sheep, What have they done? What have they offended?

Where is the Holy Law Smothered and Stifled in thy Heart? Art thou not an Anointed Priest, that hast declared and taught us the Holy Law, whereby we might Learn how to Love our Lord God with all our Hearts, and with all our Soul, and with all our Strength? If it be so that the Service of God consists not in this, that we should love him whom he loveth, and die for his Covenant and Sanctuary, together with his Servants that be slain slain for the Unity of the Name of the Lord; wherein standeth it then? Hast not thou oft-time taught and proved unto us, How that every Man that dieth in the Wars for the Lord, his Sanctuary, his People and his Law, he is to be counted in the Lord's Lot, and made worthy to go unto the great Light, and shalt not see everlasting Darkness? Art not thou that Joseph the Priest, that hast cried so often in Battle, I am Joseph the Priest, consecrated to Battle, that have vowed my Life for the People of the Lord, his Sanctuary, and his Land? But now when thou hast yielded thy self unto them, and they order thee despondingly, What wilt thou say unto them? Or what amends canst thou have at their Hands? I put the case they cast in thy Teeth, and say thy words be Lyes, How shalt thou avoid the Reproach? Art thou not he that saidst, that we should Fight for the People of God, until we die in the Conflict, and in so doing, Death should be ransom for our Sins; and that we were sure to go to that great Light, that is the Light of Life? Which if it be true according as thou hast said, Why then wilt thou shun Death, and not follow thy People that are gone before thee to that same Light? Ever hitherto thou hast had the Upper-hand wherefover thou camest, insomuch that they that heard of thee trembled for fear: And now wilt thou yield thy Life to Captivity to the Romans as a vile Slave? Shall not this thy Dishonour redound also to the People of God? Thou art a Prince, a King and a Priest, Wilt thou be bound in Chains? Every Man shall say, This is he that gave his Soldiers, and the rest of the People to die, but he saved himself and his own Life.
The Wars of the Jews.

So when they had made an end of talk, each Man drew out his Sword, and came to him in the midst of the Cave, saying: Hearest thou Joseph our Prince? If thou wilt be Ruled by us, first we shall slay thee as a Lord and a great Prince, and thou shalt choose what Death thou wilt die, that thou mayest die honourably. But if thou refuse to die honestly, assure thyself of this, we will every Man set upon thee and kill thee.

Joseph answered, Indeed I know my Brethren, that your words are just and true, For who is so mad to desire to live in this hasty hurry? and would God that he would call my Soul unto him, and receive it unto him also. For I am not ignorant that it were more expedient for me to die than to live, for the great troubles that have passed through my Heart; But be knowest the Secrets of Mens Hearts; and it is he that giveth Life unto Men.

It is our God that closeth Souls within the Bodies, and letteth them out again, because he is the living God, in whose hands remain the Souls and Spirits of all living Creatures: He hath left with us the Spirit of Life, and closed it up within our Bodies. What is he that will open what he hath shut? How shall we loose what he would have knit fast within us? Do ye not all know, how the Life is a thing that he hath left us to keep, and that we are his Servants? If then we cast away our life before God take it, shall he not worthily be displeased with us, so that we shall not find Life in the place of the Living with Abraham our Father of Famous Memory, and with those just and Godly Men our Fore Fathers? Do we not know, that they went not unto God before they were called; and when they were called, they came came? and so dealt GOD with all the Holy and Godly Men. To Moses our Master of worthy Memory, the Elect of God; ye know that the Lord God of Israel said, Get thee upon this Mountain Abiram, and so he did; but he would not have done it of himself, had not God called him, whereby ye may see it is not lawful for a Man to surrender his Life unto the Living GOD, except he require it again.
The Wars of the Jews.

Take Example (I pray you) of Job, what time he curst the Day that he was born in. Might he not either have hanged himself, or have run upon a Knife, or at the least have followed his Wifes Counsel, to curse God and die? Notwithstanding he abode Patiently in most extreme Pain, waiting till God demanded again his Life, and then restored it unto his Lord God, and would not restore it undemandèd, but tarried till his appointed time came.

King David also of Famous Memory, said, Lead thou my Life out of this Pinfold and Prison; for he knew that the Life was inclosed in the Body, and that none might let it forth but God: I wot well that Death is a great Commodity, so that the Soul may return in his due time unto God that gave it us. I know it also, That be that dieth in the Wars of the Lord, he shall come to the great Light: But I know not what can appease GOD's Wrath, towards the Soul of that Man that killeth himself, and maketh haste to restore his Soul before his time, and without the Lord's calling. Wherefore my Friends and my Brethren, I would you should know it, I am no more Coward than you, and I do not disagree with you, because I am of a faint Heart for fear of these present Calamities; But this I know, I should commit a heinous Offence against the Lord, if I should kill myself. And how say ye (ye Princes) that that flock unto God? To you I speak, Tell me, who shall make Intercession unto God for us, if we should commit this Sin, and each kill one another? would not a Man judge him a Slave, a Fool, a froward Person, a Rebel, and a desperate Man, that should be forced with any Misery, to be so mad, that because all things fall not out as he would wish, would therefore Hang, or desperately Murther himself with his own hand? Such ye know the Law thus punisheth: Their right hand is cut off, wherewith they forced themselves to die, then they are left Unburied as Men that have destroyed their own Souls: By what reason then shall we kill our selves? I would wish that we might be slain of our Enemies, rather than we should so shamefully Murther our selves, whereby ever after we should be taken for Manlayers.

If any Man kill himself as Saul whom ye commended, without doubt he committed a heinous Crime, and such a one as no Satisfaction can be made for: Besides that he shall be reckoned faint-hearted, and as one that despaireth of his Recovery: Wherefore our Fore-Fathers have taught us, A Man ought not to despair of his Safeguard and Deliverance, which cometh of God, no, not when the Knife is put to his Throat to cut it. For King Hezekiah of Famous Memory, when he heard these words of Esaies that worthy Prophet: Make thy Will, and set things in order, for thou shalt die, and not escape; Nevertheless he fainted not, nor ceased not to pray to God, for the prolonging of his Life in the World, that he might amend his Life, and send a better Soul unto God.

Then the Lord God of Israel, seeing his unwearied and strong Hope, with his Repentance, suffered him to live Fifteen Years longer; but as for Saul, he was

was not appointed King over Israel after the Lord’s Mind, but only by the People that craved of Samuel, Give us a King to Rule over us: Whereupon afterward God departed from Saul, for he was not obedient to God’s Will, but went about by force to establish his Kingdom. The Lord then seeing the Wickedness of his Heart, gave him over, and chose him another to be King over his People; anointing David his Servant, whiles Saul was yet living; which Saul perceiving, persecuted David, and laboured with all his endeavour to destroy him, because he knew God was with him, and prospered all that he did; whereas contrarily all went backward with himself.

For these Causes I say, he chose rather to die than live: He also would not live after the People of Israel were overthrown in the Mountains of Gilboa. And, in mine Opinion, he flew himself for nothing but because he was a faint-hearted Coward, and utterly despaired of his safeguard. For although he said, Left these Uncircumcised come and run me through. Yet, if he had been of a Valiant Courage, he would not have stood to his defence to the Death: Peradventure God would have delivered him: But be contrarily, all in despair, procured both himself and Son a Shameful Death.

But ye shall consider this, he was an unmerciful King, and therefore God did rid him out of the World. For as he did not spare his own Life, nor his Sons: So did he not spare others. And whereas ye allege Aaron unto me, I would know of you, why he put himself between the living and the dead; was it not because he would turn away the Plague from Israel? If he had known that he himself should have been stricken therewith, doubtless he would not have striven against the striker; but trusting in the holiness of his Righteousness, he be stood before the Angel to deliver Israel from that Misery: Therefore I am not to be compared with Aaron, albeit I am one of his Children, and never yet in all my Life did I shrink to venture my Life in the Wars of the Lord: And now I am not determined to kill my self, lest I should sin against God and spoil my Soul of Hope of Salvation. I know it well, and it were more expedient for me to be slain of mine Enemies, than that I should kill my self.

And if ye say the word, Let us go forth, and suddenly set upon our Enemies, to kill or to be killed in this Battle of the Lord, and so shall we do well: Peradventure God will give them into our Hands: For God is able to save as well by a small Army as by a great. Then if ye see me to be afraid of mine Enemies Sword, ye shall thereby know me to be a Coward, and one that fawneth upon his Enemies, and hunteth for their Favour: But you shall see me go before you as a Valiant Man, nor once to turn my Face from Death; What did ye ever see in me, that you should judge me fearful? Did ye ever know me refuse to Fight? Within the Town of Jorpata I have ever kept my Quarter and Ward, and every Day have I Fought with mine Enemies, whom I have not spared but impaired, and that not a little, whiles I defended that little City Forty eight Days against them: I thought with my self, Peradventure, I may drive away the Enemies of the Lord out of our Land, and divert them from Jerusalem, that they go not thither. And so have I Fought with them, till all my Valiant Soldiers be spent, and none left but you; I could no longer withstand their Force, yet I would not yield my self as a Prisoner unto them, therefore I fled hither with you into this Cave. Now, therefore, Brethren, ye shall shall understand, that Death is commodious and good indeed, which comes in time: But it is neither good nor Godly, for a Man to kill himself and his Brother, to go afterward for that into Hell and Perdition. And what other thing can more clearly set forth a Man's Proud and Haughty Mind, with his Hope in God, than for a Man to suffer Patiently, whatsoever chanceth unto him, until his End come? Behold the Lions and other Beasts, how they are wont to withstand their Enemies that lie in wait for them, to the intent they may save their Lives, whose Armour is in their Teeth and Claws, wherewith nevertheless they hurt not themselves, but use them against other that assault them, till they either overcome, or be overcome. We, although we have no Warlike Weapons, yet hath Nature armed us as well as them: For albeit we be not of such strength as they, yet have we such Armour, that we may defend our selves therewith, both from Man and Beast: But how can we break the Band of Love one to another that proceedeth from God, who hath chosen us his People and Inheritance to Sanctifie him? How then may we be Enemies one against another, and kill one another? If that be true, as ye cannot deny it, that although we be many Thousands, yet we are counted as one Soul, and Members of one Body: Then how can any Man ever find in his Heart to strike his own Eyes or Feet, or any other of his Members to destroy it, except he be Mad, and Besides himself? Moreover, dear Brethren and Friends, consider to what end the Master of a Ship doth abide the Temp'ſt of the Seas, and striv'ng Day and Night with the Floods thereof? Dost he not do it to, save the Ship, and his Life from Death? If so be he should willingly for the same purpose put himself in jeopardy of Temp'ſt, or run on Rocke, would not the Merchant-men say, See yonder desperate Fellow that that destroyeth himself, his Ship, with the Merchants, and their Riches; Suppose an earthly King should give his Officers to keep certain Precious Jewels, were it not convenient that they should keep them till such time as he should call for them again? If they should, at their Pleasure, cast them away before the King calls for them, shall they not move him to Anger? And if a Man come into the Presence of the King uncalled, will not the King check him, and say unto him, What dost thou here, before I call thee? So now, all the Souls of Israel are the Lord's, who hath bestowed them upon Men, according to his Mercy and good Pleasure, who also will receive them again when it pleaseth him, and when his time is come, every Soul shall depart unto his Place of Rest. Therefore if a Man will, with his own Hands, let forth his Soul out of his Body before his time, God will not receive it, neither shall it find any rest, but be destroyed: And why? Because it is expelled, and thrust out of his place before his time, and before God do call for it; wherefore it shall Wander inconstantly for ever. Why then (my dear Brethren and Friends) do you advise us to kill one another, and to Expel and Banish our Souls from us, they being not called for? How can we put away this Opprobry? How can we make amends for this Sin? Who shall pray and make Intercession for us? And with this Joseph wept abundantly, insomuch, that they laughed him to scorn.
Then Joseph held up his Hands to Heaven, saying, Thou Lord Almighty art our Father, Thou hast formed us, and by thy great Mercy taken us out of the Clay. Thou art he that leadest us in thy Faith, and the Multitude of thy Mercies and Benignities toward us hath not ceased. And although our Sins have separated us from thee, yet nevertheless we are thy Handy-work every one of us, and a long time have we been called thy People. Thou art Lord over all Creatures and Souls. Thou dost what thou wilt, and none dare say to thee, Why dost thou so? Thou art our Father, we are Clay, thou hast given us our Shape and Fashion: Therefore if it please thee to take our Souls, take them by the Hands of thine Angels, that we commit no Evil against them. And if these my Fellows that be present with me will not be partakers of my Prayer; behold my Life alone, for the which I beseech thy benign Clemency, if it please thee take it, for thou gavest it me, therefore do with it whatsoever it shall seem good unto thee: It is in thine Hands, thou sendest it me, and hast preserved it within me: I will not destroy it myself, or let it out of my Prison, before thou demand it; for thou knowest, that as Man cannot live without thy Decree and Appointment, so likewise he cannot die without the same. Unto thee therefore do I lift up mine Eyes, thou that dwellest in Heaven, to deal Mercifully with thy Servants, and with me, to turn our Hearts that we consent not unto this to Murder our selves: If thou know any among us, that intend so base an Act, I beseech thee, O Lord my God, let me find favour in thine Eyes, give them an Heart to bear wholesome Counsel, that I may deliver my self and mine own Life, which I commend into thine Hands, that thou wouldest receive it unto thee; for in thy Hand is the Life of every living Creature.

Thus
Thus when Joseph had finished his Prayer, he turned him unto his Fellows and saluted them: Then said they, Thinkest thou therefore to move our Minds, because thou hast prayed unto God for thy self and for us? Did not we tell thee ere while, like as we tell thee now, that we are determined to die by one means or other? Wherefore say thy Mind, and tell us by what Death thou wilt end thy Life; for we have ever known thee a just Man, and a worthy Prince, therefore art thou worthy to die first. Joseph perceiving his Fellows were utterly determined to die, and would give none ear to his Persuasions, for he could by no reasons draw them to his Opinion, he went Subtilly to work with them on this wise. Seeing it will be none otherwise, Brethren (quoth he) I will shew you my Advice: Ye are determined to die, ye say, and that upon your own Swords, therefore there is no better way, than to do it by Lot in this wise: Let us cast Lots among our selves, that we may be joined together by Couples, then will we cast Lots which couple shall die first; afterwards they two shall cast Lots between them, which of them shall kill his Fellow; he that remaineth shall choose him one of the second Couple to kill him; likewise the second Couple shall cast Lots between themselves, who shall die first, and he that is left shall choose him one of the third Couple whom he hath a fancy to be killed of: then they shall try by Lot who shall die first, who being slain, the other may choose him one of the fourth Couple to kill him, and so even till all be slain, that we see not the Captivity of our People. The last couple that remain shall do thus: Run one upon the others Sword, or else let them cast Lots between them-
Ike Wars of the Jews.

But forasmuch as we are Forty and One, so that we cannot be justly joined in couples, let us then cast Lots first of all, and see which of us shall first be slain; and when he is once out of the way, then let us divide the Couples: He that is to be slain first, let him choose one of the first couple, and cast Lots, and do as I have devised. Then every Man liked his Device (which was God's doing who heard Joseph's Prayer) and said all with one Mouth, We will do as thou hast advised, and to thee it appertaineth to divide the Men, and to cast the Lots. Joseph answered, But let us swear by the Name of the Lord, that this Device shall stand, be ratified and performed. Whereunto they accorded, and sware all by the Name of the Lord, that they would have his Device to be ratified and kept, which Joseph had invented by casting Lots. Then Joseph cast Lots, who should be the odd Man, and it fell upon Jehoiada, the Son of Eliakim, a Galilean, which was a Valiant Man, and chiefest in every Counsel next to Joseph, and the principal persuader of this wicked Fact, to kill themselves. After that, did he craftily divide them into couples, so that the Lot of his own couple came forth last of all, who looked to be saved, and trusted in God, believing that he would deliver him from this abominable deed.

Then Jehoiada chose him one of the first couple, who slew him: That done, the first couple cast Lots between them, so that one killed his Fellow, and chose him one of the second couple to kill him: Then they of the second couple, cast Lots between them-themselves in the presence of Joseph, and the one killed the other; then he that remained, chose him one of the third couple to slay him: And in this manner did they all, till they were all slain, and none left alive but Joseph and his Fellow, who said unto Joseph, Go to let us cast Lots, that we may go to our Brethren.

Joseph answered, We will do so if thou be so disposed: But first hear me, I pray thee, speak a few things in thine Ear: Tell me, Have not these Sinners Rebelled against God, in this Murdering of themselves so shamefully? neither could I by any means dissuade them, nor divert them from this Opinion: Wherefore should we two Sin against God so grievously, and against our own Souls? If the Lot should so fall, that I should kill thee, I should be called a Man-slayer, and that worthily; and it may so chance, I shall escape after thee, and save my Life; but if the Lot should so fall, that thou shouldst slay me, thou shouldst be taken also for a Murderer, and Peradventure thou shouldst not escape after me; yea, although thou thinkest that thou mayest: But assure thy self of this, we lose our Hope in God, in as much as we Sin against our own Souls. For all these Men that thou seest here Dead, Lo, they have sinned against their own Souls, dying without Discipline and good Order. If thou wilt say, How shall we do by reason of the Oath that we have sworn? Doft thou not know, that he that breaketh a wicked Oath doth nothing wickedly himself therein: For a Man is not constrained to perform any Oath unto God, but to the keeping of his Laws: and hereupon is it that David saith, I have sworn, and will perform; for for neither Vow nor Oath that is made against the Commandments of God, can be ratified before God. And what more is, before we Swear, our Fathers Sware first long ago, at the Mount of Sinai, that they and their Children should keep the Law of the Lord. Moses also made a Covenant with them upon the same, and not only with them that were there, but also with us.

How then dare we be so bold to swear, to break the Law of God, and become Man-killers? Seeing it is one of the Ten Commandments expressly, Thou shalt not kill. Wherefore my Brother thou shalt understand, that we need not be solicitous, nor careful for the Oath that we have made, but rather to break it, for God will never be displeased with us for that. For I being afraid of these wicked Persons that lie now here dead, invented this subtil means and way to Swear, that I might save my Life: Now therefore, my Brother, if thou wilt be Ruled by mine Advice, thou shalt save thy Life and mine, and I will cast no Lots, nor perform the Oath that we made, which is not good in the Law; if thou wilt not, I will withstand thee, and Fight with thee, to kill thee and spare my self: And with this Joseph leapt back, and drew out his Sword, standing over against him at his defence, to see what his Fellow would answer: His Companion hearing this stirred neither Hand nor Foot against him, but said, Lo, I am content, do what thou thinkest good: because thou art a Man of God. And blessed be the Lord God of Israel, that hath not withdrawn his Mercy from me, but made me to be thy Lot, whereby my Soul is saved from going to Hell. Thy Lot is a just Lot Much besides this, spake Joseph's Companion to him, for he was sore afraid of him, lest he should have killed him, if they had encountered together; for Joseph was a better Man of his hands, and therefore Joseph chose him into his Lot, that he might be able to make his Party good with him. In this point Joseph played the wise Man's part, for he escaped by this means, both from the Hands of those wicked Fools, and also from his Fellow: Therefore Joseph called out of the Cave to Captain Nicanor, and said to him in this wise: Wilt thou promise me, that neither thou nor any of thy Men that be here with thee, or in the Romans Camp, shall kill us before thou hast brought us unto Vespasian? And let him do with us as he thinketh good.

Nicanor answered, So, and so, deal GOD with me if I fulfil not thy Request, if so be thou wilt come forth unto me, together with the Men that thou hast with thee. Joseph answered him, I will come forth unto thee, and so many more of us as be alive, for it is come to pass, that some of us be dead in the Cave, wherefore, how can they come forth? Then said Nicanor, never think (Friend Joseph) that I come to deceive thee, Come forth and trust in thy GOD, for thou needest not to fear. Joseph said, Swear unto me this, by the GOD of Israel, although he be unknown to thee. Nicanor answered, I swear unto thee by that GOD that made the World by his Wisdom, that thou needest not to fear me, but boldly mayest come forth unto me. So Nicanor made a Covenant with Joseph and his Fellow, confirming and ratifying.
ing it in writing, after the manner of the Romans, and reached it into the Cave upon a Spear, holding the point of the Spear in his own hand. Joseph took the writing, read it, and believed Nicanor. Then came he forth to Nicanor, and his Fellow with him.

When Nicanor sitting upon his Seat of State, that was made him in the Wood nigh to the Cave, saw Joseph come toward him, he rose up, and embracing him, kissed him, set him on his Right Hand, and wept with him abundantly: He honoured his Fellow also, placing him between Pollerinus and Gallicanus, whom he had then present with him. Then Nicanor asked him for the rest of the Men that were with him, desiring that they should come forth, and he would honour them also, and do them no Harm. Joseph declared the whole Matter unto him, and told him what was become of them.

Nicanor hearing of the pertinacious Stubbornness of the Jews Hearts, and their wicked Intents, was wonderfully moved: So then he rose and went from thence, with Joseph and his Companion, unto Vespasian. When the Roman Army saw Joseph, they were greatly astonished, and gave a mighty Shout: Some rejoiced that Joseph was taken, saying, This is good luck, that our Eyes shall see our long expected desire. Others lamented, and let Tears fall from their Eyes with pensive Hearts, saying, Is not this that worthy Man, who made all the Roman Host to quake for fear, and whose Fame and Renown was known throughout all Lands? How is it come to pass, that so mighty a Man is taken in his own Country try, and amongst his own People? If this chance unto such a Man, to be taken in his own Land, in the midst of his Families and Friends; how shall we escape in a strange Land? Certain evil disposed Persons of the Roman Soldiers, went to Vespasian, and said, Sir, you shall do well to command this Man to be slain without Mercy, that hath been the Destruction of so many of the People of the Romans. This is the very fame that shot the Arrow and struck you in the Leg; put him to Death, and then shall ye be sure he shall never move War more against you. If ye do not, ye shall see him one Day again raise an Army against us, and destroy us. But Joseph did find Friendship at Titus Vespasian’s Sons hand, which came of the Lord.

Therefore when he heard those wicked Mens words, that desired Vespasian to put Joseph to death, he disapproved their Advice, and partly in mockage
he taunted them, saying, Will you tell my Father what he hath to do? Will you give him so wicked Council, to kill that Man that yieldeth himself to us, upon the trust of our League and Band of Friendship, which you now go about to break and frustrate?
Did not Captain Nicanor, in my Father’s Name and Cæsar’s, with all the Roman Host, make a Covenant with him? Take heed what you say: Is it reason to break the Cæsarean Fidelity? Moreover, who can tell whether it may so happen, that some of us be taken by the Jews, like as Joseph is Prisoner here with us? When Vespasian heard his Sons words, it pleased him, and he spared Joseph, not suffering him to be slain, but committed him to a certain Captain of his, and carried him about with him through through the Cities, together with King Agrippa. After this, Vespasian removed his Camp to Thalmida, which also is called Acho, and from thence he went to Cesarea, a great City.

When they of the City saw Joseph, they cried unto Vespasian, Kill him, kill him, or else he will one Day be an occasion to stir great Wars against thee. But Vespasian gave no Ear to them. While he was at Cesarea, tidings came to him, that the Citizens of Papho Invaded and Spoiled the Isles that were subject under his Dominions, with a Navy. Vespasian hearing thereof, commanded to lay wait for them, that they might be met withal. So there was an Ambush laid without the Town, and it came to pass, that when the Pirates were gone out a Roving, Vespasian entred the Town, and took it without any great Resistance, because their Soldiers were absent.

When the Rovers therefore returned with their Navy, and saw the Romans in the City, they laboured to set a Land; but suddenly a huge Tempeft, and a mighty Storm, drove all their Ships against the Rocks that were in the Sea-shore, (for there was no Haven for Ships) and there they were lost many of them, and those that swam to Land the Romans flew: They that were drowned in the Sea, and slain by the Romans, were in number Four thousand good Men of War, besides them that were slain in the Town 40000 all Jews.

This done, Vespasian sent forth Valericus and Tarius, two Roman Colonels, with his Son Titus, who went, besieged, and won the Towns of Defence that were in Galilee: And thus did Titus use them. They that yielded unto him he saved their Lives; and and whosoever withstood him, he flew. Moreover, all the Cities that belonged to Agrippa in Galilee, he restored them unto him again, only Tyre excepted, which he utterly razed, and flew all the Males, especially such as were apt to the Wars, sold also their Wives and Children. And this was the only City in all Galilee, that Titus shewed such a Rigour and Extremity unto.

CHAP. VII.

Vespasian departing thence, took his Journey to Gamala, which is a City upon the top of a Mountain; the Name thereof is called Gamala, of an Hebrew Word Gamal, that signifieth to Re- quite or to do a good Turn, because it is the best City that belonged to Agrippa, and the Inhabitants thereof were all very rich. The City also, called Seleucia, was not far distant from it, a Country Replenished with good Towns, Gardens, Brooks, and all kind of Fruitful Trees; Agrippa besought Vespasian, that he would not destroy this City: Let me go first (saith he) and offer them Peace, Peradventure they will take it, that they may save their Lives from Destruction. Vespasian was entreated, saying unto him, Go and do as thou wilt, for thine Honours sake I will do so much for thee. So Agrippa went to them, and spake Friendly and Peaceably unto them, and they received him in like manner.
but they meant Deceit, saying, Thou art our Lord and King, to whom therefore doth all that is of any price, or to be desired in all Israel belong, but unto thee? Therefore come near unto us, and debate the Matter with thy Servants.

Agrippa crediting these Words, came close up to the City, and as he listened to them that talked with him, one cast a great Stone from the Wall, which lighted just between his Shoulders, with such a violence, that it strook him prostrate to the ground, and brake his Back, with one of his Arms also. But his Servants stept to him, took him up and carried him to Vespasian; who seeing him so sore hurt, sware he would never go from thence till he had taken the City, and ordered them in like manner as he did at Tiarva, to leave not a Man therein. The Roman Physicians did bestow such Diligence about Agrippa, that they cured him.

Vespasian being in a rage against the Seleucians, because they had wounded their King, Besieg'd and assailed them; the Jews within the Town encouraged one another, saying, Let us stick to it now, and play the Men, for we have no other hope to save our Lives, seeing we have thus tried the King. Certain stout Men of them therefore issued out, and encountering with the Romans, made a great slaughter among them. After that the Romans made ready their Engines, Planted their Battering Rams, playing with them against the Walls, and by that time Night came, beat so great a part thereof down to the Earth, that Vespasian, and much People with him might enter at their Pleasure. But Vespasian gave gave Commandment to his Army, that they should not enter that Night into the Town, but stand and compass the Walls until the Morrow, that they might the better see how to win it. Notwithstanding, they would not be ruled by him, but entred. Then the Jews came upon them, drew their Chains cross the Streets, and closing the Ways of the City, intrapped them in such fort, that they could go neither one way nor other. After that, setting upon them, beat them down even there; so that they were all slain, save Ten Men that fled with Vespasian, and a Captain named Butius, one of the best Men of War in all the Roman Army, yet him the Jews pursued and slew. But Vespasian and his fled to the Mountains, that he might be there in safe-guard: and from thence he sent to Titus his Son that was in Syria, for the Roman Army that he had lent with him into Persia, which Titus led into Jury.
The Wars of the Jews.

Shortly after, Vespasian gathered Soldiers, and repairing his Army, joined with Agrippa's Company, and returning to Seleucia, wan it, and slew every Man, leaving none alive: and afterwards going again to the Cities of Galilee, took them, serving them in like fort. After that, he came to the City called Nacelea, which was a walled Town, and of all the Towns of Defence throughout all Galilee, none left but it.

This he besieged, because thither resorted many Cut-throats and wicked Persons, without the fear of God, such as were Robbers and Rovers of the Land of Judæa. Amongst whom was a certain Man named Jehochanan, Learned, Wise and Prudent, especially to do mischief; a witty a witty Counsellor, and of such Eloquence, that he could perfwade cunningly, and diffwade Men from that they had purposed. Besides this, he was a Murtherer, ready to shed Blood, and to do any Mischief; a great Robber, and one that ever Gaped for other Men's Goods; by which means he was become very rich: Where-tore there resorted unto him all vain Persons, Man-flayers, Rebels, and Ruffians; like himself, giving them large Rewards, that they might be of his Fraternity, his Brethren and Adherents, and he to be their Head. Titus was sent to this City by his Father, to offer them Conditions of Peace; whither when he was come, he sent his Embassadors to the Citizens to treat of Peace with them: whereunto the Citizens Accorded, and were ready to enter into League with Titus: When as this wicked Jehochanan perceived, that the ancient Men of the Town and the Heads would accept of Peace, he commanded his Companions to guard the Walls, to hinder them from speaking with the Romans, saying, That they themselves would return them an Answer: So therefore Seditious Jehochanan made Answer to the Embassadors of Titus, saying, To Morrow have we a solemn Feast of the Lord God, tell thy Master Titus therefore, that he grant us Truce for two Days, and the third Day we will give him Answer; wherewith Titus was content, and de-fer'd the Assault for two Days. These things were done on Whitson-Eve, which was called the Feast of Weeks and Harvest. The Night afore the third Day appointed was come, Jehochanan and his Complices gat out of the Town, and fled toward toward Jerusalem, e'er Titus knew thereof: On the Morrow he sent his Embassadors to demand their answer what they would do? They answered, We desire to enter into a League with you, for we are yours; and submit our selves to your Pleasure, upon the Condition that none of the Romans hurt us, either in our Bodies or Goods. Titus upon this, made Peace with them, confirming it by Writing Sealed, for the better Assurance thereof. So they opened the Gates, and Titus came into the Town with his whole Army, and the Jews received him with great Joy, Honouring him very much.

Then Titus enquired for Jehoebanan and his Confederates. The Citizens declared unto him, how he fled by Night with all his, unto Jerusalem: Titus hearing that, sent after to pursue him, yet they found him not, he had made such Speed. Notwithstanding, many of the People that went out of the Town with him, that they might escape the Danger, both Men, Women, and Children, Old and Impotent Persons, they overtook, flew them every one, and returned with great Spoil. After this, Titus won all the Cities in Galilee, and the Rulers in them. Then Vespasian dislodged from thence, and came to the Mount Tabor, which hath Snow on it continually; the Height thereof is Thirty Furlongs, and upon the Top is a Plain Twenty three Furlongs long: Thither sent Vespasian one of his Captains, called Palgorus, which took the Mountain, and the Town that stood thereon.

But here I will leave off the History of the other Battles that were Fought in other Places in the Land of Israel and Galilee, and speak no more of them in this Book, for they be almost Innumerable, and we have made mention of them in the History of the Romans.

THE SECOND BOOK.

Containing the

HISTORY of the SIEGE

OF

JERUSALEM.

NOW will we describe the Battles of Jerusalem, and how the City was besieged by the Romans; wherein we will declare all things truly, as our manner is, and faithfully, according to the Verity of that that was done.

It came to pass therefore, as Jehochnan, the Galilean, was fled to Jerusalem, he found there Men meet for his purpose, Injurious Persons, Wicked Men, Murderers, Deceivers, Blood-spladders, an infinite Number. For out of all Countries, within the Land of Judea, there repaired thither all Men of War, to defend the Sanctuary of our God; and Anani, the High-Priest, received all that came. These seeing Jehochnan and and his Valiantness, revolted from Anani the High-Priest, and clave to him, consulting with him concerning all their Affairs: So he conspired with these Cut-throats to lay hands upon the rich Men of the City; and to spoil them of their Goods, and this was the manner. When they espied any notable rich Man of the City, they would after this sort quarrel with him: Art not thou he that hath sent Letters to the Romans, and to Vespasian, to betray the City unto them? Thus would they examine him before the People, and when he would answer, God forbid, I should do so; then would they bring in Godless Persons, Limbs of the Devil, of their own Company, to bear false Witness against him, that he might be condemned to Death by the Law for a Rebel.

Thus dealt they with Antipas and Lobia, both Noblemen, and of the Chief of the City; and their Goods, with all their Jewels, the Seditious seized for themselves. They pick'd Quarrels also with the High-Priests, thrust them from their Chairs, that they could not execute their Service. Moreover, they cast Lots, who should have the Priest's Office, and who should be no Priest. For they held the Priesthood and Service of God, for Toys, Gaudies and Trifles. So the Lot fell upon one that was called Pani the Son of Peniel, an arterly Husbandman, ignorant of what belonged to the Priest's Office, so that he was utterly unworthy of the Priesthood: So light a Matter made they of the Priesthood. The Good and the Godly Men of Jerusalem, seeing the Power of these Ruffians, and wicked Person and determined to withstand them by Force.
Persons bear such twinge, they stuck together
The People therefore earnestly moved with Anger, set upon them and encountered with them in such sort, that the Fight was great on both sides, in the Streets, in the Market-place, in the Temple, and in the entrance of the Temple, till all the City was filled full of dead Bodies and plain Men. For there was not so much as one Street, but there were some Skirmishes in it. The People at length got the upper hand of the Ruffians, for they were eagerly set, and earnestly bent against them. The Seditious therefore seeing themselves not able to make their Party good with the People, fled every Man into the Temple of the Lord, shut it after them, and there remained. But Anani the High-Priest, seeing the wicked to be fled to the Temple, willed the People to cease their Fighting with them in the Temple of the Lord, left they should pollute it with the Blood and dead Carcasses of those wicked Persons. The People therefore left off the Fight.
Then Anani beset the Temple round about with Six thousand of the choicest and ablest Men of the People, well armed all of them, with Jacks and Sallets, and as well Weapon'd, with every Man a Sword, a Target, and a Spear or Pike, to keep the Temple, that they should not come forth. Moreover, Anani cast in his Mind, that besides the Invading them in the Temple, which were no way seemly, it should also be as great a Damage, if the People of the Lord should assault one another in that Place. For these Causes, he sent Embassadors to Jehochanan the Galilean, chief Cap-
Captain of the Seditious and Thieves, offering him peace, but Jehochanan refused it: For the Seditious had sent for the Edomites to come and aid them. The Edomites had been ever from their first beginning very valiant and warlike Men, yet they were Subject to the Jews. For Hircanus King of Judea had conquered them, and caused them to be Circumciseth, binding such of them as were the best Warriors to his Service, to stand in Arms, and keep watch and ward upon the Walls of Jerusalem Day and Night, and the rest of them to pay Tribute to the Jews.

Upon a certain Night came 22000 of these Edomites, all good Men of War, against Jerusalem. When Anani the Priest, and the People that were with him, heard the noise of the Edomites Army, he went upon the Walls, and demanded of them what they were, from whence they came, and whether they would go? They answered, We are Edomites, and came out of Judea to visit the Lord God and his Temple, and to see in what case his People standeth: For thus we come according to our accustomed manner as ever heretofore. Anani answered, You are Dissemblers, and not as your words do shew, neither come you to seek God and his Sanctuary, nor yet to aid his People, but rather to the supporting of Jehochanan grand Captain of Thieves. Were it not better for you to assist the Sanctuary of God, than these sinful Seditious Persons, that covet nothing else than to lay waste the House of God, and to destroy his People: They in the most Holy City of God do shed the Blood of Just, Godly and Innocent Men; through whose Wickedness the Romans have the upper hand of us, because we have Civil Civil Wars at home with the Seditious, and external with the Romans. Yea, the Wickedness of the Seditious is grown so far, that the most part of us had rather be slain by the Romans, than of our Brethren the Jews. If so be ye be come to maintain them, ye shall understand that ye offend the Lord our God exceedingly, to help Sinners and Murthers, that tread the People of God under their Feet, like as Men tread Grapes in a Winepress, and make the Temple of the Lord a dwelling-place of Man-killers and wicked Persons. Ye say, ye come to seek the Lord; How is it then that ye are thus in Arms, after the manner of War? Ye shall understand, we shut not the Gates of the Town because of you, lest ye should come in, after your accustomed manner, but because of your Armour and Weapons that you have with you, which are Instruments of Destruction, a very unmeet fashion to come and visit the Lord; You should rather have come with Offerings, Sacrifices, Confession and Praise. Notwithstanding, if ye will enter into the Town for Devotion sake, ye are welcome: But ye must lay away your Weapons and so enter in peaceably.

The Edomites answered, We Marvel not a little at thee which art the High-Priest, our Lord and Mediator, and at the rest of the Priests of the Lord, with the Elders and Judges of the People that be present with thee: And your Words seem strange in our Ears. For we understand you take us for your Enemies, and therefore upon you stop us of our Entrance into the City, to visit the Lord God after our accustomed manner, manner, in that we be armed as ye object unto us: Do you not know that Vespasian draweth nigh to come to this Holy City? This we hearing of, was the Cause that we took our Weapons with us, to come and aid you, and keep the Town, as we have been wont these many Years. But how should you gather this, that we come to support the Wicked and Seditious that be with you; when as from the first day that ever we and our Fathers were Circumcised, we never swerved from the Law and Commandments of the Lord? Tell us if there be any Commandment in the Law, that biddeth a Man to strengthen and maintain the Power of the Wicked, by the which we are bound to hearken and to aid these. God forbid we should do this, for we all both that be here, and the other Edomites also, be Servants of the Lord and his People, and the House of the Lord. While they were thus talking together, there arose up a great Cloud, and Lightnings were seen, with Fire and Darkness, with mighty Thunder-claps and Showers of Hail, that all that saw it were wonderfully afraid, wherefore the People fled wholly; left not only the Walls, but Anani also, for they could not abide to tarry any longer: But Anani took heart unto him, and abode it, to mark those horrible Signs of Heaven which did appear, that he might judge what they betokened.
And he gave this Judgment indeed (but not according to the Truth) that the Thunder and Hail, with Darkness, signified God's Help; by the Hope whereof they should defend the Sanctuary of the Lord. So likewise judged all the Elders that were
Ibe Warsof the Jew

were with him, without perceiving that all these Signs betokened the Evils that should come upon Jerusalem and all Israel.

When they that were shut in the Temple, perceived that they that kept the Watch before the Gate of the Temple, were fled also, for fear of the Tempest, they went and opened the Doors of the Temple, and in that Darkness, which although it was so great, that one could not see another for the thickness thereof, neither durst any of the Town once look out of his Doors (they were so afraid of those terrible Signs of the Element) yet came those desperate Fellows, the Seditious, out of the Temple, drew towards the Walls without all Fear with Saws and other Instruments, to cut afunder the Bars of the Gates. And when the crashing of the Thunder and Hail was greatest, then laboured they hardest in wresting the Locks and Bolts off the Gates, left they should be perceived. And ever when the Thunder-clap was past, then stayed they and left off till it came again. Thus played they till they had broken and opened the Gates, and let the Edomites into the City; who being once come in, wan-dred here and there for that Night, devising how they might set upon the Citizens of the Town, and utterly destroy them.

They call'd out first their Confederates, that remained in the Temple, brought them thence, and joined together with the Edomites, swearing one to another, That they should be one People and one Army. And forthwith, being so confederater together, they flew the same Night 8500 of the People of God, all good Men of God, all good Men of War; besides innumerable others, that they killed of the common People. In the Morning they laid hands on the rich Men, haled them before the Judges, and 70 Elders, which otherwise is called Sanhedrim, whom they called together: And there wicked Jebochanan the Galilcan, spake unto them in this wise.

Why condemn ye not these rich Cobs, that have made a Conspiracy with the Romans, and determine to betray this holy City into their Hands? namely, One Sechariabu, a just Man, a Perfect, Godly and Vertuous, one that feared the Lord, and loved both God and Man; but for his Riches only, which were great, this Jebochanan (Captain of the Seditious) apprehended him, willing the Elders to condemn him to Death, for that he had joyned with their Enemies, (as he said) to betray the City to them. The Priests, Elders and Judges, hearing his words, and perceiving that both he and the rest of his bloody Band, desired nothing else than to make this Man away, although they knew him to be most innocent, they wept and sighed greatly. Jebochanan seeing them weep for Sechariabu and that they would not condemn him, respecting his Justice and Integrity; What, quoth he, do you begin to mourn before there be any Corpse present? I would I should never come where God hath to do, but if ye order it thus in your Judgments, ye shall be the first that we will lay hold of, and we will sit in Judgment ourselves, to discern the Matter for the People of God, according as we shall think good. Then laying apart all Shame, with an obstinate Mind the wicked fort hoisted away Sechariabu, carried him out of the place of Judgment, and brough him up to the top of a high Tower, at the East end of the Town, from whence they cast him down headlong, and he died at the Wall-side in the Vale of Jehosaphat. The Priests therefore were sore afraid for their own Parties, and the Judges also with the Elders seeing the Wickedness of Jehochanan, and the rest of the Seditious: For Jehochanan had given them warning and said, Except ye give Sentence on every Man that we shall bring unto you, according to our Minds, be ye assured all ye shall go the same way that Sechariabu is gone before you. After that, they apprehended a just Man, and a rich, that was beloved of all the Town, whose Name was Gorinian, surnamed Valiant, and he was a valiant Man indeed, most expert in Wars, thereto wise and witty, and a Man of a pure and perfect Line, one that was ever the foremost in Battle, whencesoever they had any Conflict against the Gentiles that besieged Jerusalem: And this was his accustomed manner, when the Enemies marched to join Battle with the Jews, he would run upon them with all his might, and made such slaughter of them, that in spite of their Hearts he would force them to retire; and by that means his Body was full of Scars, his Face and Head wonderfully mangled with the Wounds that he had received in the Battles that he had been in for the People of the Lord; yet now because he would not follow the villainous mind of Jehochanan, and take his part, Jehochanan commanded him to be apprehended, and brought before him, and when he was come, said thus unto him, Make thy Will, and set thy House in order, and confess thy self unto the Lord.
Lord, for there is no way with thee, but Death: And so they led him out of the Town to kill him there, left there should be any business about his Death, if he had been put to death within the Town; for all the Citizens of Jerusalem loved him; and he likewise loved them. When they were come to the place of Execution, Gorrinion fell down before them, and besought them with Tears in this wise: Seeing ye have so determined that ye will needs slay me, when as notwithstanding I have committed no Crime, nor any Offence, and that ye will in no wise spare me although I be innocent, as you know well enough your selves; yet I beseech you, let me obtain this one thing at your hands, that you would do so much at least-wise, at my Request, as to bury my Body, other Favour I desire not. They make him answer, If thou hadst not spoken to us thereof, we had thought to have done it, for so we were determined with our selves; but now, seeing thou art so bold as to demand this of us, we will slay thee, but Burial gettest thou none; thy Body shall be cast forth unto the Beasts of the Earth and Fowls of the Air. Gorrinion yet besought them to the contrary, until the most cruel Jehochanan struck him, and flew him, and after threw out his Body to the Beast of the Field: This done, they returned into the City.

Vespasian in the mean season, drew nigh to Jerusalem; for he had pitched his Tents at Cæsarea, where he relieved his Army, and paid his Soldiers great Wages, wherefore they tarried in the City many Days: For when Vespasian understood of the Wars of Jerusalem, he said unto his his People, Let us make no haste to besiege Jerusalem, till such time as they have slain one another among themselves, and so at length their Pride will be pulled down, when as they see themselves waste away with cruel War, Hunger, and Thirst. For Vespasian was a wonderful politick Man in all Feats of War; and his Wisdom never turned him to more Commodity, than by this Device only. So he sojourned at Cesarea, with his Men many days: In the mean season the People of Jerusalem made War upon Jehochanan and his Complices, till innumerable of them were destroyed. Some of them were slain with Swords, some the Seditious killed with short Daggers. For certain of the Seditious carried short Daggers secretly under their Garments, wherewith they would come so suddenly upon an honett and just Man, and thrust him to the Heart, that he should fall down dead in the Place, without knowledge who struck him: So by this means, what with Swords in open Frays, and what with Daggers secretly, many of the People were slain, and far more that way than by the Romans; insomuch, that now very few Citizens were left alive. Thus when Jehochanan had gotten the upper-hand of the City, he sent an Army out of Jerusalem to go and take the Cities that had made Peace with Vespasian, which they lacked and razed to the Ground, and whomsoever they found therein, Romans or Jews, they flew: Ye a Jehochanan went with them himself, spoiling and carrying away all the Riches that they found in them. They took also the City Gerara, that stood beyond Jordan, whereas they remained.
The Inhabitants of Jerusalem, both Priests, Elders, and the rest of the People, sent Embassadors to Vespasian, to desire Peace of him, and succour against Jehochanan, and his wicked Rabble, which daily in the Town flew very many of the People of God. The Citizens also of Gerara sent Embassadors unto Vespasian, saying, If thou wilt be Lord over the Land of Judea, and the City of Jerusalem, and desirest to assure the Rule thereof, and establish it unto thee, then hearken unto our Counsel, and come unto us without delay, to deliver us from the Hands of Jehochanan, and the wicked seditious Persons, that with all their Might endeavour to spoil all our Goods, and to get the Dominion over us, our Wives and Children, to none other purpose, than by that means to destroy us utterly, that no Remnant of us should be left. If so be thou wilt come, and valiantly withstand them with thy Power, we will also fight against them in the Town till they be all slain, and then thou shalt be our Lord: And that done, thou mayest go to Jerusalem without any Impediment or Hindranchise of any Man; for they also of that City desire the same, and would gladly become Subjects unto the Romans.

When as therefore Vespasian heard the Petitions of the Citizens of Gerara, he took his Journey thither to succour them, and deferred to go to Jerusalem. But Jehochanan heard of his repair, wherefore he flew the chief Governour of Gerara, and got him out of the Town with his Companions, and took them to their Feet, determining to flee into a certain Wood: Vespasian having knowledge thereof, made after them, sending out Poligorus, who overtook them, and made a great slaughter of them. And in his return toward Gerara, upon Jordan side, he light upon much People going to Jerusalem, that they might escape together with the Seditious. Then Poligorus drove back to the River, where he flew Thirteen Thousand of them: The rest leaped into Jordan, and were drowned, to the number of Ninety one thousand, Men, Women and Children, with much Cattle, that were all drowned together in the River; insomuch, that the Channel of Jordan was so stuffed and stopd with dead Bodies, that the Waters rose and ran over the Banks here and there into the Fields and Plains; yet at length the Waters increased, and bare the Carcasses down the River, as far as the Sea of Sodom, which is the Sea of Pitch, otherwise called the Salt Sea; and all the Banks of Jordan lay full of dead Bodies.
The Wars of the Jews.

After this, Vespasian took his Journey from thence, and went into the Land of Edom, where he won two strong Cities, the one called Legarith, and the other Cephar Toco, and flew 10000 of the People thereof, leading the rest away in Bondage. Then he dislodged, and came to a Town called Chamath Gedi, which he subdued. In this City were Well-springs of hot Waters, from whence the hot Baths of Tiberius have their Original. The natural Philosophers and Astronomers of that Country, held an Opinion that these are the Heads of all the hot Well-springs in that whole Country. Departing from thence, he came to Samaria and won it.
Then repaired he again all the Towns that he had subdued, and made up their Walls, placing Garrisons therein, to aid him, what time he should besiege Jerusalem. That done, he returned to Cesa-rea, to take muster of his whole Army, and prepared to go to besiege Jerusalem.

But in the mean season, came Messengers from Rome, and brought him word that Nero the Empe-or was dead; and how that as he was a hunting in the Country, the Fire of the Lord came down from Heaven, and fell down upon him that he dyed for it.

After whom reigned Galba, not one whole Year:
for afore it was fully ended, he was slain by the Noblemen of Rome: and Vitellius created in his stead a Fool, yet a fore cruel Man, much given to Drunkenness, so that he was in all Points unworthy of the Roman Empire.

The Noblemen of Rome that were with Vespasian hearing this, greatly disdained at that Matter, and said, Was there never a Nobleman in Rome left, to be placed in the Empire, but ye must choo#{a_hidden}: a drunken Wine-fucker? Why did ye not rather elect the mighty Prince Vespasian that is here with us, a Sage and a Wise Man, therto also most valiant, one that had conquered many Cities, and vanquished many Nations, and those most fierce?
What puissant Kings hath he subdued unto the Roman Empire! How far and wide hath he enlarged the Empire of the Romans? And now when-as the Empire ought to have been bestowed upon Vespasian, or some one like unto him, and none such could be found among you, ye be#{a_hidden}:
it upon a Fool, and a blowboole Drunkard, wherein ye
ye have done very undiscreetly. Well, the Empire of Rome that have a better Emperor one day, and God say, Amen.

Whereupon the Princes that were there, laid their Heads together, and decreed to make Vespasian Emperor. Therefore with one consent they went unto Vespasian, and said unto him, Thou shalt be our Head, for the Empire belongeth to such a one, and thou shalt have Dominion over us. But Vespasian refused to take it on him, and would in no wise consent to them. Notwithstanding they compelled him, and placed him upon the Throne of Majesty, setting an Imperial Crown upon his Head, which he would have put away, and pulled off with his Hand because he would not be Emperor. Wherefore the Roman Captains drew out their Swords, and said, Thou shalt be Emperor, and reign over us, therefore refuse it not: if thou do, thou shalt die upon our Swords. Vespasian therefore seeing himself constrained, being afraid of his Life, he was content to suffer himself to be proclaimed Emperor. Then all the Army was sworn unto him, and he sat upon the Royal Seat, as Emperor and King of Kings.

The Civil Wars at Jerusalem encreased more and more, and much Blood was shed through the Wickedness of Jehochohanan, Captain of the Thieves, a Limb of the Devil, and through the Cut-throat Murderers that were with him, who had all even sworn the utter Destruction of the City of the Lord, and the Death of the People.

There was also another Cut-throat Ruffian of a noble House of Judea and Jerusalem about the same time, called Schimeon, who began also to follow Jehocbanan’s Manners in slaying Innocents, and robbing and raving in Jerusalem. For Anani the High-Priest had once appointed him Prince and chief Captain of Jerusalem, and afterwards finding him an Enemy, banished him the City. Wherefore Schimeon went and gat him a Rout of Unthrifts, Murtherers, and Thieves, casting in his Mind, and saying, Except I join my self with such good Fellows, I shall never be able to be revenged of Anani and his Assistants that have thus banished me out of Jerusalem into Exile wrongfully, unto my great Dishonour. Shall I that have been in such Estate, now be cast out of my Dignity, and be constrained to wander here and there as a banished Man? He went therefore through all the Cities of Judea and Galilee, causing to be proclaimed in the Streets and Market-places, and sent his Letters where he could not come himself, in this Manner and Form:

V V Hoofo listeth to be rid from the Bondage of his Master, or hath had any Injury in his Country, or what Servants soever desireth to be set at liberty, or who so cannot abide the rule of his Father or Master: all that be in debt, and stand in fear of your Creditors, or fear the Jews for shedding any innocent Blood, and therefore lurketh solitarily in Woods or Mountains; if there be any Man that is accused of any notorious Crime, and in any danger therefore; To be short, Whosoever is disposed to Rob and to do Injury and Wrong, to haunt Where, to Steal, to Murther,
The Wars of the Jews. 167

Murther, to Eat and Drink at other Mens Cost, without Labour of his Hands, let him resort to me, I will deliver him from the Yoke and Danger of the Laws, and will find him his fill of Booties and Spoils.

There assembled unto him about Twenty thousand Men, all Murtherers, Thieves, Rebels, Lawless Persons, Wicked and Seditious Men.

Then began Schimeon also to vex the Israelites, to turn all up-side down wherefoever he came. When the Citizens of Jerusalem, the Priests, Elders, and Anani, heard Tydings of Schimeon's despicable Wickedness, how he held on still oppressing the People of God, they were very pensive, saying, Now will this Fellow more trouble us than Jehochanan, be he never so cruel. They consulted therefore and agreed, secretly to send a Power against him, that might suddenly fall upon him, and overthrow him. Peradventure, say they, they may slay him or take him alive, before this Wickedness grow to further Inconvenience, and join himself with our Foes; then shall he afflict us both within the Town and without.

They sent out therefore against him a great Army of Israelites and Jews, with Chariots and Horsemen, and Footmen in great number, which came where the Camp lay, and found him in the Corn Fields destroying of the Grain, pulling down of Barns, and burning all, both Corn and Olive-Trees: Then the Jerusalemites divided their Army, and set upon Schimeon's Tents suddenly, smote them down, and made a great slaughter upon the Seditious.

But shortly after, Schimeon gat the upper-hand of the People of God, for he came upon them in the the night season and made a foreslaughter amongst them: Then they that remained, took themselves to flight towards Jerusalem, and Schimeon pursued them, killing them hard unto the Gates of Jerusalem. So that many of them were slain in the way, and very few escaped.

After this, Schimeon went and moved War upon the Edomites, to subdue them unto himself, which before were under the Dominion of the Jerusalemites: And first, he came to the City Aza, otherwise called Gaza, for it was the first City within the Borders of Edom, as Men come from Jerusalem. But the Edomites met him in the Field in great number, and joined Battel: neither part had the Victory, therefore at length they retired both.

Then was Schimeon in so great a rage, when as he could not overcome these Edomites, that he wisht him out of his Life. So he ceased fighting a while, and encamped himself in the Border of the Land of Edom, right against it, and there abode, thinking to fet upon them at another time. And as he was devising how to order all things, there came unto him an Edomite called Jacob, one of the chiefest Men among them, and a Warrior. He hearing of Schimeon’s Proclamation, was moved to come and enter a League with him: and thereupon said unto him, Never let it discomfort thee, that thou could not overcome the Edomites at the first Battle: If thou wilt be ruled by my Counsel, thou shalt win all the Cities in the whole Land, and I will deliver them into thy Hand.
Schimeon desired to know how; therefore, said he, Let us hear thy Counsel, and shew us how it may be brought about, and when it is come to pass, then will we honour thee, and regard thee accordingly.

Jacob said, Give me one half of thine Army, which I will lead with me into an Ambush; then shalt thou in the Morning betimes set thy Men in Array against the Edomites for a Stale; and when thou shalt perceive them to come against thee, then make as though thou fleddest, until thou hast steeled them out of the Town into the Fields to pursueth e.

Then will I with my Men come out of our Ambush, and make speed to the Gates, where we shall kill the Warders, and suddenly enter the Town; and killing all that we find there, set up a Flag upon the Tower of the Town. Then when the Edomites shall see that, their Hearts will be dead for sorrow; and so mayest thou turn again upon them, and beat them down at thy Pleasure: Or if thou like not this Device, hear yet another way. I have been a Captain amongst them a long while, therefore I will return in the Night Season into the Town; if the Watch examine me from whence I come, I will tell them I come from Schimeon's Camp, whither I went as a Spy; then will I go to the Elders of the Town, and desire them to let me have a Company of the best Soldiers, and I will bring Schimeon into their Hands, if he set upon us again. For I have viewed the Camp, and his Power, and understand that he intends to Morrow to fall on us, which thou shalt do indeed. And when thou seeest me to issue out against thee, thou shalt set thy Spear
Spear in the rest, and come towards me, then will I take me to flight, and cast a fear in the Edomites Hearts, that they shall flee also? Which done, thou mayest pursue and slay them at thy Pleasure, overcome them, and enter the Town; then that Town, great Asia, once taken, thou shalt quickly win all the rest. When Schimeon heard this, he went and deliberated with his own Council, and they liked the last Advice best, wherfore that they concluded upon. So Jacob the Edomite returned by Night to Asia, and declared to the Ancients of the Town, how he had been in Schimeon's Camp, and had viewed his Army, whereby he had perceived good Hope, that he should deliver Schimeon into their Hands shortly. The Elders therefore made him grand Captain, and chief of all their Men of War, charging every Man in this wise: Forasmuch as none of you are so expert in the knowledge of Warfare as is Jacob, therefore it behoveth you to follow him in all things: If he set forward, set ye forward: Whereas he pitcheth his Tent, pitch ye also; if he stay, stay ye; if he fleeth, flee ye: To be short, when he returneth, then return ye, and go not one Hairs breadth from that that he shall command you, neither one way nor other. Upon the next Morrow Schimeon issued out of his Camp, with all his Army, and upon that assembled Jacob his Men, and went out to meet him: But when they came to the point ready to joyn, and Schimeon with his Company had charged their Slaves against them, by and by Jacob left the Field, turned his Back and fled, and the chief Soldiers that were about him fled with him.
The rest of the People seeing their Captain flee, they took themselves likewise to flight every Man: Then Schimeon pursuing, made a great slaughter of them, and won the Town, bringing them under his Subjection. And when he had sacked the Houses of them that were slain of the Edomites, and spoiled their Goods, which was very much, the rest that he took Prisoners, and kept alive, he made Peace withal, and joyed them unto his own Camp.

After that, he departed from thence, accompanied with 40000 good fighting Men, part Edomites and part Jews, and came to Chebron, which he won, and destroyed all their Grain and Corn-Fields: Yet after he repaired the Walls, and such of them as were left alive made Peace with Schimeon, who received them into League with him, and they became his Men, and followed him in all his Wars. So he dislodged from thence with all his Army, which by the accession of the Chebronites was now wonderfully increased, and determined to invade Jerusalem.

And when he came nigh unto the City, he ranged here and there, destroying the Fruits that were upon the Ground, and also their Corn.

Captain Jebocbanan having Intelligence of Schimeon's coming to besiege the Town, and how he had destroyed the Fields, thought to have gone out of Jerusalem, and to fight with him, but he durst not, for his Spies had told him, that he should not be able to overcome him, he had so puissant an Army, and so well appointed. Yet nevertheless he issued out, and lay in Ambush for Schimeon. In the mean space, by chance Schimeon's Wife, that was fled out of Jerusalem, with her Men and Women Servants toward her Husband, for fear left she should be slain for her Husbands sake, if she should have tarried at Jerusalem, passed by where he lay in his Ambush: Her he took, and brought again to Jerusalem, not a little proud of such a Prey, thinking, now we shall have Schimeon at our Pleasure, seeing we have his Wife our Prisoner; he loveth her so entirely, that he will do for her sake whatsoever we will have him. This came to Schimeon's Ear, who had taken that time many of Jehochanan's Men, and cut off the Right Hands, sending them with such Shame to Jerusalem to their Master. He sent moreover Embassadors to Jehochanan, willing him to send him his Wife, in such fort, that she might come to him with all that was hers: Or if he refused to do it, he should be extremely handled, for he would take the Town e'er it were long, and to Jehochanan's Shame, cut off the Hands and Legs of all them that did inhabit it.

Jehochanan hearing this, was fore afraid, and all that were with him, and therefore they sent him his Wife; whereupon Schimeon kept him without the Town. And as Schimeon played the Tyrant without, so likewise did Jehochanan within: For Jehochanan's Soldiers ravished the Israelites Wives, and shed innocent Blood.

Shortly after, Schimeon left the Town for a space, and returned into Idumea; for he had word, That the Men of most Power, and the richest sort of that Country, rebelled. Whereupon he sacked and spoiled all the Towns of Idumea, and left them nothing; insomuch, that he was become become very rich, and then returned to Jerusalem, bringing the Edomites wholly with him, that were met for War: and many of the Jews returned to him, and with his Power he besieged Jerusalem, even at the very Gates. Yet the Tyranny of Jehochanan and his Complices ceased not, but increased more and more daily in Jerusalem, inasmuch that they taught the Citizens of Jerusalem to murder their Neighbours, and to commit Adultery with their Wives: by which means Fornication was rife and common in the City. Yea, many of the People and Youths shaved their Beards, letting the Hair of their Heads grow, and accompanied themselves with Women, that they might exercise their Adultery safer, and not be espied, which sin did wonderfully defile the City of Jerusalem, and without doubt furthered the Defoliation thereof. The Gates also of the Town were closed up, that no Man might go in or out. And who so went out, fell into the Hands of Schimeon, and was slain: they that tarried within, were constrained to see before their Faces, their shame in every Street and Corner; and if any found fault, he was slain straight by Jehochanan, that most cruel Captain of the Seditious Rebels.

The Citizens therefore seeing the Tyranny of Jehochanan to be without measure, they assembled all together, and encountered with Jehochanan, and were slain a wonderful sort of them in that Conflict. And except the Edomites that were fled to Jerusalem from the Tyranny of Schimeon, had succoured the Citizens, the whole People of Jerusalem had been utterly destroyed and slain every Mother's Son by Jehochanan; his Power was so great.

Then
Then Anani the High-Priest, and the other Priest, with the ancient, faithful, and Sages, and the rest of the People of Jerusalem, seeing the Wickedness of Jehochanan, and that they could not suffer it any longer, consulted together to deliver the Town to Schimeon; and bring him in, and make him their King, to help them against Jehochanan, whom they took to be far worse than Schimeon, hoping that it might come to pass, that Schimeon should slay Jehochanan at length. They sent therefore Amittai the High-Priest to Schimeon, to bring him into the Town; but Schimeon craftily denied it, saying, What, should I come into the Town to you that hate me, and of late banished me your Town? Yet they ceased not, but sent the same Amittai to him again, to intreat him, in the Name of all the People, to come into the City. And by this means, upon a certain night appointed, he entred into Jerusalem with his whole Army: Notwithstanding, he was no sooner within the Town, but he brake his Promise and League that he had made with the Citizens; and whereas he had promised to succour them, and aid them, now he was altered, and became their Enemies, joining himself with Jehochanan: And those two Rebels reigned in the City of Jerusalem by course, one one Month, and another another. So where before Schimeon’s coming, they thought much to bear the Yoke and Oppression of one Seditious Person, now were they constrained to hold down their Shoulders, and bear the Yoke of Two.

Yet within Two Days after, there fell a Variance and Discord between Jehochanan and Schimeon.
meon about Eleazar the Priest, the Son of Anani the High-Priest. This Eleazar was the beginner, and first fower of Sedition amongst the Israelites, whom Schimeon would now have put to death, to be revenged of his Father that banished him out of Jerusalem; but Jehochanan took Eleazar’s part, and defended him: For Eleazar was always Jehochanan’s Friend, and aided him; his Father was High-Priest, and bare a great Rule in Jerusalem; wherefore Eleazar was of a great estimation and authority with the Elders, so that they durst not apprehend him; and as his Father also looked negligently unto him, and let him do what he list, because he had no more Sons but him, so he was the first that assembled naughty Persons together, and held ever on Jehochanan’s side, from his first coming to Jerusalem. And for his sake, fell division and dissention between Jehochanan and Schimeon, so that they became Enemies, and warred the one upon the other ever after, as we shall declare hereafter.

C H A P. V.

In this while, Vespasian had sent Antony, and Mankinimas, (two Noblemen, and of his Council) to Rome against Vitellius, that they might make him out of the way, and then would he come to Rome to receive the Imperial Crown there.

These two Captains went therefore and raised an Army, by whose aid they set upon Vitellius.
lius, and flew him not without much ado; for there were slain that day at Rome, eighty thousand good Men of War. When Vespasian had word that he was dispatched, he made speed to Rome to his Coronation, dividing first his Army into two parts, whereof he took the one with him to Rome, as a Safeguard for himself, whatsoever should happen, and the other he left with Titus his Son to besiege Jerusalem withal. So departing, he left his Son Titus at Alexandria, commanding him to remain there, till such time as he should signify unto him otherwise by his Letters, and shew him what he should do; and that in no wise he should attempt the Siege of Jerusalem in the mean space. Titus answered, I shall do (dear Father) according unto your Commandment, for to you it belongeth to command, and unto me to obey.

Vespasian took with him King Agrippa, and Munabas his Son, he fearing left they would rebel, and me Joseph Priest and Prisoner also fast bound in Chains: For so had his Council moved him, saying, We cannot say the contrary, but that we have found no sign of Rebellion in Joseph hitherto, neither think we that he hath gone about any; but who can tell when we are gone hence, whether he will not flee to Jerusalem, and help to set them at Unity and Concord? Then they make him their King, and after he be the forer Enemy unto us? Besides this, you shall have need of him in this Journey, he being a Man of such great Prudence and Wisdom, that whosoever followeth his Counsel, shall bring his Matters to good and fortunate Success. Vespasian liked well their Advice, and took him Prisoner with him, together with King Agrippa and his Son; albeit they had no Irons upon them, neither on Hand or Foot, but only had their Keepers appointed them, that they should not step aside.

And as Vespasian drew nigh Rome, all the Citizens came forth to meet him, and received him with great Joy, and mighty Shews. Then he commanded that I should be put in Prison, but Agrippa and his Son he let go at liberty. The next day assembled all the Senate of Rome, to create Vespasian Emperor, after the manner of the Romans, with whom was Agrippa and his Son. I also entreated the Jaylor to let me have Keepers with me, and so to bring me to the Place where he should be crowned Cesar: which the Jaylor granted me, and went with me himself to the place, and brought me where I might see all that was done. Within few days after, Vespasian took displeasure with Agrippa; upon the Information of certain evil disposed Persons that had flandered him, and persuaded Vespasian that he went about to rebel, and how he had sent Letters unto Jerusalem, concerning the same Matter; wherefore Vespasian put both him and his Son Munabas to death.

This befel three years and a half before the Destruction of Jerusalem. Moreover, before this Deed, the continual Sacrifice ceased for a Thousand two hundred and ninety days, as it is written in Dan. Chap. 12. And from the time that the continual Sacrifice shall be taken away, and Abomination shall be put into Desolation, a thousand two hundred and ninety days.
The same Year and Month that Agrippa was put to death, God moved the mind of Vespasian to remember me with his Mercy; wherefore he commanded that I should be fetched out of Prison and brought to his Presence. And as I stood in Irons before him, Cæsar bad me welcome, and spake comfortably unto me, saying, Thou knowest very well that I have loved thee from the Day I first saw thee, and tho' I have kept thee continually in duration, do not think I did it of any Ill-will or Malice toward thee; but rather thou mayest persuade thy self, I did it left the Roman Princes should disdain at thee, and say, See here is a Fellow, that in our Wars hath endamaged us so greatly, yet now goeth he check-mate with us, in as great Favour as we: Let us kill him, and put him out of the way. But, my Friend Joseph, be of good chear, I will deliver thee from these Iron Bands, and thou shalt be with me in no worse case than one of my chief Princes. I will send thee into Jewry to my Son Titus, to whom thou shalt be as a Father and a Counsellor.

Thou knowest, Titus was he that took pity on thee, and would not suffer thee to be put to death; Yea, he hath sundry times moved me to release thee of thy Bonds, and to honour thee, which I have deferred to do only for this cause that I shewed thee. I made him answer, But how can I be quiet, or in surety of my Life, as long as I am in thy Company and thy Sons, seeing Agrippa and his Son were suddenly put to death by you? Cæsar anfwered, Hold thy Peace Joseph, I never looked for any Goodness of Agrippa and his Son. Thou knowest not what they they had wrought against my Majesty, and how they went about to rebel; thou hast born their Bones with thy Hands. Dost thou not know how I honoured him and his Son in Jewry? how I would not suffer any of my Army to annoy any of his Cities? I answered, Yes, I know it was so as your Majesty faith. Then said he, But for all this hath Agrippa requited me again with Evil. For what time as the Nobles of Rome in Jewry went about to make me Emperor, thinking me somewhat more meet to rule the Empire than Vitellius, Agrippa perswaded them that they should not make me Emperor, affirming, That there was nothing in me worthy wherefore they should promote me to that Dignity. And after when he came to Rome, he went from one Bishop to another, and caused them to go to the Bishops, to accuse me of such Crimes as in my Conscience I knew nothing at all of.

By this I perceived that Agrippa's Heart was full of Rancour and Rebellion, and therefore I judged him to Death. For where as Wickedness is, there it is meet that condign Punishment should not be lacking. And I put his Son to death likewise; For the Son of a Traytor ought not to live upon the Earth, because that in his Heart remaineth the Work of his Father, being conceived and born of a Rebellious Seed. But I have found thee always faithful and true, and therefore I commend my Son to thy Wisdom. With this he commanded my Irons to be taken away from me, and being released and at liberty, he set me honourably among the Princes and Senators. Then said I unto him, Is not this this a great Dishonour unto me, that I should be delivered from my Bonds, and nevertheless my Country-men that be with me to be kept in Prison still? Now therefore, if I have found favour in thy sight, and if thou wilt do any thing at my request, loose the Bonds likewise of all the rest of the Israelites that be with me: set them at liberty also, and thou shalt be assured that I will be thy faithful Counsellour while my life laiseth, and an Enemy to thy Foes, and make War upon them that afail thee.
The Wars of the Jews.

Vespasian granted Joseph his Request, and willed them to be set at Liberty, as many as were Prisoners with Joseph. Shortly after, sent he Joseph to his Son Titus, that abode at that present at Alexandria in Egypt, to whom he writ concerning Joseph in this manner.

I send unto thee here (my beloved Son) Joseph a Prince of the Jews, a Man of Experience, trained in War, in whom is great Wisdom; he shall be thy Father and faithful Counsellour, thou shalt not do against his Counsel, neither one way nor other, for he is a wise Man. Wherefore thou shalt reverence and honour him according as he is worthy, for the Lord God is with him, and believe not rashly any Man that defames Joseph unto thee. Tea, rather put him to death straightway, that will accuse him, for Joseph is a faithful Man, and a good Counsellour; and who is so ruled by his Counsel, shall have a prosperous Success in that he goeth about. Therefore when Joseph shall come unto thee, after he hath refreshed himself a few days of his Labours and Travels at the Sea; then shalt thou prepare thine Expedition against Jerusalem, to besiege it. And if the Jews receive thee peaceably, and will submit themselves under the Roman Empire, then beware thou endamage them in nothing, but rather repair their Cities, and let them be free from all Tribute for the Space of two Years; yet on this Condition, that thrice every Year they set a Flag with the Arms of the Romans upon their Walls; that is to say, at their three solemn Feasts, when as all the Israelites were wont to resort unto Jerusalem, and to appear before the Lord their God. Moreover, they shall offer for us every Feast a Sacrifice, upon the most holy Altar that is in Jerusalem. And if they refuse to make Peace with thee, thou shalt utterly raze their Town, and whosoever are left alive and escape the Sword, those shalt thou lead away Captive. If they desire to have Joseph to be their King, we are content therewith. In any wise remember to be ruled by Joseph's Counsel; he shall be thy Father, and thou his Son.

After this, Joseph departed from Rome, and came to Alexandria to Titus, who hearing of Joseph's arrival was wondrous glad, and all the ancient Wise Men with him; for Joseph was full of the Spirit of Wisdom, Understanding, Counsel, Valiantness, Knowledge, and Fear of God.

Wherefore we went forth to meet him, accompanied with the Captains of the Roman Army, and received him with great Honour. Then Joseph delivered to Titus his Fathers Letters; which Titus having read, said unto Joseph, Whatsoever my Father hath written in these Letters, I would have done no less by my own accord; but sith my Father hath admonished me of the same, I ought to do it the more. Wherefore remain here with me, and I will be thy Son, and thou shalt be my Father, to rule and govern me with thy Counsel.
The Wars of the Jews.

So Joseph abode with Titus at Alexandria, a whole Month after he came from Rome. Then consulted they together to go to Jerusalem and besiege it; for Joseph understood well enough, That this came of the Lord, and that his word could not be letted or hindred. Titus therefore, and Joseph with him, departed from Alexandria with all their Army, and pitched their Tents at Nicopolis, from thence they came by Water to Thanisa, so forth to Iraclea, and leaving that, came to Peliss, from thence they travelled through the Desert to Baale Javin, after that to Dieron, so to Gaza, next to Askalon, then to Jabuan, after to Japho, and so to Caesare. In these Journeys he won Asam, Askalon and Japho, with all their Towns and Cattles lying about them.

The First Year of the Reign of Vespasian, the Tenth Month, and the Seventh Day of the same, came Titus with Joseph and his Army to Caesarea, a famous City built by King Herod. In this City he sojourned until his whole Host were come together, as well of Romans as of other Nations, that were under the Dominion of the Romans, and came to aid them in the Siege of Jerusalem. Therefore Titus's Army was wonderfully huge and puissant wherewith he abode at Caesarea, till the cold Winter was past, and the Month of July drew nigh: the same Years the Civil Wars grew and increased in Jerusalem; for the Citizens flew one another without any truce, rest, or quietness, no not in Winter, when as Wars were wont to cease, but Summer and Winter both, the Wars never stinted between Schimeon, Jehochanan, and Eleazar. For the Lord that Year had sent amongst them of Jerusalem...
Salem a vertiginous Spirit of Giddiness, that the People were divided into Three Parts: whereof the first and best followed Anani the Priest, who at that time had stained, unhallowed, and suspended his Office of Priesthood. Another part followed Seditious Jebochanan, the Third was for Schimeon. So that in the midst of Jerusalem were Civil Wars, and without the same, the Roman Army made Roads from Cæsarea even to Jerusalem, by the means whereby no Man durst go forth, lest he should fall into the Enemies hands, nor enter into the Town to bring any Necessaries thither. Anani being a perfectly godly Man, and seeing the Common-Wealth of Jerusalem governed by the pleasure of the Seditious, gave over his third Part that stuck to him to Eleazar his Son, which was the first Author of Sedition, and he that gave the first occasion, and the cause of all the Mischief that befel in Jerusalem, and in the whole Land of Judea: For he began a Conspiracy against the Roman Garrisons, and provoked Israel to rebel against the Romans, and to lay hands upon them.

Wherefore there assembled unto the Seditious Eleazar, Jehuda, Chezron, Schimeon and Chiskibu, young Men of the Nobles of Jerusalem. Eleazar with his Company took the Temple, and the Courts about it, appointing of his Men, some to be Spies, and some to keep Watch and Ward about the Temple of the Lord.

But Jebochanan, who because of the great resort of the People unto him, was stronger than Eleazar; he took the Market-place and Streets, and the lower part of the City.

Then
Then Schimeon the Jerusalemite took the highest part of the Town; wherefore his Men annoyed Jehochanan's part before with Slings and Cross-Bows.

Between these three, there was also most cruel Battels in Jerusalem for the space of four Days, without ceasing or any breathing, and every Day were very many slain, so that the Blood of the Jews that were then slain, ran in every place most abundantly, through the Market-places and Streets, yea even to the Temple of the Lord, like unto a flood that had come of great showers; and unto the threshold of the Gates of the Temple, the dead Bodies overwhelmed one another by heaps, for no Man buried them. Jehochanan having the middle part of the Town, had Schimeon on the one side of him, and Eleazar on the other.

But Schimeon had the best place, from whence he might annoy both Jehochanan and Eleazar. Eleazar did also what he could to endamage Schimeon. And Jehochanan, that was in the midst, encumbred them both, notwithstanding to little purpose: For Schimeon's company flung Stones, and shot at them fore, but when as Jehochanan's part flung likewise at them, the Stones rebounded back upon themselves. Thus amongst these Three, the Battel was fore, and encreased every Day, that all Men were in great terror and fear thereof.

Then assembled to the Temple much People of the Priests and Elders, beseeching these Intestine and Domestical Enemies, not to pollute and defile the Temple with the Slaughters, and were almost all slain for their labour. The same day day was slain the Priest Anani, and Joshua a Priest, but of the chiefest Priests, Sechariabu also, the most faithful Prophet of the Lord.

Then had the continual Sacrifice ceased Thirty six days, for ever until that time were there some good Men or other of Jerusalem that offered always Sacrifice to the Lord.

But now when they would have continued it, and the Priests laid the Sacrifice upon the Altar, the Seditious would run upon them and kill them, so that the Priests Bodies and their Cattle, that they would have sacrificed, should fall dead to the ground together. They that resorted also out of the Country of Jerusalem, for Devotions sake, the Seditious slew, and utterly destroyed them, that almost no one of them was left alive.

Moreover, the dead Bodies of Men lay cast in the Temple, and that without Number trod under Feet; yea, the dead Body of the Priest that was offering Sacrifice, lay upon the Earth together with his Offering. And when any Man would offer any Sacrifice, straightway one or other of the Seditious would step to him and kill him, that the Blood of the Sacrifice and Sacrificer should be mingled together; insomuch, that the Pavement of the Temple being all of Marble, was made so slippery with the Blood and Fat of them that were slain, that no Man could go upon it without falling. And the Priest should no sooner lay hand on the Sacrifice but he was slain, and straight another dead Body should fall upon him, stranger or other, they spared none: So thus the dead Bodies of the Good and Bad, Clean and Unclean, Wicked Wicked and Vertuous, Thief and True-man, lay one upon another, and their Blood mixt together in the midst of the Temple, without respect of any Man, of what Degree or Condition soever he were: Wherefore the Fight and Slaughter was great, both in the Town and in the Temple. Nay, whomsoever the Seditious overcame, they set fire on their Houses also; whereby the fire took into the great Mens Houses that were nigh the Temple, and into the Store-houses, whereas against time of necessity, and besieging of the Town, were laid up in store Corn, Wine and Oyl, to the number of a Thousand and four hundred Store-houses, all filled full of Victuals. For the Elders, and other godly Men, what time as Vespasian was in Galilee, they made up the Doors of those Garner-houses, and laid in Victuals into them, sufficient for Two hundred thousand Men twenty Years; and now in this one Battle of the Seditious they were burnt every one, Stick and Stone, which was a speedy cause of Famine and Hunger in Jerusalem.

At the same time also, the Seditious pulled down and razed all the fair Houses, and goodly Buildings, that there should be no Monument of any Noble House left to any in the City of Jerusalem. So thus you see at that time the Lord visited the Citizens of Jerusalem with four kind of Plagues, Sword, Pestilence, Hunger and Fire: Besides this, a fifth was added, the ruin and decay of all beautiful and glorious Buildings. And wherefoever a Man turned him, there was nothing but desolation, pollution, (namely of the Temple and all holy things) uproars without out all rest and refuge; no help, no succour, but every corner of Jerusalem was full of howling and yelling, wailing and weeping, sobbing and sighing of Women and Children. Here should ye hear the roaring and groaning of wounded Men, not yet thorough dead; there the mourning and lamenttation of the Elders; younger Children crying out for hunger; to be short, most sorrowful Oppression of them that lived, done by the Seditious: Such Lamentations were made every where, that happy and fortunate was he that before this day died, and unhappy and in a woful case were all such as remained alive to see this day.

All these Things when I Joseph heard Tydings of, I tore my Hair with my Hands, and cast Ashes on my Beard, sitting in great Sorrow on the ground, bewailing the Misery and Calamity of Jerusalem. And this Lamentation made Joseph upon Jerusalem: How is the City (quoth
he) laid waste that was wont to be more happy and more renowned than all the Provinces upon the Earth! How is the City that was heretofore in such highness and dignity, now brought under the Foot, through the Sons of the Citizens thereof! Whereas sometime was the Dwelling-place of the Faithful; now bear Rule there such Men, as provoke and stir God’s Wrath against it, and turn it away from their God, wasting it as Thieves. In the which sometime remained the brightness of the Godhead, it is now become a By-word, and Mockingstock to the Enemies, replenished with Blood of wounded and slain Men. Instead of Mirth, Gladness, Rejoycing, Harps and Psalteries, is Sorrow
sorrow, fighting, heart-breaks, mourning and pereverenness come in place. Even as heretofore the Priests executed the Service of the Lord in Offering Sacrifice; so likewise now, Seditious Persons murdered godly and faithful Men: where was wont to be the Dwelling-place of most wise and prudent Men, now it is made a common Hostry of wicked Murtherers and Thieves. O Lord God of Israel, have not Angels in time past come down from Heaven to Earth to fight thy Battles? Have not the Floods of the Seas persecuted them that persecuted thee? Hath not the Earth swallowed up them that despised thee, and the Winds scattered them under that made Insurrections against thee? Hath no Thunder from Heaven destroyed thine Enemies, and Stars fought against thy Foes? What means this therefore? and how cometh it to pass, that thou hidest thy face from us? to whom hast thou delivered the Sheep of thy Pasture? Look upon us, O God, and behold thy People and Inheritance, that thou broughtest out of Egypt with a mighty Power and a strong Hand, with Wonders and Signs, leading them until this day in thy Faith; take pity upon them in thy Mercy, and extend not thy Wrath against thy Servants.

Where art thou Moses, the Son of Amram? stand up and see thy People and flock of Sheep, which thou feddest all thy Life with thy Wisdom; see how Wolves and Lions tear them; see how the Israelites are become Foes to their own Lives and Souls; yea, wafters and destroyers are sprung up of their own selves. Behold the People of God, for whose sake thou liftedst up thy Staff over the Sea, wherewith thou struckest and divi dividest it, that it was made dry ground, so the Israelites passed through, and escaped their Enemies. Remember thy Prayer, when as in time of Famine, and lack of Food, thou obtainedst for them Meat from Heaven; and at the time when they were weary of their lives for Thirst, thou broughtest Water out of the most hard Rock.

Come forth Aaron, most holy Priest of God, that didst put thy self between the Living and the Dead, to turn away the Plague from Israel, and stayedst the Destroyer that he should not come nigh the Living. Arise out of thy Grave, thou Phineas, that moved with such fervency, didst revenge the Glory and Majesty of the Lord God of Israel; come and run through the Seditious in thy Fury, which Murder the People of God and his Priests. Awake thou Joshua, that didst throw down the Walls of Jericho, with the sound and shout of thy Trumpets, that the holy Priests held in their hands. Come now and see thy People that thou madest to inherit many Nations, and to conquer most puissant Kings, how they kill one another, how they further and help forward the Idolater to Rule and have the Dominion of the Holy Land, that thou gavest thy People Israel to inherit. Why sleepest thou, King David? Awake, and come with the sound of thy Psalterie and Harp, sing unto thy holy Psalms too. Ask account of thy sweet words that are ceased from the mouths of this People, and out of all Mens mouths, because of the maliciousness thereof. See how their Princes be transformed into Enemies and Destroyers; and do as thou didst (good King David) that that didst give thine own Life for theirs, saying, Let thy hand, O Lord, be turned against me, and against the House of my Father, and do not fall upon thy People to destroy them.

Where art thou Elizeus? Come and see what thou canst do, if thou canst rescue the remnant of Israel, and find them any gap to escape at. Didst not thou by thy Prayer bring the Power of the Syrians to a Town of defence, and prevailedst against them without Dint of Sword or Battel, and brought eft them down, smiting them with blindness, that they turned their Enmity toward Israel into Love? Indeed, thou wast he that vanquishedst the Syrians by thy Prayer, that they fled for fear of the same.

Now therefore ye Herdfmen of Israel, assemble together, and listen with your Ears, and hear my Words that I will speak in your Ears this day. Tell me, What is become of your Prayers that ye have made for the People of Israel, to defend and turn away from them all Wrath, Indignation, Tribulation, Fury, and Immissions of Evil Spirits? How is it that now ye see not the Sanctuary turned into a vile sink of Blood, for the dead Bodies of Priests lie in the midst of it. The Holy City Jerusalem is become a strange City, as though the Name of the Lord had never been in it: and the Sanctuary of the Lord is in that Case at this present, as though the God-head had never dwelt therein: for the Temple is turned into a Den of Thieves, a Lodging of Seditious Persons, a Tabernacle of cruel Murthers. And whofo flieth thither for refuge, there they be slain: as the Seditious have Murther'd in
The Wars of the Jews.

The midst thereof Anani the High-Priest, and Joshua a Priest also, that were Princes and chief Priests, the most reverend amongst the People of God; whom ere this Kings and Nations had sued to, and desired their Favour, but never cast their slain Bodies in the midst of the Temple. The Nobility also of Jerusalem, the Elders of Judah, the Sages of Israel, whose Friendship Kings and Nations have sought after, and desired to make Peace with: They lie now slain here and there in the midst of Jerusalem, are Meat for the Fowls of the Air, and Beasts of the Field, to Dogs and Ravens, because there is no Man to bury them.

These died not for their Offences, but because they found fault with the Israelites, when they sinned. How are they slain in thee (O Jerusalem, thou Holy City, renowned throughout the whole Earth) all just Men, all Holy Men? whom the Seditious have overcame, those Hell-hounds and Blood-suckers, that have brought all these Evils upon thee? How are the Priests of the Lord, and his Prophets slain amongst those Holy Men? For, before the Holy Temple, was the Prophet Sechariah, that just and Holy Man, butchered and murdered, yea, without all Burial, neither was his Blood covered with Earth, but yet still wandereth about and cryeth in thee. The Blood of Anani also, and Joshua the Chief Priest, was yet never covered, which were both slain in thy Temple, as Men be wont to kill Thieves: Yea, the Blood of the godly young Men, and valiant, that would have revenged them, was shed also by the Seditious, like Floods of Water. How are the Hearts of the People turned so awkwardly, that that they will hear no Admonition of just Men? but are like unto blockish Images, that neither see nor hear, nor yet understand any thing. All Beasts, be they never so brutish, all Plants, and Things that grow upon the Earth, withstand them that invade them to do them Injury, and endeavour to avoid the force of their Enemy: But thy Children that thou keepest within thee, are changed into Enemies, and one Brother murthereareth another with the Sword. Where is now thy Valiantness, thou that never wouldest bow to bear the Yoke of the Gentiles upon thy Shoulders, but hast cast away the Bondage of the Egyptians, Philistines, Ara-mites, Assyrians, Chaldees, Persians and Medes? Where is the strength that God gave to the Chasmonaxites, that with a very small Company defended thee, and prevailed against the great and puissant Army of the Greeks, destroyed the stout Soldiers of Babylon, vanquished the mighty Army of the Persians, flew Kamitiatus and Antiochus, and pursued their Armies, making great slaughters of them, filling all Places full of the dead Carcasses of the Gentiles? They would not be ruled by Sinners, but ventured themselves to die, offering their Lives, not for their Sons and Daughters, but for the Sanctuary of the Lord and his Temple, lest it should be polluted with the Idols of the Gentiles. Where remaineth now the Rod of God, that Holy Rod that budded and blossomed in the Days of Gladness? Now is both the Spring withered, and the Rod itself also. The Rod of Faith is withered, the Rod of the Kingdom, the Rod also of thy People, whence the Holy Law is taken away; neithere is there any Man that can tell where to draw any Waters of thy Heavenly Mercy. Alas, the merciful Men that have been in Times past to their Brethren, both alive and dead, how are they now turned into most cruel Tyrants, and have Mercy of no Man? Where is the Multitude of their Mercies, wherewith they were wont honourably to bury their Dead? Now the Coarse of their dead Bodies cover the face of the whole Earth, and there is no Body will vouchsafe to bury them; yea, they that would, cannot be suffered, but straightways come others to them that kill them before they can do it; so that they also die, and lie unburied, and are strewn about here and there in the Fields. Such is the guise in the now adays, neither the Father to bury the Son, nor the Son the Father; the Seditious watch so diligently those that be dead, lest any Man should bury them; which if they do, they are also slain by them, and lie unburied themselves. The Temple of the Lord that is in thee, which was wont to smell sweetly of Spices, Anointings and Perfumes, how is it now choked with Carrion, Dung, and most pestilent Steppen of dead Bodies, and Blood of the wounded? Thy Streets are strowed full of dead Men, some run through with Glaves and Javelins, and others dead for Hunger; yea, they that remain yet alive in the City are as good as dead also, and may he taken for no less: For they are weary of their Lives, because of the pestilent Damp of the dead Bodies; the outragiouines whereof hath cast many into most dangerous Diseases, and hath been the death of numbers already.

O 2

This
This may worthily seem to be it, that David, the Anointed of the God of Jacob, the pleasant and sweet musical Poet of Israel speaketh of; Lord, the Gentiles are come into thine Inheritance, they have polluted the Temple of thy Holiness. And would to God it had been the Gentiles only that had exalted themselves against thee, and polluted thus the Holy Temple that is in thee; For in the maliciousness of an Enemy, a Man finds the half of his Comfort; but in the Malice of a Friend there is no Comfort at all. Yea, the very Children that thou hast bred, brought up and promoted, the self same have stuffed the Temple of the Lord that is in thee, with unburied Carcasses, every Man killing his Neighbour, and the Seditious suffering no Man to bury them, but slaying all that attempt to bestow any such work of Mercy upon the dead, in such fort, that they fall dead upon the Corpse which they would have buried; and by that means both the Corpses lie cast out into the Field, no better than the Carcasses of brute Beasts that be found in desart Places. Yea, the Iniquity and Cruelty of thy Citizens (O Jerusalem) is grown so far, that they were not content only to kill their Neighbours, but they must also hew their miserable Limbs in pieces, for else they thought they were not sufficiently revenged; although that in so doing, many times the Fench of the Dead took worthy Vengeance again of the Living, by casting them into incurable Diseases. All these Evils are come upon thy People, because they have forsaken the Law of the Lord, and have transgressed the Covenant that he made with their Brethren; because also they have sinned against the Lord God of their their Fathers, in shedding the Blood of just Men, and Innocents that were within thee, even in the Temple of the Lord. And therefore are our sorrowful Sighings multiplied, and our Weepings daily increased, for that we have been the Cause of all these Evils that are betallen us, and are not yet ended. O Lord our God, our Sins are gone over our Heads, and the wicked Acts that we have committed in thy fight are innumerable. The Lord our God is Righteous, it is we that have rebelled against his Will; we have profaned and unhallowed his Law, we have broken his Covenant, and ever the more that his Wrath kindled against us, the more have we transgressed against him. Wherefore to him belongeth Justice and Judgment, he hath worthily poured the fury of his Displeasure on us; to us only belongeth Shame, as we have abundantly at this Day: But he will once turn again and have Mercy upon us, vanquish all our Sins, and cast them into the deep bottom of the Sea: So be it.

After these Things, the third Day of the first Month, in the first Year of the Reign of Vespasian, Titus his Son took Muster of his Men in the Plain of Caesarea, to know the certain Number of them, which he had done afore, since his Father's departure; and he found them very many, insomuch that they seem'd almost to cover the Earth. This done, he took his Journey from Caesarea with his People, and came to Samaria, where the Citizens received him with great Joy, and much honoured him, wherefore he spared them, and did them no harm.
From thence he came to Ajelona, thirty Furlongs from Jerusalem, there he pitched his Tents, and leaving them there, took Six hundred Horsemen with him, and came to Jerusalem to view the Town, to know what heighth the Walls were of, what strength there was in the Town, especially of the Seditious, of whom every where great Rumour was; finally, to receive peaceably all such as were desirous of Peace. So when he came to the Wall he saw no Man, neither to go out nor in, for the Gates were shut up, and the Seditious had laid an Ambush without the Town to trap Titus, who went somewhat before, accompanied with a few, the rest following a pretty way behind. Whiles therefore he was viewing the Walls, the Seditious issued out of their Ambush that they had laid nigh unto Ajelona, and set upon the back of Titus's Men behind. Then issued another Party out of the Town: So that they had Titus between them, and running upon him, separated him from his Men, and environed him on every side, where they slew sixty of his Men, and might have slain him also, save that they coveted to take him alive. Titus seeing himself beset, and forsaken of his own Men, that thought it was impossible for him to escape; perceiving also that they went not about to kill him, but to take him alive; moreover, that he could in no wise escape, except he would make an Irruption and run through their Bands; he took a good Heart unto him, and valiantly brake through, slaying whomsoever came in his way to lay Hands on him, and so he escaped. If they had intended to have slain him, they might have done it; but being desirous rous to take him alive (as he said) they abstain'd from striking him, and so they lost him: And God did not deliver him into their Hands, that by him he might scourge Israel. But the Jews seeing him to be thus escaped, repented for that they had not kill'd him; saying one to another, What meant we that we killed him not while we might? It was ill done of us. Therefore they pursued him, hurling and shooting after him with Engines of War, but they could not overtake him, for God preserved him, that he might afterward deliver Jerusalem into his Hands. So he returned to Ajelona, and perceived the Hearts of Kings to be in the Hands of God.

The next Morning brought Titus all his Army to Jerusalem, determining to encamp himself upon the Mount Olivet: Wherefore he first spake unto his Soldiers in this wise: This Day ye go to fight against a mighty Nation, whose Warriors be as strong as Lions, valiant as Libards, and nimble as Fawns that run in the Mountains, to overturn Chariots, and such as fit upon them. Now therefore take good Hearts unto you, and be courageous, for it behoves you. Do not think them to be like the Nations that heretofore ye have had to do withal: I my self have Experience otherwise of their Valiantness and Sleights of War.

This said, he marched in Array most strongly, that they should not be scattered asunder, and gave them charge, especially to the Vanguard, to take heed of stumbling upon Wells and Cisterns, whereby they might be hindred, for as yet the Day was scarce broken; and besides this, Titus had knowledge ledge how the Jews hearing of his coming, had digged secret Trenches and Pitfalls. Wherefore to avoid them, he led his Host to Mount Olivet, in which Place it never came into their Minds to dig.

Therefore when he came to the Mount Olivet, he encamped there against Jerusalem, right over-against the Brook Cedron, that ran between the City and the Hill, and many times ran very shallow. Titus’s Camp was about six Furlongs from the Town.

The next Morning, they of the Town seeing Titus to be encamped on the Mount Olivet, the Captains of the Seditious with their Companies assembled together, and fell to an Agreement every Man with another, intending to turn their Cruelty upon the Romans, confirming and ratifying the same Attonement and Purpose, by swearing one to another, and so there was Peace among them. Wherefore joining together, that before were three several Parts, they set open the Gates, and all the best of them issued out with a horrible Noise and Shout, that they made the Romans afraid withal, in such wise, that they fled before the Seditious, which suddenly did set upon them at unawares.
But Titus seeing his Men flee, rebuked them, saying, Are ye not ashamed of this timorous Coward-linefs, when are so many, and a hundred for one of them? What Ignonimy is it, so many to be repulsed of so few? Wherewithal Titus stayed them, and brought them manfully to withstand the Jews, so that very many were slain on both sides. But the Romans were not able long to abide the force of the Jews, albeit that Titus with his choicest and most
most valiant Soldiers did manfully keep their Ground and never retreated. Titus also laboured and encouraged the rest to fight: but they were so dismayed, that they wist not what to do. For to forfake Titus they were ashamed, and to resist the Violence of the Jews they were not able. Notwithstanding Titus and all his Company made his Party good against the Jews, who at length left the Field, and withdrew themselves towards the Town. Then Titus being wroth with his Soldiers, that they had fled from the Jews, said unto them, Shall I not be revenged of these Jews? Shall so few of them put us to flight, not able to stand in their Hands? and will ye flee or retreat, seeing me abide by it?

The next day Titus took all his Army, save a few that he left in his Camp to keep his Baggage, and went down to Mount Olivet, setting his Men in Battle Array, even against the Gates of the City.

Then exhorted he them to play the Men, and although they were come down the Hill, yet they should not hear the Jews concerning their Camp that they had left behind them; For the Brook Cedron (faith he) is between our Camp and the Israelites. With these Words they were encouraged, and determined to encounter with the Jews under the Walls hard to the Gates of the City, trusting to the Safeguard and Defence of the Brook Cedron.

The Captains of the Seditious likewise used Policy: For they dividing their Men, sent one Company to pass suddenly the Brook Cedron, to invade and spoil the Roman Camp that was left in the Mount Mount Olivet. These therefore went and fought with the Romans upon the Mount, and drove them out of their Camp.

Titus looking behind him, and perceiving that the Jews had gotten over the Brook, and were in hand with his Men, he was wonderfully afraid, seeing himself environed with Battles on every side.

They within the Town, when they saw their Fellows once at the Mount Olivet, they opened the Gates, issued out with all their Power that was left in the Town, and encountered with Titus, where he had set his Men in Array over-against the Gate, where they made a great slaughter of the Romans, which (desirous to avenge the Shame gotten the day before) fled not, but stoutly withstood their force. Also the Jews took heart to them, fought manfully, and beat down the Romans, so that at length they betook them to flight toward Mount Olivet, and in their flight many of them were slain by the Jews that pursued the Chace. Upon this, divers of Titus's Soldiers (seeing themselves beset both before and behind) counselled Titus to flee with them to the Mountains, to save his Life, lest he should be slain by the Jews, and they all together with him. For thou (say they) art a great Lord of many Kingdoms, and God shall one day bring thee to the Imperial Crown of our Lord thy Father: Now therefore if thou shouldest be slain of the Jews, we are all but dead; and what good should thy death do, either to thy self, or to others, to be slain like one of us? Titus would not be ruled by them, nor receive their Counsel, but kept his Ground boldly, boldly, without once turning his Face, saying, I will chuse rather to die with Honour, than to live with Shame: And with that he rush'd upon the Jews that were nigh him, and compelled them to recoil.
The Wars of the Jews.

When the Jews that had environed the Roman Camp, saw that, they left the Romans, and came flocking about Titus by Routs, assailing him on every side, endeavouring also with all their Might to overcharge him; where in that place was a fore and vehement fight, and much People slain on both sides; yea, Titus escaped narrowly from being slain in that fight, and had died indeed, if certain of his valiant Soldiers had not returned unto him, and rescued him out of the Jews hands. That day were the chief of Titus's Soldiers slain: Then the Jews retired to their place at the Walls side.

They also, who went to the Mount Olivet, returned homeward by the Brook Cedron: The Romans seeing that, pursued them; whereupon the Jews returned again upon the Romans, who fled by and by. Thus the Jews put the Romans to flight thrice upon one day.

It came to pass then, that the external Wars paufed, and intertine Civil Wars returned most terribly amongst the Seditious at Jerusalem. For upon the first day of the high solemn Feast of Passover, Captain Jehochanan and his Men came into the Temple of the Lord, where he was honourably received of the Priests and Elders, with the rest of the Commonalty. And when they were within, they cast off their upper Garments, under which they were armed with Coats of Fence, and Swords tyed tyed to their Thighs. After that, they beset the Doors, and laid hold of the Priest, flew them and the People also, their Hearts were so cruelly bent against their Brethren, neither regarding the reverent Countenances of old Men, nor inclining to the Prayers of them that besought them, without sparing Women or Children, no not the fucking Babes.

This done, Jehochanan stood up, and openly protested, That neither Schimeon nor Eleazar, nor any of the rest of the Captains of the Seditious, nor any Man else, should have the Soveraignty in that City but he. The other hearing that Jehochanan had wrought such Displeasure to the People of God in the Temple, rose together, and flew very many of Jehochanan's Party: But in the mean season, what of the one part, and what of the other, the Israelites went to wrack, and were slain in great Numbers.

Tidings came to Titus, how the Jews were at odds among themselves, and flew one another daily; whereat he rejoiced greatly, and came with his whole Host to the Town, where he found certain Jews without, that had fled, because of the Rage of the Civil Wars. When they saw Titus, they came and besought him to enter the Town, and deliver them from the Cruelty of the Seditious, and they would be his Servants, for these Wars had made them almost weary of their Lives. Yet Titus gave little Credit to their Tale, although they used many words to persuade him that it was true.

For he remembred, that within three Days afore, he saw the Jews fight against him eagerly, all with one accord, so earnestly one rescuing and defending anoanother, that no Discord appeared to be among them, wherefore he would not trust their Words, in that they required Succour, and offered to yield. And as they were thus debating the Matter, suddenly they heard an Uproar in the Town, and wonderful hurly-burly; some crying, Open the Gates, and let Titus come in; others cryed, Shut the Gates, and let not the Romans come in. Then certain upon the Walls called to the Romans, speedily to come unto the Town, and they would then open the Gates, that they might enter in; requesting the Romans to deliver them from the Tyranny of the Seditious; Left (say they) we should be all slain by the Hands of these ravenous and cruel seditious Persons. The Romans therefore ran to the Gates, and when they approached nigh to the Walls, and were come within danger, the Jews hurled Stones from the Walls, and shot Arrows at them, slaying very many of the Romans. The other Jews also that were without the Town, and had besought Titus to deliver them from the Hands of the Seditious, began again to assail the Romans that were gone to the Walls, with much force, that many of them they slew, the residue they put to flight, and the Jews followed the Chafe almost to Ajelona.

Then the Jews mock’d and flouted the Romans, calling them Fresh-Water Soldiers, Men of no Experience, and innocent Fools, that never saw the Trains of War before; clapping also their Targets, and shaking their Swords against them in mockage. The Roman Captains seeing these Things, they took great disdain at the Matter, and in great Ire would have turned back upon the Jews again, had had not Titus commanded the Retreat to be found-ed. Upon this Titus assembled all his Counsel-lours, Captains and Soldiers together, and said unto them in this wise: I have a sufficient Trial, and understand well enough your Valiantness and Courage (most worthy Men and Soldiers) which far paffeth the Strength and Manhood of all o- ther Nations; and not only in this most excellent Vertue do ye excel, but also in Knowledge and Sleights of War, in Wisdom and Forecast ye have been Chief of all other. Now therefore, Bre- thren and Friends, I marvel not so greatly at the Jews' Subtilty and Craft, in their swearing to you for the perfwading of a thing, and after keep not the Oath: But this seemeth wonderful unto me, that ye suffer your felves still to be deceived of them, and to be flain by their Wiles. For all the Wit ye have, could not deliver you out of their Snares; but now yet again the third time ye have approached the Walls, and this is the third time ye have been put to the Foil for your Labours. And all this cometh, because ye will not be ruled by me, but transgress your General and Lord's Com- mandment. But now, my Brethren, take heed what ye do hereafter, it becometh you not to dis- obey my Words, which ye have done oftentimes. Do you not remember a certain Nobleman of our Country, in the Wars of Augustus Cæsar against the Persians, how he put his own Son to death, because that contrary to his Father's Command- ment (who was grand Captain of the Army un- der Augustus) he had fought with his Enemies; yea, although he killed three Persians? But what speak I of once? Ye have oft times set light by my my Commandments, skirmishing daily with the Jews, and that without all discretion, rashly out of order: whereby you may gather your Enterprizes have no good Success. If you continue these Manners, it shall redound unto your own Dishonours. Wherefore it were better for you to leave off these Doings, and lay away your Pride, Contumacy and Stubbornness: Which if ye do, things shall be in better safe-guard.
The Wars of the Jews.

Much more spake Titus to his Men, rebuking them sharply, not mentioned here, but declared at large in the Volume that we writ unto the Romans. When he had said these Words, his Princes and Captains fell every one prostrate to the Earth, and besought Pardon of him for their Rashness, in that they had so unadvisedly, and without Order, against his mind, encountred with the Jews.

Then Titus, taking pity of them, pardoned them, requesting them to beware hereafter that they commit nothing against his Commandment, neither in Word nor Deed, and so doing, they should have his Favour, and avoid his Displeasure, and Danger of Death for the contrary; but if they refused to do it, he would not spare any Man whatsoever he were, that should transgress his Commandment, but put him to death, and give his Body to be eaten of the Fowls of the Air. They answered with one Voice, We are content with these Conditions, and will do whatsoever thou shalt command us.

After this, Titus considering how earnestly the Jerusalemites were set one against another, how they were become such cruel Enemies, that each of them conspired the others Death, he caused the Pits Pits, Cisterns, and Trenches that were about Jerusalem, to be damm'd up, and stopp'd with Earth, that the Ways might be levelled for his Army. This done, he encampt himself nearer the Walls, against which Attempt the Jews issued not out of the City after their accustomed manner, to put them back from the Walls. For Schimeon was otherwise busied, he had entertained Ten thousand Men of the best of the Seditious Jews, and joined himself to Jacob the Edomite, Captain of Nine Thousand Edomites, with whom he had made a Conspiracy utterly to destroy Captain Jehochanan, and setting upon him, they compelled him to flee into the Court of the Temple, where he remained in the Gate of the Entrance of the Temple, with Eight thousand and Four hundred good Men of War, all well appointed in Jacks.

Eleazar also was against him, and joined with Schimeon, becoming an Enemy to him that before had savel his Life, and so they both together assaill Jehochanan, neglecting the Defence of the Town: By this means the Romans encamped themselves about the Walls at their Pleasure, raising Towers, and casting Trenches to plant their Battering Rams, to beat down the Walls.

The common People of the Jews, that were under the Rule and Government of the three Seditious Captains, namely, Schimeon, Eleazar, and Jehochanan (which although they were ill enough all, yet the Tyranny of Jehochanan far passed Schimeon, and Schimeon was far worse than Eleazar, though Eleazar was the head Author and first Beginner of Sedition in all Israel) were amongst them as
as a Sheep ready to be kill’d. For the aforesaid seditious Captains flew the People at their Pleasure, and divided them into Bands, casting Lots upon them, Who should have which, so that one had another’s Men, and another Man his. And thus did they not only with their own Men, but also with all the rest of the People, in such wise, that when the Romans made any Assault, then joyned they together as one Man to resist the Romans; to whom when they had given a Repulse, then would they return to their Civil Wars, and fall together by the Ears among themselves.

Extream and dreadful was the Civil Conflit at that Season, between the aforesaid Captains, and so fore, that the Blood streamed down the Channel out of the Gates of Jerusalem, like as a Brook that runneth out of a Fountain and Well-spring. The Romans seeing it, were mov’d with much Pity, so that they wept bitterly. But Joseph that was among them was stricken with so great Heaviness, that he burst out into a sorrowful Lamentation, lifting up his woful Voice in this wise:

Alas! Alas! Jerusalem the City of the Great King! How shall I now call thee at this Day? Or what Name shall I give thee? Sometimes thou wert called Jebus or Jebusæus, that builded thee first in all the Land. After this, thy Name was Zedek, that is Justice; whereupon King Jehoram was called Melchizedeck, for he was a righteous King, and because he reigned in thee with Justice, therefore was thy Name Zedek: Then Righteousness had abiding in thee, and thy bright Star that shined in thee was Zedek. More... over in his time waft thou called Schalem, as the Scripture witnesseth, and Melchizedek King of Schalem; and that because the Equity of the People that dwelt in thee was then fulfilled. For at that time Abraham our Father, of worthy Memory, fell to worship God in thee, and to take thee to his Inheritance, to plant in thee, the Root of good Works: Whereupon the Tabernacle of God remaineth in thee to this Day, as 'twas revealed unto the same our Father Abraham: In thee (I say) is the Sanctuary of the Lord. For in that Place did Abraham bind his only Son upon the top of one of the Hills that is call'd Mount Moriah, holy and hallowed; and therefore art thou called Jerusalem, because our Father Abraham (of famous Memory) call'd the Place of Sanctuary Adonajureth, the Lord shall see; then thy late Name being Schalem, this joined to it, made it Jeresbalem. For the Lord God shall behold the Place of thy Sanctuary, at what time it shall be Schalem, that is, pure, uncorrupt without black or spot: But whencesoever it is polluted or defiled, as it is at this Day, then will he turn away his Face from it.

Furthermore, thou art called Jerusalem, therefore because that who so understands the Dignity and Worthiness of the Place wherein thy Sanctuary is, shall bid the Angels of Heaven to teach in it the Doctrines of the Holy Ghost, and the Spirit of Wisdom and Understanding, wherewith little Children, and the Unlearned in thy Lands, may be made wise. He also that ministered in the Temple, had on a Garment of four Colours, Scarlet, Violet, Byse and Purple. Scarlet in respect of the Heavens that be above the Firmament. Violet and Byse Colours (which be made of Flax) because of the Earth of of which they came. Finally Purple, in respect of the Sea where Purple is gotten.

Therefore when as the Priest came into the Temple to minister, appareled in these Four Colours, he said before the Almighty God, I am come to present my self here, in thy sight (O Lord of the World) in Four Kinds of Colours, that represent the Parts of the World, and in such wise do I appear before thee, as though I should bring all the whole World into thy sight: Moreover, the aforesaid Apparel was garnished with pure Gold, and precious Stones, after the likeness of the Tribes of the Sons of Jacob, who was called Israel; that in that Garment, he might have the Sovereignty before the Angels that be above, and by them prevail to bring the Virtue of the Holy Ghost; by the which they should obtain Wisdom that dwell in thee, and prosper in their Study and Faith, that they might have Wisdom and Understanding together: His Loins also were girded with Linnen Slops, wherewith he covered his secret Parts (for it becometh Priests most of all other Persons to be shamefac'd and bashful) especially when he should minister in the Two Sanctuaries, the Outer and the Inner, which is the Sanctum Sanctorum, or Holiest of all. In the Outer, the Priests minister as the High-Priest commandeth them: but in the Inner, that is in the Sanctum Sanctorum, entered no Man, save the High-Priest only, and that but once a Year. For in it was the Ark of the Covenant of the Lord, in which were laid up the two Tables of the Covenant that God made with the People in Mount Sinai. There is also the Rod of Aaron, that flourished and brought forth Leaves. All these were in the Temple, whiles it was yet standing.
against the Sanctuary, were fourteen Stairs or Steps, upon the which appear'd the Miracle to King Cheskiabu.

And thou Jerusalem at that time was stronger than other Cities, Lady of Provinces, for great Kings and Princes builded thee. King Herod much exalted thee, raising thy Walls high; and besides that also; defended thee with other Walls, that he named Antochia, of Antochas a Roman, who gave liberally much Money toward the repairing of the Ruines and Decays that were in thee. How cometh it to pass therefore, that thou art brought thus low, and the Gentiles have the Rule over thee now, and besiege thee, razing thee, and casting thee down? yea, they are now in the midst of thee. Wo be to us for our sins: For, the Heaviness of thy strength is dashed, thy Sanctuary is trodden under foot, and made a sink of the Blood of slain Persons. Drink now off thy Cup (O Jerusalem) with thy Daughter Sion, drink I say, the Cup of Vexation and Grief together with her, for yet the time shall come, that Visions shall be revealed, and Redemption also it self, that thy Children shall return to their Coasts, with the Health of their Redeemer. Then shall be the time of Friendship, and then shalt thou drink the Cup of Health and Consolation.

After that, Titus went to view what way he might best assault the City, and as he devised with himself, he espied a Plain on that side where the Sepulchre of Jehochanan the High-Priest was; where he stayed a while, and sent one of his Captains that were there with him, called Nicanor, to parly with the Jews, that were upon the Walls, to move them to Peace, willing him to say fay thus unto them; Friends, my Lord Titus is desirous to spare you, and to make a League with you, that you might be at quiet, and out of this danger of Destruction; and if you be so disposed to content thereunto, Titus shall make a League with you before it be yet Night. Nicanor went and spake with the People in such wise as Titus had willed him. The Jews gave him no word of Answer, but held their Peace; wherefore Nicanor spake to them again, and as he was talking to them, one from the Walls shot him with an Arrow, and killed him. Whereat Titus was exceeding wroth, that they should shoot at his Captain, offering them Peace, and his death grieved him marvelously: Wherefore he commanded Ladders, Brakes, Slings, battering Rams, and other Engines of War, to be brought to assault the Town. So the Soldiers brought a battering Ram to batter the Walls, and planted it upon a Mount accordingly.

The Jews seeing that, were sore afraid; wherefore the three Seditious Captains joyned themselves in Friendship, and forthwith opening the Gates, issued out, and beat the Romans from their Pieces and Engines, that were now ready addressed, setting fire on the Ram, Slings, and all the other Engines, a few excepted, which Titus and his Men sav'd from the Fire.

In this Conflict, the Men of Alexandria that served Titus, behaved themselves like tall Fellows, in the rescuing of the Slings from the Jews; yet the Jews prevailed and got the upper hand of them, till Titus came with a strong Power of choice Men to succour the Alexandrians, where Twelve of the stoutest Jews were slain.
In the fame Skirmish Jehochanan, a Captain of the Edomites that came to Aid the Jews, was slain by an Arabian that came behind him, and shot him with an Arrow, whilst he was talking with the Romans that intreated him to come to them, for whom the Edomites mourned and lamented sore, for he was a good Man of War. The next Night certain of the Seditious, chiefly of Jehochanan's and Schimeon's Company, issued out, and came to the three wooden Towers that Titus had erected before the Walls, to view out of them the Town, and to see what the Jews did within, which were placed, and without also a strong Party of able Soldiers for their Defence: Upon those without fell the Jews, and slew many; the other fled to Titus's Camp. The Romans that were in the Towers, knowing nothing of the matter, and trusting to them that were fer about the Towers for their Safeguard, slept all the Night. After the Jews had thus slain the Romans Watch, and put them to flight, they came to the Towers with Saws, and cut the Feet asunder, so that they fell suddenly together with them that were within, which were very many, and slew them every one; Titus hearing the Alarm, and the crashing of the falling of the Towers, was sore afraid, and all the whole Army, and not knowing what the Matter was, they durst not stir towards it. So the Jews returned safe into the Town.

On the Morrow, Titus brought his whole Power to the Walls, and while the Jews were at Contention in the Town, he addressed another Ram, wherewith he suddenly struck the outer Wall, and battered it through: Whereupon the People
People that warded that Wall, were forced to withdraw themselves within the Safeguard of the second Wall.

Then Titus commanded his Soldiers to raze to the Ground that Wall that he had pierced, and to carry away the Stones thereof, that there should be no let or hindrance to his Men: This was the most substantial and strongest Wall of all, thicker than both the others, and was built by Herod. The Romans labouring earnestly in the defacing of the outer Wall, were slain in great Numbers by the Jews from the middle Wall, before they could finish their purpose. The chief of the Jews perceiving that Titus had not only taken, but also quite pulled down the outer Wall, and how there was now but two Walls left about the Town, it went to their Hearts, and made them look about them: Therefore the Seditious began now earnestly to think of Unity and Concord among themselves, so that they divided the Town amongst them into three Wards. Jehochanan was appointed to that Ward that is on the North part of the Temple beside the Antochia; that part of the Town that was towards the Tomb of Jehochanan the High-Priest, was assigned to Schimeon; to Eleazar was committed the keeping of the Wall. These exhorting one another to play the Men, did valiantly resist the Romans, so that the Conflicts then began to be sore and hard. The Romans, for their Renown and Fame, laid on stoutly, and the Jews again stuck stilly to their Defence, seeing their End at hand if they were slack. Titus now and then exhorting his Soldiers to play the Men, promising them that would valiantly make any Enterprize upon the Jews, abundance of Gold and Silver, and much Honour withal. Then stepped forth one of the Soldiers named Longinus, and put himself amongst the Routs of the Jews, that were issued out of the Town, where he flew a Couple of the chief of them, and presently recovered himself again within the Array of the Romans, but the Jews shrank not from the Romans, for they were in a fervent Rage and wonderful Disdain; and to further their Courage, Schimeon came to his Men, and cried unto them with a loud Voice, saying, For the Reverence of God (Friends) flee not this day; whosoever doth flee, let him be sure he shall dye for it, and his House be destroyed.

Titus also admonished his to keep their Array, and not to give back to Schimeon. Then went he himself to that part of the Town where Jehocha- nan's Ward was; there he caused a battering Ram to be planted, and bent against the Wall (for there was a very large Plain.) There was at that time in Jerusalem one call'd Kantor, who got him a Company of the Seditious, and shot from the Walls into the Romans Army, where he flew very many, and compelled the rest to retire. This Kantor, with nine other tall Fellows, whereof he was the Decurion, defended one part of the Town: Now as the Romans bended the Ram to batter the Wall, Kantor cried unto Titus, I beseech thee my Lord Titus, be merciful unto this most famous City, that is almost beaten down already, do not deface it utterly, but take Pity of the Sanctuary that is in it, and destroy not the Habitation of the Lord God: Titus at his Request commanded his Men to stay, and to leave off battering the Wall. Then said he
he to Kantor, Come forth hither to me, and thou shalt save thy self, I will pardon thee, thou shalt not be destroyed; Kantor answered, I will see if I can perswade these my Fellows to come with me. But he did it upon colour, for none other Cause, than craftily to trifle out time, whereby he might cause Titus to leave off the Assault for a while. So he spake unto his Fellows which knew his Mind, that the Romans might hear, Let us go down and flee to the Romans Army: Then they drew out their Swords as though they would kill him, and striking upon his Harness, he fell down to the Ground in the fight of the Romans, which were ignorant of his Deceit. Then one of the Romans let fly an Arrow, that wounded Kantor upon the Face, and glancing from him, flew another that stood by him. Then Kantor cryed out, What do ye? Will ye shoot at us that desire to be at Peace with you, which ye granted your selves, and now will break your Promise that ye made unto us? Is this the Reward, my Lord Titus, that thou renderest me for going about to flee unto thee, that thy Soldiers shoot at me, hearing me require Conditions of Peace? Now, therefore my Lord, may it please thee to send hither some Man of Honour, to whom I may come down and receive Assurance of thy Promise to be as one of thy own Men. Titus thinking he meant good, faith, Speak unto Joseph, willing him to go and make Peace with the Jews in his Name, then to bring him unto him, that he might find safeguard of his Life, from the common Destruction: Joseph answered, Why wilt thou send me? What have I offended thee? Have I not ever done thee true and faithful
The Wars of the Jews.

Therefore if thou bear me any good Will or Favour, send me not unto him whom I cannot Trust. For Joseph mistrusted some Subtilty, knowing Kantor afore. So Titus sent one Captain Jiarius, who said unto Kantor, Come down, and let us go together to Cæsar's Son.

Kantor desired him to hold abroad his Cloak Lap, that he might hurle him down his Money that he had there, (left the Jews perceiving it, would take it from him) and then he would come down. And Jiarius held up his Lap to receive the Money that Kantor spake of, Kantor with all his might cast down a great Stone, which Jiarius espying, leapt aside and avoided; but it lighted upon one of his Fellows, and slew him. Titus was wonderful wroth at this, and forthwith planted yet another Ram against the Wall, and at length laid it flat upon the Ground.

Then commanded Titus to make Fires about the Wall, where the Jews should think to escape; Kantor seeing that would have fled, and as he made haste to escape the Fires, the weight of his Armour bare him down into the Fire, and there he died, more desirous of Death than Life.

Then entred the Romans within the second Wall, against whom the Seditious issued, and fought with such vehement Force, that they prevailed against their Enemies, slew many of the Romans, and forced the rest to retire unto the first Wall that they had beaten down before.

In this skirmish Titus himself took a Bow, and shot at the Jews in such wise, that not one of his Arrows were spent in vain, but that it did did some Annoyance unto the Jews. The Jews notwithstanding gave them the Repulse from the Town, and they were not able to make their Party good with them. Within four days after, came unto Titus a new Supply of Soldiers out of all Quarters for Aid to the Romans, by whose help they prevailed against the Jews, at such time as they issued out of the Town, and constrained them to withdraw themselves within the Walls.

Yet Titus pitying the miserable State of the City, Temple, and People of the Lord, at that time commanded his People to withdraw themselves from the Walls, and to leave off the Assault for a while, that he might offer Peace to the Jews, to see if they would be now content to submit themselves unto the Romans, to have quietness and rest without danger of Destruction. Wherefore he gave them Truce for Five days; and upon the Fifth day he came to the Gate of the City, where he straightway espied Schimeon and Jehochanan together, preparing fire to destroy the Romans Engines of War; for all the Jews had agreed together with one Mind, still to withstand to Romans. Wherefore Titus perceiving the Jews to be so desperately bent, that they had even vow'd their Lives to death, he began to offer and propose unto them Conditions of Peace, and sharply to reprove and blame their obstinate Stubbornness, saying, I have now won two of your Walls, and ye have but one left: Therefore, if ye will continue still in this self willed forwardness, what will ye do (most miserable Creatures) when as I shall gain also the third Wall, and quite destroy your City, pulling down your Temple.
people and all? Why do ye not rather favour and spare your own Lives, your Wives and Children? But the Jews set upon a fullen Obstinacy, would in no wise hear Titus speak.

Therefore Titus sent Joseph to declare his Mind unto them in Hebrew, that they might safely credit his Promises, and the Peace that was offered. Joseph therefore went and stood over against the Gate, keeping himself aloof, for he was afraid to come nigh the Wall, knowing that the People hated him, because he had yielded himself to the Romans: He called therefore unto them aloud; Hearken all ye Hebrews and Jews, I will declare unto you that which shall be to your Commodity: Then the People gave Ear unto Joseph, who spake unto them in this wise.
AN

O R A T I O N of Josephus

T O T H E

Citizens of J E R U S A L E M.

You should ere this (good People of Jerusalem) have fought so earnestly, whiles your Cities were yet standing, and your Lands replenished with People, ere even this Mischief had lighted upon you: Now that with Murthers and Slaughters amongst your selves having destroyed one another, and polluted the Temple of the Sanctuary with the Blood of the Murthered, and not spared your own Lives, you are become few in number, a small sort of you left, What hope have you to prevail? Again, you have provoked a valiant Nation, which is Ruler over all People, and hath subdued all other Lands, which also hath those Nations in subjection under him, which sometimes reigned over you: Besides this, you wage Battel with the Romans without all Discretion and Wisdom, without any Remorse of this Famous mous City, without any regard of the Sanctuary of the Lord, without any Compassion of your own Lives. Neither yet do you forfake your purpose; for I perceive you continue in this self-will to withstand the Romans still, which is nothing else than to spread abroad this Calamity further, both on the People of God, and on his Holy Temple. Albeit, I am not afraid, only for this Temple, and most renowned City, left it should be razed and destroyed, but for the Sacrifices and Burnt-Offerings, left they should cease, as the daily Sacrifice is ceased; And why? because we have sinned against our Lord God. Wherefore is his Shadow departed from us? Because that in this same Temple we have kept Wars, making it an Habitation for the Wicked, a Tabernacle for Seditious Persons: yea, even the Ministers and Holy Men of God have ye murthred, and within the Walls of the Temple have ye shed innocent Blood without Measure. See now (dear Brethren) and mark what Ordinance, what Engines, what Instruments of Destruction, are prepared to beat down the Temple, the Fire is already kindled to set a fire to the Sanctuary; and lo, even your very Enemies are so pitiful of your Temple, that they would not have it defaced.

But you (dear Brethren and Friends) why are ye led with no remorse of your selves, that your Enemies may once remove from you the Engines of War? What have you now left to trust unto, when as two of your Walls are already battered down, and one only remaineth? You will say peradventure, we put not our trust in our Wall, but in our God: Are ye not aware, that your God hath long ago given you over, and hath turned him to your Enemies, because they have with greater Honour and Reverence worshipped his Name, than we which rebelliously are fallen away from him? Wherefore God assisteth not us, but our Enemies, insomuch, that except it be in such Countries, whereas either for extrem Cold on the one side, or exceeding Heat on the other, no Man is able to abide; all Lands, all Nations, are under their Dominion. Tell me, I pray you, what hope have you, seeing God hath made them a Terrour unto all Nations upon the Earth who serveth them? Why will not you obey them, that you may live and not perish? Do ye not consider it is come to their turn to rule over all, that God hath committed Dominion unto them, and aided them with his Assistance.

Remember you not how God in times past aided the _Egyptians_, insomuch that they obtained the Dominion over all the whole World, but afterward departed from them, and assisteth you to get the Sovereignty over other Nations? After that, forsook you again, and gave the Empire to the _Chaldeans, Assyrians and Persians_, which reigned far and wide over many Countries: Now also hath he given them over, and helpeth the _Romans_ these many Years, so that they bear Rule over all. If you will object and say, To what intent should God give the Dominion unto the _Romans_, or other Nation over the World, and over his Inheritance and People also, which is an holy People, a peculiar and special Nation of all the Earth? Should ye not be be ashamed to say this? With what discretion can you wonder at this, knowing that all Mankind, one or other, are the handy-work of God, who exalteth whom he lift, and whom he lifteth he thrusteth down? Ye say, ye be the Children of God, and his proper Possession, and ye aspire to the Sovereignty, therefore it cannot be that God should determine any thing upon you by Chance, Fortune, or sudden Anger and Displeasure. I grant it: But wot he what? The Shadow or Protection of the Lord hath forfaken you, because of your Sins and Transgressions against the Temple and his holy Ministers.

How can you stay upon his help, when as he hath withdrawn his loving Countenance from you, and your Sins have made a Divorce between you and him? O my dear Children and Brethren, let never this Imagination enter into your Hearts, for it shall nothing avail you? Why will you, my dear Brethren and Friends, make War upon the Romans, when as they are Lords over Nations, and pierced the Streets of India, and all the Isles of the Sea, even to the great Ocean Sea; and from thence to all the Parts of the East, whose Dominion extendeth to the extrem Parts of the Earth? Yea even to Britain, which is environed on every side with Seas, whose People are huge, like Giants, of a big Stature, and mighty Courage, most expert Archers, and valiant Soldiers in Battle; to whom when the Captain of the Romans came, they gave him the Repulse, and would not be subdued; but when the Princes of the Romans came, they brought them into Subjection and Servitude under the Romans.

But you say (my Brethren and Friends) you will will rather all die, than serve the Prince of the Gentiles, and that Death is better for you than Life, to be driven to see with your Eyes the Calamities of the Sanctuary of the People of God. Search the Histories and Chronicles from the Time of your Ancestors. When was there any time wherein you were free from the Yoke of the Gentiles? Do you not know that Jacob our Father of Worthy Memory, who was always with God, took his Journey into Egypt, to be a Stranger in a strange Land, amongst a proud kind of People, left He, his Children, Houshold and Cattle, should perish with Hunger? There he had with him his twelve Sons which he had begotten, and dwelt there also with his small Family, for fear of the grievous Famine that was at that time. Remember you not, when that Judas with his Brethren went down into Egypt, how Joseph was moved as a Stranger, to pick a Quarrel against his Brethren, to bring them into Bondage, bearing yet in his Mind what Injury they had done unto him? Wherefore some of them he cast into Prison, and wronged them at his Pleasure, with crafty Accusations; especially Judas, who was the Chief amongst them, of whom all the Jews took their Name, who if he had been so disposed, had been able to lay Joseph at his Foot a thousand times; not knowing him to be Joseph: Wherefore when he was so roughly and so sharply taunted of him, he might have killed him in his Rage; for he was a very bold Man, and a hardy, and of a very noble Courage, who surely would have counted it nothing to have slain the Egyptian, and many more of them. Notwithstanding he did not not so, but contrary submitting himself under the Yoke of Joseph, called him his Lord and good Master, and supposing him to be some Egyptian, he humbled himself before him, to obtain his Petition and to get Corn, left his Father, his Brethren, and their Family should dye for Hunger.

What should I say of Joseph, so beautiful, so wise and witty a Man? Was not he fain to serve in Pharaoh's House? wherein although his Wisdom was well known, insomuch that Pharaoh set more by him than by all the Noblemen that were then alive: He was also call'd Lord, great Master, and Pharaoh's Father; nevertheless he humbly besought Pharaoh, that he might sustaine his Father and Brethren with Bread, knowing at that time the Dominion belonged unto Pharaoh and his People, being given them of God. And although Joseph had lift to return into the Land of Canaan, with all his Fathers whole Household, without Pharaoh's leave; no Man could have letted him to do it, for he bare the greatest Rule at that time in Egypt, yet he did not so. Benjamin also was likened to a ravening Wolf for his fierceness, when he was fetch'd again by force of Joseph's Steward, feigning a Lye upon him; how chanced he did not kill him? Or else when he alone pursuued Benjamin and his other Brethren; could not he, if he had lift, have slain the Man and buried him, so that the Matter should never have come to light? Notwithstanding they did nothing so, nor so: But Judah wisely weighing the Exaltations and Directions, the Promotions and Disgraces, with the common Courses of the World, return.
returned again with his Brethren into the City, went to Joseph and besought him, until his Bowels were moved to pity; and he was known of his Brethren.

All these things doth the most Holy Law of the Lord rehearse unto us, and putteth us in mind of for this Intent; that we may learn to bear for Necessities sake, the Yoke of him that hath the Pre-eminence and Rule for his time. Neither let any judge or think that Joseph offended God, in that he submitted himself under the Yoke of Pharaoh, for it is no shame for a wise Man to couch unto him whose help he standeth in need of, whatsoever it be, much more if he be a King or a Lord: Know ye not that our Fathers were in Bondage to King Pharaoh in Egypt? But after the Lord remembred the Covenant that he made with our Fathers, and had determined to lead them out of Egypt, he sent Moses our Master of famous Memory, his Angel, his Chosen, who knew the Lord to be with him, whereby he was able to destroy whosoever did rise against him: Nevertheless when he came to Pharaoh's Presence, who then bare Rule in Egypt, he shewed himself in Arms, but rather with Thunder and Hail, that Pharaoh might well perceive and know God was the Lord. But at what time as Pharaoh oppressed the Israelites too sore, our Master Moses (by God's help) brought them out of Egypt, with a strong Hand and stretched forth Arm, against the Egyptians, whom he punished with continual Plagues: by that means delivering the Israelites out of the hands of their Lords and Matters, and bringing them to the Mount of God, made them Heirs.
Heirs full of all Goodness; that is to say, of the most Holy Law of God.

And after Joshua had subdued the Holy Land to the Israelites, and that they inhabited it, there chanced unto our Fathers many Adversities, as is mentioned in the Books of the Prophets, so that they were constrained to serve the King of Ashur a long season, and the Kings of Persia: To the Chaldees also were we in Bondage, although not very grievous, but tolerable. Moreover, with other Kings of the Gentiles we had Wars, and sometimes we were put to Foils, sometimes we had the Upper-hand.

Now therefore, my Brethren, tell me what shame were it to you, if ye were subject unto the Romans? Or what are you to be compared to other Nations that be under their Dominion? Do you not see that the Romans Reign over your Enemies, and bear Rule over them, that sometimes were our Masters, and hate us? Were it not reason that you should love them, which have brought down your Enemies, and revenged you of them? Which notwithstanding you have nothing at all done, but rather have hated them, as Men void of all Perseverance, without weighing and considering, that since the time you were under them, ye have always lived in much Peace. And I myself, when I withstood the Romans in Galilee, knew very well that I should be overcome at length, but I could do nothing because of the seditious Persons that were with me, which would in no wise follow my Counsel: Yea, it stood me in Hand to have a care of my own Person, that I were not killed of them, after I had once counselled and moved them to give up the Town.
The Wars of the Jews.

Town. Wherefore seeing the Matter stood so, and God knew my Heart, I thought best to fight against the Romans, as I might, and when occasion served to escape to the Romans, to take it. Further, (when I was in the Cave with my forty Companions,) I had been lost and perished, had not God given me Counsel, making me a way to escape and save my Life. For they had almost slain me, because I gave them Council to yield themselves to the Romans, and obey them. For I saw this was the time of the Romans to bear Rule, and that God hath appointed them to be Lords over all Nations. For this is his manner, like as above he hath made some to be Rulers over other some, even so beneath also he hath set Rulers over the Kings of the Earth. Who can Controll him? Who is Stronger than he? The Romans at this present have the Dominion over all Lands and People, over the Egyptians, Assyrians, Persians and Chaldees, (to every one of these you have been in Bondage) and over other Nations also, which nevertheless do Till their Ground, Sow, Mow, Plant, and gather in their Fruits: And who hath the Profit of these Goods and Labour but the Romans? who whiles the other Toil and Travel, do live in Peace and rest themselves.

Wherefore mark this also, my Brethren, the Kings of Macedonia once had the Rule of the whole World, especially in the time of Alexandra of Macedonia, but at this Day their Empire is taken from them, and they are become Subjects to the Romans. They, when the Romans first set upon them, were very haughty and stubborn, determining to refill the Romans: notwithstanding they were over-come of the Romans, and are under their subjection at this day. What should I speak of the People of the Philistines, which heretofore always have vexed and annoyed you? doth not the meanest amongst all the Princes of the Romans bear Rule over them?

What hope then have you to escape, when ye know the Philistines were ever stronger than you, and you were oftentimes overcome of them? As for example, Saul your King was slain by them. But you will say David, the Anointed of the Lord of Israel, pulled them down, and brought them into subjection. Wot ye what? then God looked upon you with a favourable Countenance, and fought your Battels himself: but at this day he is in no wise present with you, for he hath turned away his Countenance of Salvation from you, because ye have sinned against him. And which of you can say, hath Intelligence of the Secret of the Lord, hath received any such Watch-word as God gave at that time unto David? When thou shalt be a sound of Mourning in the Tops of Mulberry Trees, then shalt thou set forward; for then the Lord go before thy Face, smite the Tents a Camps of the Philistines, 2 Sam 5. Whosoever (say) hath knowledge of any such Token, let him reveal it to his Neighbour, and I could well content to follow it. But seeing there is no such thing, hearken unto me, my dear Brethren, Com and serve the Romans in Peace and Tranquil ity. It shall be no dishonesty for you, with the King of Persia, to be subject to the Romans: They that some sometime were your Masters, shall be now your Fellows and Companions. But if you will persevere, and stand in your Opinion still, I will enter into this Discourse with you! Tell me, I pray you, when were ever your Ancestors free, and when were they not entangled with the Wars of the Gentiles, and the Dominions of other Nations? Had you not ever the Victory from the time you came out of Ægypt, until the Reign of Saul the Son of Cis? So long as the Lord was your King, you were in Bondage to no Man, you served God as your only King. But after that your evil and corrupt Desire stirred you to irk-som to the Lord, and, left he should reign alone, to chuse a Man to have the Dominion over you, according as the Custom was in other Nations (I mean Saul the Son of Cis, and the other Kings every one) then served you him, you and your Sons, and the chiefest of you became his Servants, your goodliest Daughters were made his Confectionaries, his Cooks, and his Bakers. After Saul, reigned David, of worthy Memory, who ruled over many Nations: But he also brought you into Bondage, and put divers of you to death, to satisfie his Pleasure withal. He being dead, you served Solomon his Son, who no less than the other, even as he lifted, exercised Dominion over you: He also took up your Sons and Daughters, and made them his Slaves.

After this, succeeded other most wicked Kings; so that from that time your Country began to go to wrack, and he that was the best amongst them was Rehoboam, which said unto you, My Father corrected you with Whips, but of the World, but rather let your Election follow the Causes and Events of the same; which if you do, you shall be esteemed with wise Men.

Now, my dear Country-men, never think it shame for you to serve the Romans; it is time for you now to turn to the Lord with your whole Heart, and then you shall have the Dominion over other Nations, according to your desire. This shall then come to pass, when you follow your Lord God with all your Strength. Therefore never think that the Romans, which have rule over you at this day, are of less Power than other People, that heretofore have had Dominion over you. For they are a mighty Nation, their Empire and Rule over other People, they have from above, as I have proved to you by the similitudes of brute Beasts, which according to Nature bear rule one over another: Notwithstanding, in Mankind, it should never have come to pass, that the Bigger should so have Dominion over the less, unless for their Sins; for the which they are so punished, that one is compelled to bow his Neck under another's Yoke.

Now therefore, my dear People, take Humility and Meekness unto you, never covet to alter the Law of Nature, but receive my Words, and follow my Counsel; obey the Romans, prepared and ready to make League with you, according to their bountifulness, that ye may live and do full well.
When Joseph had spoken these Things, in the hearing of the Citizens of Jerusalem, they burst out and wept, gnashing with their Teeth, and railed at Joseph over the Walls, hurling Stones and Darts at him, to have killed him. Therefore when Joseph saw they would not follow his Counsel, but were so stiff-necked, he began to rebuke them, crying unto them in this wise, Woe to all froward People, and such as rebel against the Lord God! What mean ye you Wretches? what have ye to lean unto, that ye are so stubborn, when, nevertheless, the Lord is gone from you? For you are wicked People, and have sinned against him. How can your Sins be purged which you have committed in the Temple of the Lord, by shedding of innocent Blood without all Mercy? Ye are most guilty, for ye have fought in the Temple and Sanctuary of the Lord, ye have defiled it with dead Bodies of them, which ye have slain in the very midst thereof. Besides, ye have profaned and unhallowed the Name of the Lord with making of Wars upon the Sabbath-day, and upon your solemn and festival Days. Tell me now, ye froward Rebels, whether did ever your Forefathers prevail against their Enemies, with Spear and Shield, but rather with Prayer, Penance, and Purity of Heart, wherewith they served God, and again he delivered them? But you, what have you to trust unto, when as ye are unfaithful? your Shelter and Protection is departed from you, and and your Lord God aideth your Enemies, whose Power he maintaineth to destroy you: If you imagine to be delivered with your Swords and Spears, you are fully deceived, whereas God would not that ye should escape the Hands of your Enemies.

Open your Eyes, and see what David the Anointed of the Lord said; For the Lord will save neither by Sword nor Spear. Call to your Remembrance (ye very Fools) Abraham your Father which begot you, by what means he overcame Pharaoh the King of Egypt, who violently had taken away Sarah his Wife from him: Surely none other way did he obtain the Victory than by Prayer to the Lord, who stirred the Spirit of Pharaoh, and put him in mind to restore his Wife Sarah, clean and undefiled. Abraham was quiet in his Bed, and at rest from all Troubles; but Pharaoh, that great Lord and Ruler, was punished in the mean season with great Plagues, because of Sarah, whom he had taken to him by Violence to deflower her, which God would not suffer, but rather uncovered Pharaoh's Flesh, that he was fain to shew the secret Parts of his Body to Physicians, to see if they could heal them. But who can cure the Infirmities which God sends? or who knows his Intents? For who knew that Hezekiah's Biles could be healed with a Plaister of Figs? or Naaman the Syrian's Leprofie with the Water of Jordan? or the bitter Water with Wormwood? Wherefore when as no Man could cure Pharaoh, he was fain to speak Abraham fair, and to intreat him to pray to God to take away from him his Plague, and so by his Prayer Pharaoh recovered.

Then
Then Pharaoh appareled Sarah in precious Garments, gave her Gifts of Gold and Silver, and precious Stones, and sent her home honest, pure and holy to Abraham, living then at his own House. Isaac when he was driven out by Abimelech King of the Philistines, and had with him the Bond-servants of his Father's Household to the number of 800 and 18, with whom Abraham had discomfitted five Kings, beside many other more of his Family, so that he had been strong enough to have invaded the Philistines; yet he would not do it; but with all Meekness and Humility he used himself towards the King of that Country. Notwithstanding, after he was driven out of the Land, the Philistines came unto him, and entreated him, saying, We perceive the Lord is with thee, &c. as it is written in the Scripture. What shall we say of Jacob, when he fled from the presence of his Brother Esau, he carried nothing with him but a bare Staff, wherewith he passed over the River Jordan, as it is written; With my Staff passed I this Jordan. His Ammunition that he took with him for his Journey, was Prayer, wherewith he made all his Wars. That was it for the which God assisted him, when he went away to Laban, and when he returned from him; when also he was delivered out of the Hands of his Brother Esau, who sought to kill him. And this also he did by the way as he returned, when he wrestled with a certain Man that over-came him.

O Lord, Who is able to number the Mercies of the Lord, and the Marvels which he wrought with our Fathers of worthy Memory, Abraham, Isaac, and and Jacob? What should I speak of Moses our Shepherd, the Man of God, that feared the Cruelyty of Pharaoh, until he writ in the Law, That he had called the Name of his Son Eleazar: for he said the God of his Father helped him, and delivered him out of the hands of Pharaoh. And when he came before Pharaoh to deliver Israel out of his hands, and to lead them out of Egypt, With what things else overcame he the Tyrant withal than with Prayer? Did he not overthrow the Pride of Pharaoh and his Charmers, only with the Rod of the Lord which he had with him? Wherewith also he smote Egypt with ten Plagues, and divided the Sea into twelve Parts. And at the Red Sea Moses resisted not Pharaoh and his Host with force of Arms, but with Prayer: wherefore Pharaoh and all his were drown'd in the bottom of the Sea. But Moses sung a Song of Praise unto our God, while the Soldiers of the Egyptians perished, that came gainst Moses and the People of Israel, with Weapons, Horses and Chariots.

Notwithstanding, by Moses's Prayer they were over-whelmed all in the Sea, so that not one of them escaped. Who is ignorant of this, that Prayer is of more force than all Instruments of War? that it speedeth and hasteneth the Help of the Lord, and his saying Health? Do you not know, when Joshua the Minister of Moses, passed over Jordan, that he was a warlike Man, and had with him very many most valiant Soldiers; nevertheless, he destroyed not the seven Walls of Jericho by force of War, but only with Prayer, and with shouts and noise of the Priests of the Lord, our Forefathers?
fathers? Know ye not that Prayer availed Gideon, when as he, with three hundred Men, vanquished the whole Host of Midian, Amateck, and the People of the East: If Prayer had not helped him; I pray you, what had three hundred Men been able to do against so great a Multitude? Mark (ye fond People) what chanced in the Covenant of the Lord, that the Philistines took away.

Our Fathers truly were not able to recover it by their Swords and force of Arms; but with that Prayer that the just Man of that Age made, the Ark was brought again to his Place. Consider the times of Hezekiah King of Judah, when as Sennacherib King of Assyria, came up blasphemying and railing upon the Sanctuary of the Lord our God of Hosts, breathing out the Pride and Malice of his Heart. By what means was he overthrown? Did our Fathers overcome him by force of Arms? No, without doubt, but with Prayer and Supplication.

For Hezekiah the King went and put on Apparel meet for Prayer; instead of a Shield, he took Sackcloth; for a Helmet, he cast Dust on his Head; and instead of Arrows and a Sword, he made use of Prayer and Supplication. And the Prayers that Hezekiah made, mounted so far as an Arrow was never able to flee; so that his Petition and Prayer overthrew one hundred eighty five thousand, most valiant Men of the Host of Sennacherib. Furthermore, the King of Judah, and King of Israel, and King of Edom, joined their Powers together, invaded the Moabites, and in a Wilderness, and unoccupied and barren dry Land, they were in great Peril and Thirst; what profited them, their Artillery and Furniture of War? Did there not issue out out for them at the instant Prayer of Elisha, a Prophet and Man of God, plenty of Water in the Desert, a Brook in the Wilderness? Came it not to pass also by the Prayer of the same Elisha, that a wonderful Hurly-burly, a Rumbling and Ratling of Chariots of War, and of Horses, was heard in the Camp of the Syrians, besieging the City of Samaria, with the which noise the Syrians, being afraid, fled; no Man pursuing, or following them; Ye know also, that by the Prayer of the aforesaid Prophet, the Famine and lack of Victuals that was in the Town of Samaria, was turned into great Abundance and Plenty; insomuch that thirty Ephah's, or Measures of fine Meal, were sold for one Piece of Silver. Do ye not see (most foolish Men) how our Fore-fathers had the Victory ever by Prayer?

But let us come to the beginning again, and speak of Moses. What time as he held up his hands towards Heaven, had not Israel the upper-hand of the Amalekites by his Prayer? Joshua also by his Prayer, stayed the Sun and Moon in the sight of the People of Israel; and the Sun stood still in Gibeah, and the Moon in the Valley of Ajalon, that the Evening was changed into Noon-day, and so Israel vanquished their Enemies.

Sampson also, that most valiant Giant, until such time as he had sinned, did not God evermore hear his Prayer, and ever he gat the Victory thereby? After he had once sinned, he decayed as any other mean Person.

Likewise King Saul, all the while he walked perfectly and purely, his Prayer increased his valiantness and strength, but after he had once sinned, God left him, and gave him over.
The Wars of the Jews.

David also, King of Israel, of famous Memory, from the time of his Youth, till his last end, his Valiantness never failed him; and why? Because he always was help'd by his Prayer; neither would he ever fight against his Country-men and Native People, when as Saul persecuted him. Wherefore he prevailed against his Enemies; and because he abstained to lay his hands upon his Brethren, therefore afterward all Nations feared him.

Did not Asa King of Juda, accompanied with a small number of Men, make an Expedition against the Ethiopians? And praying to the Lord God, said on this wise, We indeed know not what to do, but our Eyes are bent upon thee, &c. Which Prayer the Almighty did hear, and the Victory followed, so that Asa flew in the Camp of the Ethiopians Ten hundred thousand Men. Deborah, a Prophetess, by her Prayer brought to pass great Health in Israel.

What shall I tell of divers other Just and Godly Women, which by their Prayers obtained many things? Tell me (ye mad Men) know ye not what Amaziah King of Juda did? he having Wars with the Edomites, vanquished them, and led them Prisoners with their Wives and Children, and Idols also, to Jerusalem; and then fell to worshipping of the same Idols, that he had taken from the Edomites, saying unto them, Ye are they that have saved me, therefore do I worship you, and by you have I overcome the Edomites. To whom when a Prophet of the Lord came and asked him, why seekest thou and servest the Gods of that People that were not able to deliver them.
them out of thy hand? By and by he taunted the Prophet again, saying, Who made thee of the King's Council? Wherefore after that, he was no more reprehended of the Prophet; for the Lord had determined to destroy him, as it is written in the Books of the Chronicles of the Kings of Juda. Therefore he was taken Prisoner afterward like a Fox, when he had fought against Joas King of Israel in Bethshemeth; and so was he compared to a low and vile Thorn and Shrub, and Joas unto the noble and high Cedar-Tree. Yea, all the Evils that ever hapned unto us in any Age, it came of our selves, for our Lord God is Righteous in all his Works, that ever he wrought upon us: Our Enemies never did us so much harm, as we our selves did unto our selves. Ye wot, the Gentiles took the precious Vessels of our Sanctuary away to Babel, and brought us them again undefiled; but we polluted and defiled them our selves, and the Temple also with innocent Blood, which we shed abundantly within it, adding sins to sins ever more and more, breaking the Law with our evil Acts.

For who brought the Romans first against the City of Jerusalem, but Hircanus and Aristobulus? For they being at Diffention betwixt themselves, and one hating the other, called the Romans against this City. Who brought Antonius, and Sosius, Princes of the Romans, against Jerusalem, but Herod being at variance for the Kingdom with the House of the Chasmonanites? Who also called Nero Caesar to reign over us? Did you it not your selves? Now therefore why rebel ye against the Empire and Dominion of the Romans? If you will say, say, Because the Roman President Edomeus ordered you too bad; had it not been meet rather to complain of him to the Emperor, than to rebel against the Romans, and to make War against them? But you will say, We rebelled against Nero Cesar, because he did us too much wrong. Wherefore then rebel ye now against Vespasian Cesar, a most merciful Man, and one which never hurt you? Or, why make ye not Peace with his Son to be under him, according as other Nations be, that ye might live, and not perish?

Have ye not a sufficient Proof of his Clemency and Mercifulness, when as he had cause to be cruel upon no Man so much as upon me, which drew out my Sword against the Romans, and killed many of them?

Notwithstanding, neither he nor the rest of the Romans have done ye any harm. Yea, rather they have bestowed many Benefits upon me; and although I was in their hands, yet they saved my Life. I confess, that before they had me Prisoner, I would gladly many time have fled to them, but I could never do it, for I was ever afraid of my wicked Companions, lest they should have killed me, and so my death had been to no purpose. But now I praise the Lord God without ceasing, that for his unmeasurable Mercies sake, he would not suffer me to be entangled in the same Mischiefs that you be in. Neither would I wish to be Companion of such lost Wretches and Castaways as you be, which have shed the Blood of Innocents in the Temple of the Lord.

Indeed if I had been with you, I should have been been void of all hope as ye be, seeing ye spare not your own Lives, and your own Contumacy and Stubbornness is made a Snare for you. See, I pray you, with how great Mischiefs you are laden. First, the Lord is not amongst you, insomuch that through the Tumults which you have made amongst your selves, almost the Waters of Shiloa are dried up, which heretofore, when the Nations made War against you, flowed in great abundance, and ran over the Banks on both sides. But you are the most contumacious Rebels that ever provoked the Lord God unto Wrath, you have made Slaughters one upon another, in the midst of the Temple of the Lord: How can then the Glory of the Lord dwell amongst you? Know ye, not because of Korah and his Congregation, the Lord said unto Moses and to his People: Separate your selves from amongst this Congregation, and I shall consume them in the twinkling of an Eye.

But you are far worse than they: For without all remorse or pity, ye pull down the Temple of the Lord with your own Hands, and yourselves set on fire the Sanctuary, which most Noble Kings, and most Holy Prophets builded: And besides all this, ye neither spare your Sons, nor Daughters. And although I be in the Romans Camp, yet I am not absent from you, for my most dearly beloved Wife is present with you, the Wife of my Youth, whom I cannot set lightly by at this present, although I never had Children by her: But rather love her most entirely, because she came of a most honest and Godly House. My dear Father and Mother are also with you, very aged Persons; for my Father is at at this day an Hundred and three Years old, and my Mother Fourscore and five: But the Years of my Life are very few, evil and full of Tribulation and Sorrow, about Threescore and Seven, neither have I lived yet so long, that according to Nature I should desire to die.

Now therefore, if so be you trust not me, but suppose I have proposed these things to you deceitfully, and that there is no trust of Titus's Covenant and Bond, or that his League should be to your Hindrance and Discommodity; Go to, if it come to pass, it shall be Lawful for you to kill my Father and Mother, and my Wife: Yea, I swear unto you by the Lord our God, that I shall deliver my Life also into your hands, that you may do with me what ye list; and by that means shall the Blood of my Parents, my Wife's, and mine, be in Pledge.

Therefore let the Ancients of the City come forth, and I will make a League betwixt them and our Lord Titus; and doubt ye not, but as hitherto the Lord God would you should be afflicted and punished by the Government of the Romans; so hereafter he shall benefit you thereby, and do you good, if so be you will once acknowledge and confess that all Dominion is changed and altered at his Commandment, and that God humbleth whom he lifteth, and again whom he lifteth he setteth aloft: But persuade your selves of this, that as long as ye refuse to be subject unto the Romans, so long you stir against your selves, God's Wrath and high Displeasure: And besides that, you do defor the longer, and prolong your Redemption and Deliverances, not only to your selves, but also to your Posterity.

Now therefore, my Brethren, I thought it my part to declare all these things to you, and it is in your power to chuse whether you lift: for whoso will, let him give ear unto me, and who not, let him abstain from my Counsel.

The People hearing these Words and Sayings of Joseph the Priest, wept wonderfully, for they could have been content to have followed his Counsel. At this time, Titus gave Commandment to all the Romans, to send again the Jews that were Prisoners, and the Slaves into the City: By which means he shifted from himself the Blood of the Jews, and laid it upon the Necks of their Masters; for Titus took pity of them through Joseph's Oration, and his good Counsel. The common People of the Jews desired nothing more, than to have come forth, and fall to an Agreement, to make Peace with Titus; but Schimeon, Eleazar and Jehochanan, Captains over the Seditious, set strong Watch and Ward at every Gate, charging them to kill all that should go forth: Thus were many killed which would have fled forth to Titus, and the City of Jerusalem was closed up, and no Man could get out nor in. In the mean season fell a great Dearth and Famine in Jerusalem, insomuch that the Seditious searched every Man's House and Cellar for Food.

And because a certain Householder withstood them, they killed him. Thus they dealt with all them that dwelled at Jerusalem, till the Victuals in the Town was all spent, that Men began gan to seek Dung and even Man's Excrements to eat, by which means much of the People died for Hunger. Whosoever at that time could get any Herbs or Roots, Mice, Serpents, or other creeping Worms (whatsoever they were) to eat, he was counted happy, because he had found Meat to sustain and save his Life withal, in that hard Famine and terrible Hunger. Moreover, whosoever had any Corn in store that no Man knew of, he was afraid to send it to the Mill, or bake it, because of the Wick edness of the Seditious, lest they should take away from them their Sustenance; wherefore many did eat the dry Corn unground in their Cellars privately.

At that time also were many exceeding rich Men in Jerusalem, which stole Meat one from another, so that the Father snatched Meat from the Son, and the Son from the Father; the Mother snatch'd from her Children, the Children likewise from their Mother; and such as fled out of the Gates, or otherwise, let themselves down over the Walls in the Night season; who being suspected to be the Seditious Persons, the Romans killed them without. This Evil therefore and Distress increased so long, that the People had devoured all that ever crept on the Earth, from the Mouse to the Spider, from the Newt to the Weasel; whereby a most grievous Pestilence followed, that innumerable of the People of the Land died, and there was no Man to bury them.

When they chanced to find any dead Horses, or other Beasts in the Town, a Man should see many Israelites strive and fight for it; in all points points like to famished Ravens lighting upon a dead Carcass, so that in such Contentions very many were slain. Therefore when divers Men, with their Wives and Children, gat out of the City to gather Herbs to eat, and chanced among the Romans, the Romans laid hold of the little Children and killed them; saying, We will dispatch these, lest when they grow once to Man's Estate, they make War upon us as their Fathers do at this day. So many as came out of the Gates of the City now and then, the Romans killed and hanged them upon Gallowses, over against the Gates of Jerusalem, to the number of Five hundred. After the same manner Schimeon, Jehochanan, and Eleazar dealt with those Romans, whom they could by any train catch, and hanged them up upon the Walls. Whosoever also they could perceive would flee unto the Romans, they hanged them likewise over the Walls to the number of 500. But Titus gave Commandment to all his Soldiers, That no Man, upon pain of death, should kill any of them that fled out of Jerusalem. For he took pity of the Israelites, and ceased not to speak friendly and lovingly to the Jerusalemites; so that he went yet once again to the Walls, and spake unto the Jews in this sort.

Hear, I beseech you, the Counsel of Joseph, and come unto me that you may live, and not perish utterly. Spare your People: Why will you oppress them vexed with Hunger, Thirst, Pestilence, and Besieging? But the Seditious hearing Titus speak, were wonderfully incensed, and intended to add mischief upon mischief, handling yet more cruelly the People of God. Moreover, they rail at Titus to provoke him to Anger, that he might leave off speaking to the People, which had now almost lost their Obedience and Fear of the Seditious.

Wherefore the Seditious speak unto the Romans, It is better for us to die with Hunger, and to be killed in this Affliction, so to come to the Bliss and Light we hope for, than to live and see the most Holy Temple of God defiled and destroyed. When Titus saw this, he commanded an Iron Ram to be set to the Wall to batter it, that he might deliver those poor Wretches out of Schimeon, Eleasar, and Jehochanan's Hands, who held them in as Captives.

At the same time as they erected that Engine to the Wall, it happened there was in the Camp a certain young Man whose name was Memaganim, Son of Antiochus of Macedonia, one of the Kings of the Græcians, who came at Vespasian's Commandment to aid Titus. The same young Man was very Swift, a good Runner, and a hardy Soldier, but he lacked Discretion. He came to Titus and said, I cannot but marvel at thy Soldiers that vanquish all Nations, and dare not set upon the Jews to kill them.

Titus hearing the young King say so, smiled and said, How chances it, that being of this Judgment, thou armest not thy self, and makest thee ready to do like as thou sayest? Why drawest thou not out thy Sword, to declare thy Manhood upon them?

Wherefore the young King encouraged himself, and called together all his Macedonian Soldiers, then approached to the Jews, and began skir-skirmish with them, shooting with their Bows and Arrows apace. But at length the Jews handled them, that not one of the Macedonians escaped, save only the young King, which by his good footman-ship and swift-running, got away and returned to Titus.

This Memaganim was of the Kindred of Alexander the Great, King of Macedonia, which had the Dominion of the whole World, and whom all Nations and People stood in awe of. Josephus the Priest demanded of him whose Son he was? He answered, I came of the Seed of Alexander, I am the Tenth from him. Joseph said, It may well be as thou hast said, that thou art of the Succession of Alexander, for the valiantness of thy Heart that thou hast shewed, declare no less; howbeit, thou shalt understand that the Romans have done wisely to abstain from the Assault at this time, because they knew they should have to do with a most valiant Nation, which thou having so well tried, mayest report and testify when thou art asked the question.

After this, Titus divided his whole Army, and layed them privily in Ambushes round about the Walls. He prepared moreover Rams of Iron to batter the Walls. Of these Four, one he planted upon the side of the place called Antochia; the Engine was thirty Cubits long. The same Night Captain Jehochanan with his Company issued forth, and undermined the Ground under the Wheels of the Waggon that bare the Rams, putting pitched Boards, Oiled, and done over with Brimstone, in the Trenches under the Wheels; and under the Boards they spread Leather, which which likewise was smeared and done over with Pitch, Oil and Brimstone.

Then they set fire upon the Boards, which burnt till they came to the Feet of the Rams: and they being set on fire and burnt, the Engines fell upon the Watch that was appointed to keep it, being asleep, and killed them. Whereat the Romans were much dismayed, and said, It is not possible we should assault this City hereafter, for they have burnt all our Engines of War, wherewith we have subdued all other Kingdoms; so that now of 50 Iron Rams we brought with us, we have but six left, and the Seditious Jews have burnt three of them, what shall we now do? How shall we batter the Walls hereafter? The Jews upon the Walls hearing their words, flouted them, and laugh'd them to scorn. Wherefore Titus incensed with Anger, commanded the other three Rams to be addressed in the place of those which were burnt. In the mean season, while the Romans were at work, four young Men moved with great Zeal, whose Names were, first Theopatius Galileus, the second Magarus Chebronita, the third Ferminus Schomronita, the fourth Arians Jerosolymita; these all armed, issued out into the Camp of the Romans, that then stood about their three Engines and Iron Rams, devising how to batter the Walls of the City, some of whom these Men killed, the other fled. Then two of them stood at defence to keep off all those that approached nigh the Engines, while the other two, Jerosolymilia, and Schomronita daubed the Timber with a certain Matter which they had prepared to make it take fire, and straightway set fire on them, so. that suddenly the Rams were on a light fire. Then they all four joining together, withstood the Romans, that they should not come at the Engines to quench the Fire. Shortly the Rams fell down, and the Romans stood aloof, hurling Stones and shooting thick at them: for they were afraid to come nigh them, because of their great fierceness, although they were Three thousand Men that kept the Rams. Yea, these Four set nothing by them, nor yet ever went off the Ground till the Rams were clean burnt up, shot the Romans never so thick at them. Titus hearing the Valiantness of these young Men, and the harms they had done unto the Romans, made speed with his whole Host to save the Rams from the fire, and to apprehend those young Men. Then forthwith issued out Schimeon, Jehoebanan, and Eleazar, Captains of the Seditious, with their Soldiers, sounding their Trumpets, and made the Romans retire, that they could not come nigh the fire, and so rescued the four young Men from the Romans, that had environed them round about.

In that Skirmish were killed Ten thousand and Five hundred Men. Then gathered together all the whole Army of the Romans to assault the Jews at once, approaching hard to the Walls of Jerusalem, where they cried unto the Jews, saying, What, are you Oxen or Goats, that you fight on this fashion upon the Walls? Will you be taken in the midst of the City, like as Oxen and Goats are taken in their Folds? If ye be Men, come forth and let us try our manhood here in this Plain. But you by stealth and at unawares set upon them that keep our Engines, gines, snatching them up like as it were Wolves should snatch Sheep, then run away into the Town, as the Wolves run into the Wood. If there be any Manhood in you, behold we are ready here, come forth to us, so many for so many, and then we shall see what end will come thereof. When the Cap-tains of the Seditious heard that, they spake unto the Warriors that were in Jerusalem, Which of you will go out with us to these Dogs, to shew our force and stomach, for the Sanctuary and City of the Lord? Then five hundred tall Fellows of their own accord issued out upon the Romans suddenly, and flew Eight thousand Men, and compelled the rest to retreat from the Walls. The Romans then felt what Valiantness the Jews had, for the Romans were in number Forty thousand fighting Men, and the Jews were only Five hundred, whereof not one of them was killed at that Skirmish.

The Romans afar off shot at the Jews, and hurled Stones; to whom the Jews said, Come hither to us, are you not they that called us forth, and provoked us to come to you? why come you not now nearer? you go about to drive us away with Arrows and Stones; what do you think us to be Dogs, and that we are afraid of your Stones? Are we not Men? yea, we are your Masters and Betters, for you run away from us as Servants flee from their Masters, when they follow them to beat them. Titus seeing his Army to be part of them fled, and part to be slain, he cried to his People, saying, Is it not a shame for you, ye Romans, and a wonderful great dishonour, to flee from the Jews, so hunger-beaten, famished, almost dead for Thirst, and besieged? Alas, how shall ye put away this this your Rebuke and Ignominy? When as all Nations which heretofore ye have most valiantly subdued, shall hear that ye flee from these dead Jews, whose whole Land we have in possession; so that they have nothing left but this only Town, which we have so battered, that they have but one only Wall to defend themselves. Besides this, they are very few, we are innumerable; they have no Nation to aid them, we help of all Lands; Why then do ye flee from their fight, like as small impotent Birds flee from the Eagle? What though the Jews vow and hazard themselves desperately for their Temple and Land, why do you not the same also in these Wars, to get you a Renown of Valiantness?

But the Jews prevailed that day, and had the upper-hand; wherefore they returned into the Town with great Glory, having put the Romans to so great a Foil. Titus commanded his to address and prepare the other two Rams that were left to batter the Walls of Jerusalem withal: Wherefore the Roman Carpenters cut a Trench, to prepare and set up the Rams in such places as Titus had assigned them.

The Jews were aware of it well enough, but winked at the matter as yet, until they had planted the Master-beams between the Standing-Posts. So when the Work was finished, even to the hanging up of the Engines betwixt the Standing-Posts to shake the Wall withal, the Romans being secure and void of Care, nothing mistrusting that the Jews would stir, because they had been quiet a few Nights, and never issued forth of the City: upon a certain Night, a pretty while before Day, the three prinprincipal Captains of the Seditious, came and cast their Heads together, to devise what they should do. Eleazar gave this Counsel, and said, You two the last time issued out, and burnt three Rams, and got you Renown, and I kept the Gates the while; now keep ye the Gates, and I will issue out with my Men against the Romans to get me a Name also.

The other answered, Go then on God's Name unto them, the Lord God of the Sanctuary which is in Jerusalem shall be present with thee, but beware thou be not slain, and in any wise thou be not taken alive: To whom he answered, The Lord God shall keep me; for upon the trust of the Righteousness of my Father Ananias the High-Priest, and his sincere Service unto God, I will set upon them.

Eleazar therefore chose 100 valiant Soldiers, and with them he issued out of the Town before day: The same Night the Romans had made fires about their Engines where they watched, because of the cold: The Artificers and Soldiers that kept the Watch and Ward about the Romans, were in number a Hundred and Fifty. The day was the 27th of the Month of September, which was the Ninth Month that Titus had besieged Jerusalem. Eleazar and his Company thus being issued out, came and found some of the Romans snorting about the Fires, others Watching in their Wards, and killed them all, that not one remained. Then some of Eleazar's Company set Fire upon the Rams, burnt the Standing Posts, Ropes, Chains; and other Instruments for War; the Artificers that were there there, they apprehended alive and burnt them, so that no Man escaped.

When it was day, Titus observed the Smoak of the Fire mounting up very foul, and stinking of the Wood and Men together, he drew towards the place therefore with his Hoft, to see what the matter was: Eleasar in the mean season, and his Companions took, as they might get, every Man a piece of the Engines out of the Fire, or some of their Heads that they had killed, and returned with great Joy; flouting the Romans, and laughing them to scorn by the way, till they came to the Gates of Jerusalem, where they were received of Schimeon and Jehochanan with great Honour.

Soon after this, came many Soldiers and great Bands of Men out of all Nations, that were subject to the Empire of the Romans, to aid Titus; to whom Titus declared what hapned him in that Siege, the stoutness of the Jews, and how they had annoyed many ways the Roman Army; adding moreover, and asking them, Did you ever see Four Men withstand Ten thousand and five hundred, so that they being all together, could neither overthrow them nor take them Prisoners; but the Four flew them, like as it had been tops of Cucumbers smitten off with most sharp Swords: When they heard this, they wondred all very much. Then Titus spake unto his Hoft, and to them which were newly repaired unto him, to shew their Advice and best Councel what was to be done, Left we should be ashamed (faith he) before all them that shall hereafter hear of our Wars.

The Gravest and most Ancient of the Nations
 ons that were newly come to his Aid, answered, If it please your Majesty, let the Romans breathe a while and take their Rest, which are now wearied with the sundry Battles of the Jews, and we, who are not so broken with Labour, but fresh and lusty, shall try what the Jews can do; we cannot think that they are able to withstand so great a Multitude.

But the Princes of the Romans desired Titus that he should not permit them this, lest he should encrease their own Sorrows, if peradventure they should be discomfited (say they) of the Jews, and the Matter redound unto their own Shame. For if we which are acquainted with them, and know their manner of fight, cannot sustain their Violence, how shall they do it that never had proof of the Strength and Force of the Jews? They shall be to them like Hyssop which grows upon the Walls, in comparison of the Cedar-Trees of Libanus.

The other said, nay, they should do well enough with them. And they urged Titus so instantly, that they constrained him to grant them their Desire. Then Titus gave them leave to set upon the Jews, thinking with himself, peradventure the Jews may be put to the worse of these Men that will fight without fear, not knowing the Force of the Jews: For the Romans that have had tryal of their Strength, fight fearfully and warily. So the Lords of the strange Nations, chose out of their Armies Eighty thousand Men; Ten thousand Macedonians, Twenty thousand Britains, Five thousand Aramites, Ten thousand Africans, Ten thousand valiant Burgundians, Five thousand Redarans; last of all, all, ten thousand Persians and Chaldeans. These therefore went into the Plain which is by the Sepulchre of Jehochanan the High Priest, and from thence made an Assault upon the Jews that were upon the Walls, setting up their Scaling-Ladders. Jehochanan said to Schimeon and Eleasar, his two Companions, If you think good I will issue forth, and skirmish with these uncircumcised, to let them see what I can do. Schimeon answered, Let two of us do it, and the third keep the Gates and Walls, for thou alone art able to do nothing against them, they are so many. Eleasar allowed this Advice, offering himself to bear Jehochanan Company. Schimeon bad them go, saying, The Lord of the Sanctuary give them into your Hands, and deal not with you at this time according to your Works.

Then Jehochanan and Eleasar issued with One thousand five hundred good Men of War, the ninth Day of the Month Tebeth, which was the tenth Month that Titus had besieged Jerusalem, and overthrew of the Gentiles of that Host Fifty seven thousand and five hundred Men, besides Three thousand whom they took Prisoners: But of the Jews were no more slain in that Fight than only Seven, whose Bodies with much Rejoicing and great Triumph they carried with them into the Town, and buried them there, left peradventure the uncircumcised should have misordered them. The Gentiles that were left, with great Shame and Dishonour returned unto Titus, who reprehended them because they would not believe the Romans. The next day following, the Jews brought forth the Three thousand Nobles and Gentlemen that they had taken Prisoners, Prisoners, and plucked out of every one of them an Eye, and cut off every Man the one Hand, after sent them back with shame and reproach to Titus's Camp.

Then Titus consulted with all his Princes what were best to do with the Israelites; and when every Man had said his Mind, he liked never a Man's Counsel, but said unto them, Well, I have devised this with my self, which I will follow, and no Man shall bring me from my purpose: We will keep the Siege without any Assault or Skirmish; for their Victuals failed them long ago, and so they shall be famished. Besides this, when they shall see us cease to fight with them, they will fall at variance amongst themselves, and kill one another.

This Counsel was thought good of all Titus's Princes, wherefore they besieged the Town as Titus had commanded, and closed up all the ways of the City round about, left the Jews should, as they had done before, come upon them unawares. They appointed moreover Watch day and night, to take heed that no Man should come out of the Town to gather Herbs for their sustenance.

Then increased the Hunger in Jerusalem, which if it had not been so grievous, the City had never been won: for the Soldiers of the Town were lighter than Eagles, and fiercer than Lions. There died therefore of the Famine wonderful many of the Jerusalemites, so that the Jews could not find place to bury them in, they were so many in every place of the Town. Many cast their dead Folks into their Wells, and tumbled afterwards in themselves and died. Many also made themselves Graves, and went into them alive, where they remained day and night and died unmourned for: For all Mourning and accustomed Lamentation for the Dead was left off, because of the unmeasurable Famine, which was so great that it cannot be told, and I cannot relate the thousandth part of the Mischief that follow'd of the Hunger. Titus seeing the innumerable Carcasses of the Dead that were cast into the Brook Cedron like Dung, was wonderfully amazed with fear, and stretched out his Hands towards Heaven, saying, Lord God of Heaven and Earth, whom the Israelites believe in, cleanse me from this Sin, which surely I am, not the Cause of: For I required Peace of them, but they refused it, and they themselves are the Cause of this Mischief, they have sinned against their own Souls and Lives: I beseech thee impute it not to me for a Sin, that the Jews die on this manner.

At that time, certain wicked Persons of Jerusalem slander'd Amittai the Priest falsely, saying to Captain Schimeon, Behold, Amittai the Priest, which did let thee into the City, goeth about to flee to the Tents of the Romans; thou hast Experience of his great Wit and Wisdom, how he also knoweth all the secret Ways into the Town, Temple and Sanctuary, and who can tell whether he will bring the Romans some night at midnight into the City? Therefore Schimeon sent certain to fetch Amittai and his four Sons unto him.

They that were sent, brought Amittai and but Three of his Sons, for one was fled to the Romans, and came to Joseph. When Amittai with the other were brought to Schimeon's Presence, he besought him he might not live, but he put to death by and by, left (faith he) I should live to see the death of my Children. But Schimeon was hard-hearted, and and would not be entreated: for it was God's Will that Amittai should be punished, because he was the bringer of Schimeon into Jerusalem; and therefore fell he into his Hands, which for good rewarded him with Evil. Schimeon commanded a sort of Murderers to place Amittai upon the Walls, in the fight of the Romans, and said unto him, Seest thou, Amittai? Why do not the Romans deliver and rescue thee out of my Hands; thee, I say, which wouldst have fled away unto them. Amittai answered nothing to this, but still besought him before his death, he might kiss his Sons, and bid them farewell; but Schimeon utterly denied him.

Wherefore Amittai wept aloud, saying to his Sons, I brought (dear Children) I brought this Thief into this Town, wherefore I am counted now for a Thief my self: All the Mischief which is come upon me, and you, it is mine own doing, because I have brought this feditious Villain into this holy City: I thought then, peradventure he will be a help to the Town, but it is proved contrary: For he hath been a most cruel Enemy to the same. It was not enough for us to keep one feditious Person, Jehochanan, I mean, which took unto him Eleazar, the first Beginner of Sedition; but I must bring in also this wicked Schimeon, which is joyned to our Foes to destroy us. Indeed I never brought him in for any love that I bare unto him, but all the Priests, and the whole Multitude of the People sent me to fetch him; notwithstanding I am worthy of this Judgment of God, because I took upon me such an Embassage.

What should I speak of thee, thou most wicked Schimeon, for whitherfoever thou turnest thee, thou thou bringest all things out of Frame: I indeed, thou dealest justly with me, because I have sinned unto God, to his People, and his City, in that I have brought thee in, to be a Plague to it; wherefore I am worthy to be stoned. Notwithstanding, it had been thy part, thou wicked Murderer, to deliver me and my Sons from the Hands of the other Seditious, for I have done good: Howbeit our God will not alter, nor change his Judgment, which is, that I should fall into the Sword of thy Hand, for that I made thee to enter into this City, when I offended God grievously. If I had purposed to flee unto the Romans, could I not have done it before I brought in thee? for at that time bearest thou no Rule over us, and before we called in thee, Jebochanan, with his Sedition, was an Offence to the City: Wherefore we persuaded all the Ancients of the Town, that thou shouldst be an Aid unto us, to drive out our Foes, but thou in whom we put our Trust art become our Enemy: yea, thou hast been worse than they, for the other put Men to death privily, but thou dost it openly. Who is he that hath strengthened the Power of the Romans? Art not thou he which hath killed the Soldiers of God in the midst of the City of Jerusalem? For few have been slain without. Titus would have made Peace with us, taking pity upon us, but thou didst lett and hinder it, every day moving new Wars, and stirring new Battles.

Titus gave charge to his Soldiers, to lay no hand upon the Temple, but thou hast polluted and defiled the Temple of the Lord, shedding Blood without measure in the midst thereof. Titus went back from us upon the Holy Day of the Lord, and and ceased from fighting, saying, Go and observe your Holy Feasts in Peace: but thou unhallowest the Feasts of the Lord, and puttest out the continual Fire with innocent Blood. All these Evils which thou hast committed (thou Murderer) are imputed unto me, because I brought thee into the Town: Now therefore this Vengeance is appointed to mine age by the Lord God, and by thy Hands shall I go to my Grave with Sorrow, because I by my foolishness was an Achor in this Mischief that is wrought by thee. Albeit now, thou wicked Schimeon, in this that thou killest me, ere that mine Eyes may see the burning of the Temple, it pleaseth me very well. But what needest thou, Murderer, to put my Sons to death before my Face? Why dost thou not spare mine Age? Would God that as I shall not see the burning of the Temple, so also I might not see the Blood of my Children shed before my Face. But what shall I do, when God hath delivered me into the Hands of a most wicked Man? We that were the Ancients of Jerusalem, abhorred Jehochanan, because he murdered old Men, without all reverence, but he slew no young Men; thou destroyed Old and Young, Great and Small, without any Pity or Mercy. Jehochanan mourned for the Dead, and buried them also, but thou playest upon Instruments at their Burials, singest to the Lute and sounded the Trumpet.

Then spake he to Schimeon's Servant, who was ready with his Sword in his Hand, and an Ax to kill him, and to cut off his Head; saying, Go to now, and execute Schimeon thy Master's Commandment; Behead the Sons in the sight of their Father, and let me hear the Voice of thy Cruelty in my Sons, which which notwithstanding I forgive thee, for as I shall hear and see that against my Will; so, I dare say, thou killest them not willingly. Would God that Schimeon would suffer me to kiss my Sons, and whiles I am yet living, to embrace them ere they die. But thou, gentle Minister, in one thing shew thy Pity toward me, that when thou hast put my Sons and me to Execution, separate not our Bodies, neither lay their Corps asunder from mine, but so that my Body may lie uppermost and cover theirs, to defend them from the Fowls of the Air, lest they devour my Sons Bodies; for it may so come to pass, that they may be buried: I beseech thee also, that my Mouth and Lips, when I am dead, may touch my Sons Faces, that so I may both embrace and kiss them.

But what do I delay, or linger any longer, seeing the Enemies deny me this, to kiss them whiles we are yet alive? See thou therefore that our Bodies be not severed; and if Schimeon will not permit this, that our Bodies may be joyned in this World, yet can he not lett our Souls to be joyned; for after I shall be once dead, I doubt not but I shall see the Light of the Lord. His Sons hearing their Father’s Words, began to weep very sore with their Father, who said unto them, Alas! my Sons! Why weep ye? What avails Tears? Why do ye not rather go before me, and I will follow as I may? For what should I do now, seeing God hath given me into the Hands of a most cruel Tyrant, who spareth neither mine Age, nor Youth? But I trust we shall live together in the Light of the Lord. And although I cannot be suffered now to see you enough, yet when we shall come thither, Go ye therefore, my dear Sons, and prepare us a Place: O that I might go before you, the Lord knoweth I would do it gladly. But ye, my Sons, marvel not at this that is chanced unto us, for it is no new thing. The like hapned before this, in the time of the Chasmonamites, when as Antiochus by his Wickedness put to death the Seven Brethren, young Men, in the fight of their Mother, which was a righteous and godly Woman, who chanced to find this Mercy at the Lord's Hands, that she might kiss her Sons and embrace them, as they also kiss one another before they died. Although they were put to death by the cruelty of the uncircumcised King of the Macedonians; yet obtained they that, which is denied at this Day to us that are put to death by Schimeon, who hath the name of an Israelite, who beareth also the Covenant of our Father Abraham in his Flesh. And would to God that we might live in their Inn or Place of Rest, which albeit it will not be granted, yet we shall be their Neighbours, seeing that we also die for the Law of the Lord.

Therefore be of good Comfort (my Sons) and lament not for my sake: For I judge this my Misery easier, and not so great as the Calamity of Zedeclia, whose Sons were first killed, then his Eyes put out by the Kings of Chaldea, and he lived many Years after; we are so much the more happy, in my Mind, because we shall die together.

Then said Amittai to Schimeon's Servant which should kill him, Make speed, I pray thee, and kill me first before my Children die, then after kill them also;
also; that we may die together, for it is more expedient for us, than to see the Temple of the Lord turned into a Butchery or Slaughter-House to slay Men in.

After he cried to God, saying, I beseech thee O Lord God most High, which dwellest in the Higheft, judge this Schimeon according to his Works, reward him according to his Deservings; for thou art the God Almighty and dreadful. Let not this Destroyer die therefore among the People of thy Pasture: but that his Death may be severed from the death of other Men. Let him die a horrible and sudden Death. Let him have no time to confess his Sins, and to return himself to thee, that thou mayest receive him (for thou wert wont to receive them which turn to thee by Repentance:) for he is not worthy of Repentance, which hath spoiled and wasted many godly Things in thy Temple; besides that, hath murdered most holy Men in the same.

To the intent therefore that thy Judgments may be declared in him, I beseech thee make him to be taken Captive of his Enemies, together with his Wife, Children and Family, and all that ever love him. Neither give unto his Soul any part with the People of God; nor let his Portion be with the just Men in the Sanctuary; for he is unworthy of them, because he hath not only sinned himself, but hath caused Israel to sin. Wherefore let his Judgment and Sentence go forth from thy sight, that he may see his Wife, Children, and his whole House, led into Captivity and Bondage before his Face. Afterward let him die a strange death, such as never Man heard of; Let him be killed by most cruel cruel Men, which when they have smitten him, may after Quarter him also whilst he is yet alive, and that he may see his Children go into Bondage. Let him also be a Curse before all that shall see him. Moreover, Let him perceive that my Words and Destiny is better than his, when as I go unto Thee, in that great Light which he shall be deprived of.

After these words, Amittai said to the Servant, who was appointed to kill him: I beseech thee, Let me find so much favour at thy Hands, that when thou haft slain my Sons, thou wouldft kill me with the fame Sword, while it is yet wet with the Blood of my Sons, that our Blood may be mingled; and this may be a Recreation to my Soul. Kill me also in the fight of the Romans, that they may avenge me and my Sons upon this most cruel Schimeon; they shall be Witnesses against him, that I was not their Friend. But would God my Affairs were all in that state as they were before; for then should they perceive me to be an Enemy of Schimeon’s, and a Friend of theirs. Would God I had withstood Schimeon at the first earnestly, as I made War upon the Romans, that I might have averted his Cruelty from the People of God. When he had said all these things, he prayed before God Almighty, saying, O God which dwellest in the Higheft, thou only art most mighty and fearful, open now the Eyes of thy Judgments, consider and judge betwixt me and sedition Schimeon, whose Malice is become unmeasurable upon the People of God, that he which sheddest the Blood of them that fear thee in the midst of the Temple, may be rebuked of thee with Rebuakings according to his Works: make speedy Vengeance and prolong not, and that that for the death sake of thy Saints; for thy Judgments are Judgments of Truth.

Then Schimeon gave Commandment to Four Cut-throats of his, that three of them should kill Amit-tai's three Sons before their Father's Face, and the Fourth should kill Amittai himself, and so the Blood of the Sons was mixt with the Blood of their Father. Afterward Schimeon's Servant took the Body of A-mittai, and laid it upon the Bodies of his Sons, as his desire was, then tumbled them over the Walls. After that, Schimeon commanded that Canachus the High-Priest should be put to death, whose Body was cast to the Bodies of Amittai and his Sons.

Aristus also the Scribe, one of the noble Men of Jerusalem, was killed at the same time, and ten just Men more of his Kindred and House, because they mourned for the Death of Aristus. It happened while Schimeon was killing of those Ten, certain substantial rich Men passed by, and were wonderfully amazed when they saw the thing, saying one to another, How long will God suffer the Malice of Schimeon, and will not search out the Blood of just Men, nor revenge them? Certain seditious Persons hearing this, told it unto Schimeon, who commanded them to be apprehended and murdered the same day.

After this, there passed by Eleven of the noble Men of Jerusalem, which seeing Forty two Inno-cents to be put to death by Schimeon, they lift up their Eyes to the Heavens, and said, O Lord God of Israel, How long wilt thou hold thine Hand, and not execute thine Anger against these Transgressors of thy Will? Which when Schimeon heard of, he commanded them them to be apprehended, and killed them with his own hand.

Eleazar the Son of Anani the Priest, seeing the Malice and Wickedness of Schimeon to be great, and that he destroyed the just and godly Men of the City, and that there was no hope left, he betook himself to the Tower of Jerusalem, remained in it, and kept it with his. Jehudas also, a Captain over a thousand Men, which kept a Turret that Schimeon had made to put just and good Men in, got him upon the top of the Walls, and cried to the Romans, if peradventure they would deliver him, and the rest that were in Jerusalem. Wherefore he went about to escape with his own thousand Men that he had with him, and came towards the Romans: But the Romans trusted them not, thinking he had spoken his for Deceit, wherefore they came not to help him. Schimeon upon this killed Jehudas, and the thousand Men which he had with him, and commanded their Bodies to be tumbled over the Walls, in the sight of the Romans.

Then Schimeon cried to the Princes and Captains of the Romans, saying, Lo, these are Jehudas's Company, these would have come forth unto you, take their Carcasses to you, and revive them again if you can, or else deliver the rest which yet live, out of our hands.

Gorion the Priest, Father of Joseph the Priest, who wrote this Book to the Israelites, was at that time in Bonds and Prison, in a certain Turret, a Man of great Age; being an Hundred and thirty, and no Man could come unto him, nor from him; Joseph therefore went to the Turret where his Father was kept, to understand how he did. He beheld also the Turret afar off, if he might espy his Father, and comfort him. And as he passed by looking up to the Turret, the Seditious hurled a Stone at him, which hit him on the Head, that it overthrew him. The Seditious seeing Joseph cast out of his Chariot, determined to go down unto him; but when Titus had knowledge thereof, he sent a great Strength to help him up again, and to defend him, that his Enemies did him no harm.

The Seditious going about to take Joseph, found a Trumpet very loud, which when Joseph's Mother that was kept in Schimeon's House heard, being now 87 Years of Age, asked what was the cause of the hurly-burly; they told her, that the Seditious issued out at that shout against Joseph to take him: when she heard that, by and by the run out of the House that she was kept in, and climbed up the Walls, as lustily as though she had been a young Girl of 14 Years old, tore her Hair, and cried out, weeping, and saying before all them that were present, Is my hope then come to this? Could I ever have looked that I should have over-lived my Son, and that I should not be suffered to see him, and to bury him? I had trusted he should have buried me, and that he should have been a Help to me in mine Age; and when my whole Family by the Seditious was almost made away, and extinguished, yet I say, this shall comfort me. Now therefore what shall I do, when I have none left to comfort me, of all my Children that I bare? for between the Seditious and the Gentiles our Enemies, they have slain 18 Sons that I had; and what shall I do now from henceforth but covet Death? for I desire not to live now any longer. And how should I receive any Conolation when when I see my Son dead, and I cannot bury him? Lord! that I might die by and by, for I cannot live any longer since my Son Joseph is now dead.

She went up yet further upon the Walls, till she came to the Turret where her Husband was in Prison, and stretched out her Hands towards Heaven, crying with loud Voice, O my Son Joseph, my Son, where art thou? come and speak unto me, and Comfort me. The Seditious hearing her, laughed her to scorn, but the Romans when they heard her, and understood by Joseph that it was his Mother, they wept and lamented her case, and many of the Jews also that were in Jerusalem, but they were fain to refrain it, lest they should be perceived of Schimeon's cruel Cut-throats.

Then Joseph's Mother said to the Seditious that were with her upon the Walls, why do ye not kill me also, which bare Joseph my Son, and nourish him with these Breasts? Ye Enemies of the Lord have murdered him with other just Men; why kill ye, not me also? God be Judge betwixt me and you, who have killed my Son guiltless. The Seditious answered her, Canst not thou, if thou list, tumble down over the Wall and die? We will give thee leave. When thou hast done so, the Romans shall take thee up, and bury thee honourably, because that thou art Joseph's Mother who is their Friend. She answered, how shall I do this evil unto my self, to kill my self, and to constrain my Soul to go forth of my Body, before that God doth call it? If I should do so, I should have no hope left in the World to come, for no Body will bury them whom they perceive to have killed themselves.

These, and such like, while she reasoned wisely, the the Seditious heard, and mocked her: wherefore she wept the more abundantly, so that the Romans and some godly Men hearing her Wisdom, could not abstain from weeping.

Joseph when he heard the Voice of his Mother, got on Armour and approached to the Wall, accompanied with most valiant Romans, to defend him from the Arrows of the Jews, and spake to his Mother.

Fear not, my dear Mother, nor take any thought for me, for I have escaped the Hands of the Seditious, God hath nor suffered me to come into their hands; wherefore I have heard the Words of these wicked Counsellors that advised thee to kill thy self, and thine Answer to them, which before thou gavest them, I knew thou wouldst answer; God forbid, say I, God forbid, that Joseph's Mother and the Wife of Gorion should consent to the Counsel of the Wicked. Wherefore, (my dear Mother) be content and bear the Yoke of the Seditious patiently, and humble thy self before them. Neither strive against the Miseries and Calamities of this time, which thou canst not alter, nor remedy. For they shall perish, but we shall stand and continue.

There were certain Men of Jerusalem at that time, that came to the Gates, overcame the Ward, and got out with their Wives and Children, and so escaped to the Romans, because they could no longer abide the Famine, and the Iniquity of the Seditious. They were faithful Citizens, and of great Authority: Whom when Joseph heard of, he so prevailed, that Titus spared them, and received them to Mercy.
For Joseph bare witness, and reported of them that they were noble Men of Jerusalem; wherefore the Romans received them, and gave them Food and Sustenance, but certain of them could not brock nor take it, because of their great Hunger where- with they had been long pined; and when the Meat descended down into their Bellies, they died straight. Their little Children also, when they saw Bread, they fell upon it, and received it indeed with their Teeth, but they were not able to chew it, and died, holding the Bread between their Teeth.

Titus seeing them die when they tasted the Meat, had Pity and Compassion upon them, and was very sorry, saying unto Joseph, What shall I do for thy People, which as soon as they begin to Eat, die straightway? Joseph answered, My Lord, I remember I have seen this Experience, that they which fast long, and after would take Meat, first they must drink a little sodden Milk, or else eat of a certain Corn called Simil, sodden in Milk, wherewith they strengthen their Bowels before they take Meat; especially such as walked through Wildernesjes, whose Bowels were long empty, when they came to Places inhabited and found Meat, they were wont to use this means.

Therefore Titus commanded his Men to do as Joseph had them, whereby many of the Jews recovered, and many died of the Flux. These Jews which escaped thus out Jerusalem to the Camps of the Romans, had swallowed their Gold and Silver, and precious Stones, to hide them, lest they should be found of the Seditious.

They therefore which recovered and brooked Meat, Meat, when they would satisfy Nature, they went alone out of the Camp, and after sought their Gold and Silver, and precious Stones which were digested in their Excrements, and so did they every day. At length certain Aramites and Arabians, espying the Jews to use this Fashion, told it amongst their Fellows one to another, and made a Conspiracy to lay wait for the Jews, and whomsoever they got, they ript their Bellies, to find the Gold and other Jewels which the Jews had hid there. And by this means the Aramites and Arabians had murdered Two thousand Jews. But when Titus heard of this, he was wonderful wroth, and commanded them to be apprehended that had done this wicked Deed, and to be put to death, whose Goods were given to the Jews that remained alive. They that were put to death for this Fact, were Two Thousand Aramites and Arabians together.

After this, Titus espied the Princes and Captains to have decked their Armour with Gold and Silver, some of them also to wear golden Scepters, and some Scepters of Silver, with other Ornaments, upon their Heads; he called them together, and said unto them, Lay away this vain Oftentation, these things are they that provoked the Aramites and Arabians to work this Wickedness, against these poor miserable Jews which fled forth unto us, that they might live under our Protection. The Captains therefore and Princes of the Romans hearing Titus's Commandment, were obedient, and straight laid away from them those Ornaments of Gold and Silver. Titus also gave Commandment, that the rest of the Arabians and the Aramites should be banished the Camp, and that no Man hereafter should should commit any such heinous Deed against the Jews. Notwithstanding, when as any Aramite or Arabian could get any Jew far out of the Camp that no Man might see it, he killed him.

Of the Romans in the Camp, no Man either did or said any evil unto the Jews, save certain ungodly Ruffians, which had learned of the Aramites and Arabians those evil and wicked Pranks: for they also, when they chanced to meet with any Jew out of the Camp, if there were no Man by, they killed him, and took away his Gold and Silver that lay hid in his Bowels.

When this came to Titus's Ear, he commanded to make Proclamation in this wise:

Hosoeuer he be that hath seen, heard, or known any thing of this horrible Deed, which is committed of certain Romans upon the Jews, or whosoever hath done any such thing himself, let him come and make relation unto Titus; which, if he do, the Matter shall be forgiven him, if not, he shall bear the Burthen of his own Wickedness, and stand at his peril, if any thing be proved against him hereafter.

Therefore certain Romans who where conscious to themselves that they had committed the Deed, and being afraid of Titus, reasoned with themselves thus: If we do not confess unto him the truth, he will, by his Wisdom, search out those Offenders, and punish them to death: Wherefore trusting unto Titus's words of the Proclamation, they came all whosoever had either done it himself, or known others to do it; and declared it to Titus, saying, This have I done, This have I known, This was I
The Wars of the Jews.

accessary unto, and have not hitherto made thee privy thereunto. There were of them in number 320 Men, that made this Confession: All those Titus commanded to be cast into hot Ovens, and to be burned. This done, the Jews were more safe ever after in the Romans Camp without any Jeopardy, no Man hurting them either in word or deed; yea, if any Roman found a Jew abroad wandering, he conducted him gently and peaceably into the Camp.

There was a certain Scribe of Jerusalem at that time, a faithful Man, whose Name was Menachem, Son of Seruk the Scribe, whose Ancestours had served Esdras the Scribe of worthy Memory, in Babylon; and being a Keeper of the East-Gate which was in Jerusalem, upon that side towards the Brook Kidron, noted the Number of the Dead that were carried forth to burying by that Gate, and found they came to 115 thousand eight hundred and eight Persons, which were all of the Nobles and Gentlemen, or at least of the substantialleaf Men of the Jews.

Titus upon a time (Joseph being present) asked the question of those Princes of the Jews which were fled unto him, saying, I charge you upon your Fidelity, to shew me how many Jews be dead in the Town, since the time I besieged it to this day. They gave him the number therefore, every Man as far as they knew, of the Dead that were carried forth at all the Gates to be buried, and the Sum amounted to 700575, besides them that every where lay dead in their Houses and Streets; and besides them also that were slain in the Temple, and they that lay here and there unburied: Which when when Titus heard, he marvelled greatly, and said, It is well known to the Lord God of Heaven, that I am not the Cause of these Evils, for I desired to be at Peace with them oftner than once, but the Seditious evermore would have nothing but War, War.

C H A P. III.

At that time the Hunger began to wax very great in the Town amongst the Seditious, who never lack'd before, for they took it always from other Men by force, till now at length they were distressed with Hunger themselves; so that after they had eaten up all their Horses, they eat also their Dung, and the Leather of the Chariots; neither were there left any green Boughs on the Trees, nor any Herbs, that the Seditious might get to eat.

For the Romans had hew'd down all the Trees, and cut down all the Bushes from about Jerusalem, by the space of thirteen Miles, so that the whole Field and Territory of Jerusalem was spoiled, which heretofore was replenished with marvelously goodly Gardens, and most pleasant Paradises.

After that the Romans made up another Iron Ram, very terrible, this they bended against the Walls, to see if there were any Soldiers left in the Town, so stout as they were in times past: When the Captains of the Seditious saw that, they issued out with their Companies against the Romans, and slew very many of them in that Skirmish. Wherefore Titus said, It is not wisdom to fight with them any more, but rather with the Rams to shake and batter batter the Wall, for they have no more but this Wall left, and so we may bring our whole Army at once upon them, and subdue the Seditious.

This Counsel of Titus was liked of all the Princes and People. The Captains of the Seditious mistrusting what the Romans intended, that they would be occupied hereafter in battering the Wall, began to build a Countermure within, over-against the place where the Romans wrought with their Ram, which was in the Plain by the Tomb of Jehochanan the High-Priest, for there was none other place besides, that they might approach unto with their Rams; and there the Rams had made two Breaches in the two other Walls before.

The Seditious made this Countermure, because they were not able to burn the Iron Ram as they had done before, being now almost famished, and so pin'd away, that they could scarce stand upon their Legs. For if they had been so lusty as they were before, and able to set the Engines on fire, the Romans were never able to win the Town, but should have been compelled to leave the Assault, as they were constrained to give over Skirmishing and Fighting. On a certain time when the Romans fled, the Seditious pursuing and killing many of them, said, The Romans will be weary, leave off their Siege, and go their ways, that we may dwell at liberty, and turn to the Lord our God. And when they returned at this time (or at any other time) prosperously into the Town, they oppressed the People more cruelly, exacting Foot of them, and saying, Give us Meat; if ye will not, we will eat your Flesh, and your Sons. But the Romans took Courage to themselves to fight stoutly, and said one to another,
Let us stick to it hard, and be valiant in our Fights; it shall be a shame for us to flee from these feeble and hunger-starved Jews, which are more like dead Images, than living Persons. Therefore they began most earnestly to set upon the Walls, and to make a Battery; suddenly they beat down a great part of that inner Wall, which the Jews had newly erected, and gave a great Shout, saying, Jerusalem is won, we have gotten the Town. But when they looked a little further, they saw another Fort raised over against the Breach: Wherefore the Jews throw the Town gave also a great Shout, and sounded their Trumpets, rejoicing that they had another new Countermure for that which was battered down. The fame was in Captain Jehochanan's Ward. The Romans seeing the Countermure, and hearing the Jews make such Triumphs in the Town, were much astonished, all their Joy was dashed and turned into Damps, so that they could not tell what they should do with that stubborn People of Jerusalem, which had done them such damages. The Romans set upon the Town again another way, whom Titus willed to remove the Engine, and to bend it to the new Wall, whiles it was yet green and unsettled, saying, Let us batter it, and we shall see it fall by and by, and then shall we enter the Town. The Roman Captains followed not Titus's Counsel, but scaled the Walls which they had battered. The Jews therefore defending the Countermure, fought with the Romans within the Breach, repulsed them from the Wall and the Town, and so having abated much the strength of the Romans, returned to their Quarters.

Then said some of the Romans, We will never be
the Wars of the Jews.

seige this Town any longer, for we shall not be able to get it while we live. And therefore let us break up and depart, before we be all destroyed with this Siege; for, except we do so, we shall be consumed therein. Titus seeing his Soldiers to make so hard a matter of the winning of the Town, called them all together, and said unto them, Tell me now, ye Roman Captains, do ye not know that all War, and other Business whatsoever they be, are more hard and require greater diligence in the end than in the beginning? In which whoso travel, if they faint in the end, do they not labour in vain? Even as your labour shall be in vain, if ye give over the Siege now.

Consider a Ship, when it hath compassed the whole Sea, and is now ready to arrive at the Shoar, being troubled with a Tempest, if the Mariners should then be negligent, the Ship may be easily lost, and all they which are in it perish, the Mariners disappointed of their purpose, in that they shall not attain to the place which they coveted to come to.

Likewise Builders, if they finish not their Work, but leave off afore they make an end, is not all their labour lost and spent in vain? Husbandmen also, if they Till their Ground and then Sow it with Seed, shall they not lose their Pains, unless they will also Mow it?

In like manner you have fought very long against the City, many valiant Captains and worthy Men have been slain, and now you may see the strongest Walls of the Town are broken and made equal with the Earth, the People your Enemies consumed with Hunger, Pestilence and Sword, what shall it then avail you all that ever you have done, if you slack your Diligence; and will not finish the Work of the Siege? Have you not then employed your Labour in vain?
And why should this new Wall so dismay you? Yea, why do you not prepare your selves to beat down this new Wall, which yet is slenderer than the other Three that ye have cast down? If so be ye would determine to leave off the Siege, had it not been better for you to have done it at the beginning, whiles your Army was yet whole? Now, when as you are few, and your most valiant Soldiers are slain, why do you not rather chuse to die than to live?

Did you not once enter this Town in the time of Nero Caesar, and defend the honour of his Name? Now therefore when Vespasian my Father reigneth, who is not only of greater Power than Nero, but also more gentle toward you than ever was Nero, if you should abate and slack your endeavour and diligence, it should be your great Shame and Reproach.

Why take ye not Example of these Jews valiantness, whom now already Sword, Pestilence and Famine hath wasted, so that they have no Hope left; nevertheless they fight still, and never give over. Do not you see every Day how some of them issue out of their Town, and boldly assault you, not without Jeopardy of their Lives, insomuch, that oftentime they die for it? Which things they do for none other cause, than to get them Praiè and Renown for their great Prowess.

When Titus had well debated these and such like things in the Ears of his Soldiers, a certain valiant Man named Sabianus, said unto his Fellows, Whoso dare go to assault these Jews, let him come hither to me, that we may fulfil the Command of Caesar's Son our Lord and Captain. And forthwith he took his Target, and his drawn Sword in his Hand, made toward the Town with eleven tall Fellows following him, whose valiantness and courage Titus wondered at greatly.
The Jews kept their Ward upon that part of the Wall, where the Romans had a Repulse of late: So when they saw Sabianus and his Company draw fast toward them, they began to assail them with Stones and Arrows, but Sabianus setting light at them, charged home upon the Jews. Shortly one of the Jews met with him, and gave him such a Blow, that he felled him to the Ground; yet he got up again, and fought for all that, manfully; and as one that had rather leave his Life, than the reputation of his Valour, he did fight till another Israelite came and slew him outright. Three also of his Fellows were killed fighting valiantly in that place, the other eight returned to the Camp so sore wounded, that they died the next day every one. Further, other Romans seeing Sabianus's act, and studying to do the like, the next Night they took counsel about Twenty of them, and agreed to assault the Town.

This their Enterprize, when they declared to the Standard-bearer of Titus, he and many other of the Romans went with them. They all scaling together, and clambering up the Breaches, got up upon the Wall, sounding a Trumpet, and gave a great Shout. The Jews being at their Rest, as Men oppressed with Hunger and Weariness, and hearing this Alarm and Shout of the Romans, was wonderfully amazed, not knowing what the Matter was, or how they should defend themselves. Titus also heard the Shout, and when he had enquired the Matter, he chose out certain valiant Men, and drew towards the Breaches with them. In the mean season, the day was broken, and the Jews rising from their Sleep, espied Titus upon the Walls, and marvelled thereat greatly. The Romans therefore gathering toward Titus, came very thick into the Town, some by the Breaches of the Wall, and other some through the Vault, whereby the Jews were wont now and then to make Irruptions, and to recover themselves within the Town again. The Jews set themselves in Array against the Romans in the very Entry of the Temple: upon whom the Romans ran with their drawn Swords; for they had no other Armour, nor the Jews neither, being hastily taken at such a sudden. The Battel waxed very hard, and wonderful vehement on both Parties; the like was never seen in Jerusalem, nor heard of, in any time; for every Man clave hard to his next Fellow, and no Man could flee on any side. Wherefore the Battel waxt strong, with Clamours and Shouts on both Parties, now the joyful Shout of the Vanquishers, now the Wailings on the other side of them that were put to the worse. The Romans encouraged and exhorted one another to fight, saying, This is the day which we have long look'd for. The Jews again took Heart unto them, saying, It boots not to flee hence, but, for the Glory of the Lord and his Temple, let us die manfully, as Necessity constraineth us, and so doing, we shall be counted for Sacrifices and Offerings. Which earnestness on both sides, filled the Entry of the Court of the Lord with Blood, that it stood like unto a Pool or Pond. And that Fight continued from the Morning till that time four days.

Then a certain Soldier of Titus's, whose Name was Golinus, a valiant Man, as was ever amongst all the Company of Kurtus, seeing the Jews prevail, and to have the upper-hand of the Romans, which now had left off fighting, and fled, the Jews pursu-pursuing them, in a rage he ran against them, and met them at the Wall which Herod built, called Antiochia, drove them back, and made them to take the Entrance of the Temple again, where pressing into the Forces of the Jews, he was wounded of a certain Jew. And when he perceived himself wounded, he would have stept back, but stumbled at a Stone in the Pavement of the Court of the Temple, and fell down, where he fought yet still, till a certain Jew killed him out-right. He fought indeed very boldly and valiantly, but unwarily; for he considered not his Ground wherein he had to do with the Jews.

Titus waiting for Golinus's return, and hearing him to be slain, would have gone himself to rescue the rest of his that were with him; but his Men would not suffer him, fearing, lest he himself should be slain. The Jews therefore got the upper-hand that day, and slew very many Romans in that Battel, spoiling them also (which were killed of their Armour.

These were the Names of the Jews that made the Skirmish: Of the Company of Captain Jehocheman, Elasa, and Iptach; of Schimeon's Company, Malthiab and Jacob, a Prince of the Edomites; and Arsimon and Jehuda of the Company of Eleazar the Son of Anani. These with their Companies made this slaughter of the Romans, in the Entrance of the Temple, and drove them back to Antiochia, where they kept them up that they could not get out. Wherefore when Titus perceived that the Antiochia was in the Romans way, and hindred them, he caused it to be razed and pulled down to the Ground. These things was done upon the fifth day of May, the third Month, upon the Even of the solemn Festival day of Weeks, which otherwise is called Pentecost, and that was the Fourteenth Month from the beginning of Titus's Siege against this City.

Shortly after, upon the third day of the Feast of Weeks, the Jews, as many as were at Jerusalem, kept Holy-days, and celebrated the Feast. Titus taking with him Joseph, the Son of Gorion, went into the House of the Sanctuary, where the Seditious and Soldiers of the Jews were gathered together; and called unto Jebochanan and the rest of the Captains of the Seditious, to whom he spake by the means of Joseph, being his Interpreter, in this wise:

What hath this Temple offended thee (thou Seditious Jebochanan?) Why hast thou brought upon it this great Evil and Mischief? If so be thou trust so much to thy strength, come forth to us with thy Men into the Fields, and we shall fight with thee thy fill. Is not this your solemn Festival Day: Why then will ye fight in the place where ye should offer your Sacrifice? Ye pollute and defile the Sanctuary of your God and his Name, and we spare it, knowing it is the House of God: And the only Cause why we make War upon you, is your stubborn stiff neckedness, that ye will not submit your selves to us, whom God hath given the Dominion unto, whose Will ye labour in vain to disappoint. Either therefore, if ye will fight no more, humble your selves under our Subjection, that ye may save your lives, or else, if ye be determined still desperately to fight with us, then get you forth from hence, and let us go into the Fields there to set our Battles in Array. Why will ye defile your Sanctuary, and hinder the worshipping of your God?

Much more besides this, spake Titus, partly blaming their stubbornness, in that they had defiled their Temple, and yet ceased not to pollute it more.
more and more, partly with fair words, and gentleness exhorting them to yield, admonishing them not to resist so mighty an Army, when as they could not do it without danger of utter destruction.

These and many other things Joseph expressed in Hebrew to the People, as Titus willed him, but the Jews answered never a word; for Jehochanan had given charge that no Man should speak.

Then Captain Jehochanan answered Titus himself, saying, We can offer no kind of Sacrifice more acceptable to God, than to devote, hazard, and abandon our own Bodies and Blood for his Name's sake: wherefore we will die free Men in this our Town, and will never come in Bondage to serve you.

Titus made him Answer by Joseph, saying, This your City I grant, is a Holy City, and your Temple is most Holy, which no Man doth deny: but ye have grievously sinned, in that ye have polluted the Temple of the Lord your God, by shedding in it innocent Blood of Saints, and the Priests of God, with other most godly and holy Men.

By what reason can ye then say, that ye shall be accepted for Sacrifices and Offerings before God? yea, rather, God abhorreth and detesteth you utterly; when as he requireth in his Sacrifices, that they should have no default nor spot: but ye are all besotted, so that no sound place is left in you.

For tell me (I pray you) if there be any more abominable Spot in Man than Sin, when he transgresseth the Law of God, as you have done; Neither is there any Wisdom or Intelligence in you. For wise Men would wisely bear with the Calamities of of times, and know the Courses of things. How then are ye so foolish to say that ye are an acceptable and well-pleasing Sacrifice to God, when as ye do resist the Will of God so proudly? But thou Jehochnanan, and the rest of the seditious Captains that are with thee, Tell me, art thou not a mortal Man, subject unto the griefs and vexations of this Life, and Worms-Meats as we be? Should he not displease thee, that should take away and violate a Table or such like thing, prepared to the honour of thee? and wouldst thou take it in good part, and hold him excused that should do so unto thee? Why then hast thou taken away the Sacrifices of thy God out of his Temple, and hast stuffed it with innumerable dead Bodies? Who can see or hear this, and abstain from weeping, when we shall know so many Israelites to have suffered death by thee, and Schimeon and Eleazar thy Fellows? Neither canst thou yet apply thy Mind to cease and leave off thy Malice, and yet nevertheless persuadest thy self, that God is with thee, and that thou and thy Fellows are an acceptable and well-pleasing Sacrifice unto God, nothing perceiving that your Sins separate you, and keep you asunder more strongly than any brazen Wall.

It is true, I confess, that it becometh every valiant Man to stand stoutly in the defence of his People, City and Country. For it is better to die valiantly, than to come into the Subjection of his Enemies that go about to pluck him from his Religion, and drive him out of his Country. But I came not hither for that intent, to draw you from your Religion, nor to banish you out of the Land, or else to destroy it and your Cities: But this is the Cause of my coming hither, to offer you Peace, and to make a League with with you, that you should take upon you our Yoke, and be our Subjects as ye were before. Where did you ever hear of a People in all the World, that hath shewed themselves so Merciful and Gentle, both towards others, and towards you, as we have done?

Hannibal, the Captain of the Carthaginians, after he had wasted our Country, and at length was taken by us, was he not had in great Honour and Reputation of us, and with such civility handled, that we made him King of his People? And so dealt we with Antiochus the Macedonian, and other Kings that we took Prisoners. Ye brag that ye keep the Vigils and Feasts of your God: Why then follow ye not the Example of Jechoniah your King? who to save the Temple of your God from Destruction, and left your People also should be led away into Bondage, or be destroyed with the Sword, yielded himself and his House into the Hands of the King of the Chaldees. Why spare you not your own Lives, your City and your Sanctuary.

Now therefore hearken unto me, and I will make a League with you before the God of this House, who shall be a Witness betwixt me and you; by whom I swear that I will never break this League, neither do any Harm, nor spoil your Goods, nor lead you away Captive, nor yet constitute any Ruler over you but a Jew of your own Nation; even Joseph the Priest which is with me, shall be your Prince, if you think it good; and all the faithful Men also which are with me, shall return Home again, ye shall inhabit your own Land, ye shall have the use of the Fruits thereof with Peace and Quietness; without any corruption or alteration of the Service of your God; wherefore Credit me and make a League with me. And that you may trust me the better, ye shall have Pledges, Joseph.
Joseph a Noble Man of your own Country, and other Princes and Noble Men of the Romans. Come forth therefore, and treat a Peace with us, bow your Shoulders, and humble your Necks, to serve us like as all other Nations do, and as you have your selves in the time of Nero Caesar, that ye may live and not be destroyed, keeping your Religion safe and sincere.

Joseph the Priest hearing the words of Titus and his Clemency, in that he was minded to spare the Jews, burst out aloud and wept in the Presence of the Captains, and of the Seditious, very bitterly: but they nothing regarded it.

Joseph therefore seeing that Titus could do nothing with the Seditious, said unto their Princes, I marvel nothing that this City tends to Destruction and Desolation, for I know the end of it is at hand. But this is it that I marvel most, that ye have read in the Book of Daniel and understand it not, which is now fulfilled in all Points, and yet never a one of you doth mark it. The continual Sacrifice is already ceased a good while ago, the anointed Priest is cut away and put down. These things, tho' they be most manifest, yet your Hearts cannot believe them.

And many other Words spake Joseph, full of Admonition and Consolation, but the Jews refused to hear him. When he had made an end therefore, and the Seditious had so hardened their Necks, Titus turned him, and departed out of Jerusalem, laying, Let us go hence, lest their sins destroy us. Wherefore he pitched his Tents without the City, in the same place where he encamped at first, for he was afraid both for himself and his Army, lest they should be circumvented and closed in, and slain cruelly in so great a City as that was.
Certain of the Priests of that time, and of the Nobles of the Town, with other godly Men, did wisely provide for themselves, and came forth to Titus, submitting themselves to his Mercy, and were received of him peaceably, with great Honour; whom Titus commanded to be conducted into the Land of Goshen, where in times past, the Israelites dwelt in the days of Jacob their Father, and Joseph Lord of Egypt.

Thither sent he them, and gave it them in Possession, to them and to their Heirs for ever after; commanding a Company of the Chaldees safely to conduct them, till they came to the Land of Goshen.

Titus directed his Letter also to the Roman President which was set over Egypt, to take pity of the Jews that he had placed in the Land of Goshen, to sustain and succour them, and to see that no Roman nor other should do them harm, or annoy them by any manner of means. Many other also of the Jews coveted to go forth of Jerusalem, but they were disappointed by the Seditious, that they could not do as they intended. And who can tell whether they were entangled with their own sins, and destined to Destruction with their Seditious Brethren, whereas their Hands also were polluted with the Cruelty and Iniquity of the Seditious? Wherefore the Seditious closed up all the Walls about the Temple, that none of the Jews which were in Jerusalem might get out to Titus.

When Titus knew that many of the Jews were desirous to flee unto him, and could not, because of the Seditious, he went again to the Place where he was before, and Joseph with him; Whom when the the People saw to be there with Titus, they fell a weeping, and said unto him, We acknowledge our Sins, and the Transgression of our Fathers, we have swerved out of the Way against the Lord our God;
for we see now the Mercy and Gentleness of Titus, the Son of Cæsar, and that he taketh Pity upon us;
but what can we do, when it is not in our Power to flee unto him, because of the Cruelty of the Seditious? The Seditious hearing them talking with Joseph in the Presence of Titus, and that they spake Reverently of him, and honoured his Father, calling him Lord, they ran upon them with their drawn Swords to kill them. Then cried they unto Titus;
Dear Lord and Master, rescue us: The Romans therefore made speed to deliver 'em out of the Hands of the Seditious: So rose there a Fray in the midst of the Temple, between the Romans and the Jews;
the Romans fled into the Place call'd Sanctum Sancto-rum, which was the Holiest of all, and the Jews followed after, and slew them even there. Titus standing without, cry'd unto Jehochanan, and said unto him, Hearest thou Jehochanan? Is not thy Wickedness yet great enough? Wilt thou never make an end of Mischief? Where is the Honour of thy God? Is it not written in the Law of thy God, of the Sanctum Sanctorum, that no Stranger ought to come at it, but only the High-Priest, and that but once a Year, because it is the Holiest of all. And now how darest thou be so bold to kill those that are escaped unto it? And how dare you shed the Blood of the Uncircumcised therein, whom ye abhor, and yet mix their Blood with yours?
The Lord your God is my Witness, that I would not have this House destroy'd, but your own wicked Works and your own Hands to pull it down. And would God you would receive your Peace, which if it were once done, we would honour this House of the Sanctuary and Temple of the Lord: Yea, we would depart away from you. But your Hearts are hardned like Iron, and your Necks and Foreheads are become obstinate as Brass, to your own undoing. For ye shall carry your own Sins, and die in the Land of the Romans; I and my Father's House are innocent and guiltless of your Death, as the Lord and his Temple, in whose Presence we stand, shall bear us witness this day.

But when he saw that none of the Seditious gave any regard to his Words, he chose out of the Romans thirty thousand valiant fighting Men, and gave them Commandment to take and occupy the Entry of the Temple, which is a Holy Court, and determined to go with them himself; but his Nobles would not suffer him, but willed him to remain upon a high Place where he might behold his Soldiers fight; and when they see thee afar off, their Hearts shall be comforted, and they shall fight according as thou wilt with them: But come not at the Entry of the Temple thy self, lest thou be destroyed amongst others.

Titus followed the Counsel of his Captains, and went not out at that time with his Men to the Battle. He made Chief Captains of that Host of Thirty thousand, one Karilus and Restius, two great Commanders, who had Order to set upon the Jews that Night, when they should be asleep, with wariness.

The Romans therefore doing after his Commandment set upon the Jews, but the Jews having Intelligence of the Matter, kept diligent Watch, and withstood the Romans all the Night. But the Romans were not hafty to fight in the Dark, fearing left it might might turn to their own Harm. As soon therefore as it was day, the Jews divided themselves, and bestowed their Companies at the Gates of the Entrance, and fought like Men.

Karilus and Rostius beset the Temple round about; that not one of the Jews might escape out, and so the Battle encreased between them for the space of seven days; sometimes the Romans getting the upper-hand of the Jews, driving them within the Entrance: sometimes the Jews, encouraging themselves, made the Romans retire, and pursued them to the Walls of the Antochia: In this manner fought they these seven Days.

After the Romans turned back from the Jews, and would not fight hand to hand with them any more. Then Titus commanded the Wall of the Antochia to be pulled down further, that there might be place for all his Host to enter.

The Famine in the mean Season grew more grievous, so that no Food was left. For the Jews began now to issue out, and steal Horses, Asses, and other Beasts, whatsoever they could catch, even out of the Romans Camp, that they might dress them some Meat, and sustain their Lives; which they doing oftentimes, at length the Romans perceived it, and were wonderfully displeased at the Matter, wherefore they set Watch and Ward round about the Camp, left by the deceit of the Jews, they should be spoiled of their Cattle. So after that the Jews could steal no more thence.

Afterward notwithstanding, they armed themselves, and issued out at the East-Gate, and brake the Wall that Titus had raised for his own safety, left the Jews should issue out upon a sudden, and come come upon him at unawares. A sort of tall Fellows, therefore of the Youth of the Jews, issued out at the Breaches of the Wall, and got up quickly to the Mount Olivet, where he found Horses, Mules, Asses, and much other Cattel; and slaying their Keepers, they drove them before them with great Shouts into the Town. The Romans perceiving it, pursuèd them. Wherefore the young Men divided themselves into Two Bands; the one to drive the Booty, and the other to resist the Romans. So there was a fore Fight between them, but the Jews got the upper hand, and went their ways clear with the Prey toward Jerusalem.

For the Jews came forth, constrained by the necessity of Hunger, and fought for their living: The Romans had no cause to fight, save only for Shame, to see their Cattel driven away before their Eyes; for otherwise they put not their Lives in Jeopardy to fight unto death, as the Jews did, yet there were many of the Romans slain in that Fight.

The Jews, while the Romans pursuèd them in vain, got into the Town with their Spoil and Prey, and straightway turned upon the Romans and drove them back, pursuèing them again till they came almost to Titus's Camp; which when the other Romans saw, they issued forth to the Rescue of their Fellows, and pursuèd those young Men, either to kill them, or take them, albeit they escaped to the Town without any Harm, save that they took a Boy, and brought him unto Titus. He that took this Lad was called Pornus.

So the Romans prevailed against the Jews at that time; and for a certain Token of the Victory, they had this young Jew Prisoner. Pornus that took him him, was had in great estimation for that A&; of Titus and all the Romans.

Titus appareled the Boy, and committed him to Joseph to keep. This Boy had a Brother amongst them that escaped into the Town, a vile Personage, evil-favoured, and of a low stature, his Name was Jonathan. He seeing his Brother taken Prisoner, cometh forth of the Tomb of Jochanan the High-Priest over-against the Romans, and cried unto Titus, and to all the Army, saying, If there be ever a Man among you, let him come forth unto me, here will I abide him, and fight with him upon this Ground: And ye shall know this day, whether the Romans or the Jews be the better Men.

The Romans despised him, yet durst they not meddle with him, but said, If we kill him, we shall never be counted the better Men for such an A&, and if he should kill any of us, it should be a great dishonour to be slain of a wretched Captive. Jonathan said to the Romans, How much is the Manhood of the Romans to be regarded in our Eyes? Have not you been slain and put to flight by us? What were you then, if Bands and Companies of the Gentiles came not every day to aid you? If they had not refreshed you, we had long ago eaten you up. We have destroyed our selves one another with Civil Wars, so that we are but few left: but what are you? Who is so hardy of the best of you all, to come and declare his strength and to fight with me? I am one of the Meanest, and Outcasts of the Jews: Pick you out of the chiefest and valiantest Man among you all, and you shall know by and by, whether part is more Valiant. When Jonathan had spoken thus proudly, there came forth one of the most valiant Soldiers of the Romans, whose Name was Pornus, the fame that had taken the Brother of this Jonathan, and brought him to Titus; he came no sooner at Jonathan, but he was killed of him straightway, leaving behind him a double and differing Inheritance to Jonathan, and the Romans; to Jonathan a Fame of Fortitude and Valiantness, to the Romans Shame and Reproach.

When Jonathan had slain the Roman, the Jews changed his Name, and called him Jehonathan, by an honourable Name, and gave him a Scepter of Dominion in his Hand: But Jehonathan when he had gotten the Victory, gave not the Power to God, but ascribed it to his own Prowess, and became very proud; withal, he was not content with one Victory, but would yet provoke the Romans, railing at them, and calling for another valiant Champion to be sent him, that I may kill him (said he) and declare my Force upon him; and even as he said so, one of the Romans, whose Name was Pornan, struck him through with an Arrow at unawares and killed him; by whose Example ye may perceive, It is every Man's part chiefly for to take heed that when they overcome their Enemies, they rejoice not overmuch, nor wax proud for the matter; for, who knoweth what end they shall have themselves?

These things done, the Jews seeing the Walls of the Temple, and three Walls that compassed the Town, to be razed and pulled down, knowing also that they had no help left, nor any thing to trust unto, they consulted what was best to be done. There was a great House joined unto the Side of the Temple that King Solomon had builded, of a great height, whose Walls also the Kings of the Second Temple had raised on height, and had decked it with Timber of Firr, and Cedar-Trees. The Jews went and anointed every where where the Cedar Timber of the House with Brimstone and Pitch abundantly: So when the Romans came again to the Temple to assault the Jews, and pursued them unto that Palace, they entred the Palace after the Jews, who went out again another way, and some climbed up to the Battlements of the House, others set up Ladders to scale it: Then rejoiced they wonderfully, saying, The Palace is taken, now have the Jews no place left to flee unto for Refuge. Thus when the Romans had gotten the Palace, and the House was full of them, a certain Jew, a young Man, vowing himself desperately to die, went and shut up the Palace, and set fire on the Gates anoint-ed before with Brimstone and Pitch, and straightway the side Wall of the House, and the whole Building began to be on a light fire, so that the Romans had no way to escape, because the Fire compassed the House on every side.

The Jews also stood in harness round about the House, left any of the Romans should escape. Wherefore so many of the Romans as entred into the House, were destroyed with the Fire, which was Twenty two thousand Men of War. Titus hearing the Cry of the Romans that perish'd in the Fire, made speed with all his Men to come and rescue them, but could not deliver them out of the Fire, it burnt so vehemently; wherefore Titus and his Men wept bitterly. The Romans that were above upon the House, when they saw their Master Titus weep, and the Fire to be between them, that neither could come to one another, they cast themselves down head-headlong from the Battlements of the House, which was very high, and died, saying, We will die in Titus's presence, to get us a Name thereby.

The Jews kept the Gates of the Palace, and if they perceived any Man go about to escape out of the Fire, or to come down from the Battlements, them they killed with their Swords.

In that Fire was a certain great Commander, of the Stock of Kings, whose Name was Longinus, to whom the Jews cried, and flouted him, saying, Come hither unto us, that thou mayest save thy Life, and not be destroyed: But he durst not go out at the Gate, fearing the Jews would kill him. Wherefore he drew out his Sword, and thrust himself thorough before their Faces.

Another great Commander also was in that Fire, whose Name was Artorius, who looking forth from the top of the House, saw one of his dear Friends by Titus, which was called Lucius, to whom Artorius called, saying, My dear Friend Lucius, get on thy Armour, and come hither that I may leap down upon thee, and thou mayest receive me. If I die, I make thee my Heir; if thou die, thy Children shall inherit my Goods. Wherefore Lucius ran and held his Lap open at the House-side, and Artorius leapt down, and light upon him with such weight, that they both died therewith. Titus commanded the Covenant that they made before their Death, to be written on a Sword with Blood, and their Friendship to be noted in the Chronicles of the Romans, that it might be an Example to all Men to learn true Friendship by: At that time therefore the Jews revenged themselves meetly well upon the Romans. The Fire burnt till it came to
to the Chiskijahu King of Jehuda, and had almost taken the Temple of the Lord; which the Romans seeing, fled out of the Town, and got them to their Tents, a great part of them being destroyed by the Cruelty of the Jews, so that few of them remained. The rest therefore lay still in their Siege round about the Town, saying, We shall not be able to win the Town by the Sword, but rather we must be fain to drive them to yield by Famine, wherefore they compassed it on every side; in the Town was now no Victuals left.

There was a certain rich Woman at Jerusalem, of a Noble House also, whose Name was Miriam. Her Dwelling was beyond Jordan; but when she perceived the Wars to grow more and more in the Time of Vespasian, she came up with her Neighbours to Jerusalem, bringing with her not only her Men-Servants and Women-Servants, and all her Family, but also her Goods and Riches, which were very great.

When the Hunger was grievous at Jerusalem, and the Seditious went from House to House to seek Meat, they came also to this Woman's House, and took away from her by force all that ever she had, and left her nothing remaining. By this means she was oppress'd with very great Hunger, so that she wished her self out of the World, but her time was not yet come to die: Wherefore that she might slack her Hunger, and sustain her self, she began to scrape in the Chaff and Duff for Beasts Dung, but could find none. She had one Son, and when she saw the Famine wax greater and greater upon her, she laid aside all Woman-hood and Mercy, and took upon her an horrible Cruelty: For when she heard her Boy weep, and ask for Meat, which she had had not to give him, she said unto him, What shall I do my Son? For the Wrath of God hath environed the whole City, in every corner thereof the Famine reigneth: Without the City the Sword killeth up all, within we stand in fear of the Seditious; our Enemies prevail without, in the Town are Fires, Burnings, and Ruines of Houses, Famine, Pestilence, Spoiling and Destroying, so that I cannot feed thee my Son. Now therefore my Son, if I should die for Hunger, to whom should I leave thee being yet a Child? I hoped once that when thou shouldest come to Man's Estate, thou shouldest have sustained mine Age with Meat, Drink, and Cloth, and after, when I should die, to bury me honourably, like as I was minded to bury thee if thou should'st have died before me. But now, my Son, thou art as good as dead already; for I have no Meat to bring thee up withal, because of this great Famine, and cruelty of the Enemies, both within and without: If thou shouldest die now amongst others, thou shouldest have no good nor honourable Tomb, as I would wish thee; wherefore I have thought good to chuse thee a Sepulchre, even mine own Body, left thou shouldest die, and Dogs eat thee in the Streets; I will therefore be thy Grave, and thou shalt be my Food; and for that, that if thou hadst lived and grown to Man's Estate, thou oughtest, by right, to have nourished me, and fed me with thy Flesh, and with it sustain mine Age, before that Famine devour thee, and thy Body be consumed, render unto thy Mother that which she gave unto thee; for thou camest of her, and thou shalt return into her. For I will bring thee unto the self-same Shop, in the which the Breath or Life Life was breathed into thy Nostrils, forasmuch as thou art my well-beloved Son, whom I have loved always with all my Strength: Be therefore Meat for thy Mother, and Ignominy and Reproach to the Seditious, that by Violence have taken away our Food. Wherefore, my Son, hear my Voice, and sustain my Soul and my Life, and go to the end that is determined for thee by my Hands, thy Lot be in the Garden of Eden and Paradise, be thou Meat for me, and Rebuke and Shame to the Seditious, that they may be compelled to say, Lo a Woman hath killed her Son, and hath eaten him.

So when she had thus spoken to her Son, she took the Child, and turning her Face away left she should see him dye, she kill'd him with a Sword, and after cut his Body into certain Pieces, whereof some she roasted, some she sod; and when she had eaten of them, she laid up the rest to keep.

The favour of the Flesh roasted, when it came out into the Streets to the People, they said one to another, See! here is the smell of Roast-Meat. Which thing came to the Knowledge of the Seditious at length, who went into the House of the Woman, and spake roughly unto her, Why shouldst thou have Meat to live with, and we die for Hunger? The Woman made them answer, and said unto them, Be not displeased, I beseech you, with your Handmaid for this, for you shall see I have reserved part for you. Sit you down therefore, and I will bring it you, that ye may Taste thereof, for it is very good Meat. And by and by she covered the Table, and set before them part of the Child's Flesh, saying, Eat I pray you, here is a Child's Hand, see here is his Foot and other parts, and never report that it it is another Woman's Child, but my own only Son, that ye knew with me; him I bare, and also have eaten part, part I have kept for you. When she had spoken, she burst out and wept, saying, Oh my Son, my Son, how sweet wast thou to me whilst thou yet lived, and now at thy death also thou art sweeter to me than Honey! For thou hast not only fed me in this most grievous Famine, but hast defended me from the Wrath of the Seditious, wherewith they were incensed towards me, when the smell of the Meat brought them into my House. Now therefore are they become my Friends, for they sit at my Table, and I have made them a Feast with thy Flesh.

After she turned her to the Seditious, and had them eat, and satisfied themselves; For why (faith she) should ye abhor my Meat which I have set before you? I have satisfied my self therewith, why therefore do not you eat of the Flesh of my Son? Taste and see how sweet my Son's Flesh is, I dare say ye will say, It is good Meat. What needeth pity? Ought ye to be more moved therewith than a Woman? If ye will in no wise eat of the Sacrifice of my Son, when as I have eaten thereof my self, shall not this be a shame for you, that I should have a better Heart, and greater Courage than you? Behold, I have prepared a fair Table for you, most valiant Men, why eat ye not? Is it not a good Feast that I have drest for you? And it is your will that I should make you this Feast. It had been my part rather to have been mov'd with Pity of my Son, than yours: And how chanceth it therefore that you are more merciful than I? Are ye not they that spoiled my House, and left me no kind of Food for
Ibe Wars of the Jewes.

for me and my Son? Are ye not they that constrain'd me to make you this Feast, notwithstanding the greater Hunger that I have? Why then eat ye not there-of, when as ye were the Authors and Causers that I did this Deed? The Jews hearing this Matter, were wonderfully smitten in sadness; yea, even the Governors of the Seditious began to stoop when they heard of this, so that they all in a manner desired Death, they were so amazed at this horrible Act: Many therefore of the common People stole out in the Night forth of Jerusalem, with all their Substance, to the Roman's Camp, and shew'd Titus of this, who wept thereat, and was sorry for the Matter exceedingly, holding up his Hands to Heaven, and crying, Thou Lord God of the World, God of this House, to whom all Secrets are known, which also knowest my Heart, that I came not against this City as desirous of Wars, but rather of Peace, which I offered them, but yet the Citizens thereof evermore refused it, altho' I oftentimes entreated them. And when they destroyed one another by their Civil Dissentions, I would have delivered them, but I found them always like most fierce and cruel Beasts, nothing sparing themselves. And this Mischief is come now so far, that a Woman hath eaten her own Flesh, being driven thereunto by most extream necessity. I have heard, and my Forefathers have told me, of all the Power that thou hast exercis'd in times past towards them and their Fathers, how thy Name dwelt amongst them. For thou broughtest them out of Egypt, with a strong Hand, and a stretched forth Arm, out of the House of Bondage, to whom also thou dividest the Sea, leddest them through it dry, and drownedst their Enemies in the Water, after conducted'st thy People through the Wilderness, and fedst them with Bread from Heaven, thou causedst Quails to fly unto them, and broughtest out Water out of the Rock for them. At length thou broughtest them into this Holy Land by great and terrible Miracles and Wonders: For thou dryedst up the Waters of Jordan, and madest them stand up in a heap, till they were passed over: thou didst cause the Sun and Moon also to stay their Course for thy Peoples sake, till they did vanquish their Enemies. Thou wouldst that thy Name should dwell amongst them, and gavest them this City by Inheritance. Some of them thou didst choose for thy self to be Prophets, which might conduct thy People, teach them and lead them into the right way, to give them warning of future Miseries, that they might take heed, and beware of them. Moreover, thou didst choose of them Priests to serve thee, and to bless thy People Israel; certain godly Men amongst them thou drewest unto thee, and in a fiery Chariot thou didst carry them up to Heaven: Thou smoteft the Tents of the King of Assur, and killedst 8718 Men. These and divers other things have I heard of my Forefathers, yea, and of Joseph the Priest, a very wise Man. And now, Lord God, this People which I have striven against I would have saved, had they trusted in thee, but thou seest they trust not in thy saving Health, but in their own Sword.

When Titus had said all these things, he commanded to bring an Iron Ram, and to bend it against the new Wall which the Seditious had raised, that they might batter it down; but many of the Nobles among the Seditious came forth unto Titus, and made Peace with him, whom he placed among his chief Men.

Shortly after, the Romans set on fire one of the Gates
Gates of the Temple that was shut, whose Door was covered over with Silver, and while the Timber of it burnt, the Silver melted, and ran upon the Ground; so when the Gate was open, the way appeared which leadeth to the San&ulum San^torum.

As soon as Titus saw it, he honoured it with great Reverence, and forbade his People that none should come nigh it. Wherefore he commanded a Proclamation to be published throughout all his Camp to this Tenor, Whosoever cometh near the Sanctuary shall suffer death for it.

He appointed also a strong Band of Men to keep the Temple, that it might not be profaned and unhallowed by any of his: But his Princes and Captains answered, Unless this House be set on fire, thou shalt never subdue this People; in regard that to preserve it, they vow to dye.

Notwithstanding Titus would not hearken to their Counsel, but appointed some of his own Soldiers, and such Jews as had come in to him to keep Ward, giving them charge to preserve the Temple and San^ulum San^torum, lest it should be polluted.

The Seditious Jews that remained in Jerusalem, seeing the Romans depart from the Temple, and leaving Guards behind, they ran upon them with their Swords drawn, and slew every Soul of them: Which Titus hearing, he brought his whole Army thither against the Seditious, and kill'd many of them; the rest fled to Mount Sinai.

The next day the Romans set fire on the San^ulum San^torum, laying Wood to the Doors that were covered over with Gold, and then firing it; so after the Gold waxed hot, and the Timber burnt,
The Wars of the Jews.

The Sanctum Sanctorum was open, that Men might see it in the ninth Day of the 5th Month, which was the very same Day that it was open also in the time of the Chaldees. The Romans therefore rushing into the Sanctum Sanctorum, gave a great Shout while it burnt, which when Titus heard, he hastened to quench the Fire, and save the Sanctum Sanctorum; but he could not do it, because it was set on fire in so many Places; thereupon Titus cried unto them, that they should forbear, but they would not hear him: For as a vehement Flood of Waters breaketh through all things, and drives them down before it; with such a furious Violence the Gentiles rushed upon the Lord’s Temple, the Fire flaming every where out of Measure.

When Titus saw he could not restrain them from the Sanctum Sanctorum with Words, he drew out his Sword, blaming the Captains of his own People, and others that were not Romans he killed: and he cried out so long and so loud upon them, that he was grown hoarse.

The Priests that were within the Sanctum Sanctorum withstood the Romans stoutly, till they were able no longer to lift up their Hands: Wherefore when they saw there was no other Safeguard left, they leaped into the Fire, and divers other Jews with them, and so burnt all together, saying, What should we live any longer now there is no Temple? Yet Titus ceased not to strike the People and chase them from the Temple, and being grown so weary that all his strength failed him, he fell upon the Ground, and forbore crying upon them any farther.

After that the Sanctum Sanctorum was burnt, Titus arose, and entering thereinto, he saw the Glory and and magnificence thereof, and believed it was the House of the Lord, for as yet the Fire had not consumed all, therefore he said:

Now I well perceive that this is no other than the House of God, and the Dwelling of the King of Heaven, neither was it for nought that the Jews stood so earnestly in defence thereof; nor did the Gentiles also without good Cause send Gold and Silver to this Temple from the farthest Parts of the World; for great is the Glory of it, and surpasseth all the Roman, and Temples of the Gentiles, that ever I saw. The God of Heaven, who is the God of this House, take Vengeance of the Seditious, whose mischievous and heinous Deeds have brought this evil upon them.

C H A P. IV.

THE Seditious that yet remained at Jerusalem seeing the Sanctum Sanctorum to be burnt, they set the rest of the Temple on fire themselves, with all the Houses that were fill’d with Treasure, and all sorts of precious Jewels; and where they knew there remained yet some Victuals, they set it also on fire, left the Romans should receive benefit thereby.

After this, the Romans quenched the Fire, and set up their Idols and Images in the Temple, offering Burnt-Offerings unto them, and blaspheming, mocking and railing at the Jews, and their Laws, in presence of their Idols. About that time arose one who prophesied a Lye unto the Seditious that remained yet in Jerusalem, exhorting them to play...
The Wars of the Jews.

the Men, and oppose their Enemies: For now, faith he, shall the Temple be built by it self, without humane Hands, that God may declare his Power unto the Romans, who now glory in themselves, to have overcome the Jews; therefore if you fight stoutly this day, the Temple shall erect it self. Hereupon the Seditious set furiously upon the Romans, and slew many of them, which made the Romans, who had favoured them formerly, to kill them like Sheep.

These things hapened because they gave credit to a false Prophet, and marked not the Signs that appeared formerly: For the Year next before the coming of Vespasian, there was seen a Star on the Temple so bright, as if a Man had so many drawn Swords in his Hands. And the same time this Star appeared, which was at the solemn Passover, that whole Night the Temple was light and clear asmid-day, and continued so seven Nights together. Understanding Men knew well enough that this was an ill Augury, though others thought it good. The same time also they brought a Heifer for a Sacrifice, which when she was knocked down, she calved a Lamb.

Besides, there was a certain Gate called the East-Gate, that was never opened nor shut, but twenty Men had enough to do about it, and the creaking of the Hinges might be heard afar off; this Gate was found open without any Man's help, and they could not shut it, till a great number joined their strength.

Moreover there was discerned on the Santium Sanctorum, a whole night long, the Face of a Man wonderful terrible.

There appeared also the same time, four Chariots with Horfemen, and great Blasts in the Sky, coming towards towards Jerusalem. In the Feast of the Weeks, the Priests likewise heard a Man walking in the Temple, and saying with a great and wonderful terrible Voice,

Come let us go away out of this Temple, let us hence away.

But especially there was one surpassed all these; a certain Man in the City, of a base degree, called Joshua, began to cry upon the Feast of Tabernacles, in this wise;

A Voice from the East, a Voice from the West, a Voice from the four Winds of the Heavens, a Voice against Jerusalem, a Voice against the Temple, a Voice against the Bridegroom, a Voice against the Bride, and a Voice against the whole People.

Thus he cried very oft, so that they of Jerusalem hated him, and said unto him, Why criest thou always this Cry? But the Governour of the City forbad them to wrong him, supposing he was mad: Therefore, for four Years space, he never left crying out,

Wo to Jerusalem and to the Sanctuary thereof.

When the Wars had begun, and the Town was besieged, it fortuned as he wandred upon the Walls, he added this also unto his Cry,

Wo unto my self; and with that a Stone came out of an Engine from the Camp, that dashed out his Brains.

At that time also there was a Writing found graven in an old Stone;

What time the building of the Temple shall be brought to a four-square, then it shall be destroyed. Now when the Antochia was taken and razed by the Romans, and the Walls of the Temple were all bruised, the Jews making speed to repair the Ruines and Dilapidations, without remembrance of the old Writing, they made the Temple four square. Besides these words were found in the Wall.
Walls of the Sanctum Santorum, When the whole Building of the Temple shall be four-square, then shall a King reign over Israel, and that King and Ruler shall reign over all the Land of Israel. Some interpreted this of the King of Israel; but the Priests said, It is the King of the Romans.

The whole Roman Army being now come into the Temple, and the Jews fled to Mount Sion, the Romans set up their Idols in the Lord's Temple, and railed at the Jews: It happened, that there came down to the Romans a little Boy of the Priests from Mount Sion to a Captain of the Wall, Keeper of the Temple, desiring him to give him some Water; he taking pity of the Boy, gave him some; the Boy taking the Vessel the Water was in, first drank himself, then ran away with the rest: The Captain made shew to run after him, but let him go of purpose.

Once when the Romans were at their Sacrifice with Titus, some Priests came and besought him that he would not kill them; he answered, Why do you wish to live now, and not rather die with your Brethren, who have suffered Death for God's sake, and for the sake of this House? whereupon he commanded they should be all slain.

After Schimeon and Jehochanan sent to Titus for Peace: he answered, This thing ye seek too late; but how cometh it to pass, that you beg your lives now, being so few, and that ye have wafted all things so desperately? ye desire Life, and yet persevere in your Malice, still holding your Swords in your hands: Have we not taken your City, Temple, and the Sanctum Santorum? what is there left for you to put your hope in? therefore cast away your Swords and lay down your... your Armour; & then if you come to me, I know what I have to do, peradventure I shall be gracious unto you.

Schimeon and Jehochnan answered, We have sworn by the Lord our God, who is God of Heaven and Earth, that we will never bear thy Yoke nor Serve thee, or make any Peace to be subject to thee, therefore if it be thy Pleasure to shew us Mercy we will take our Journey into the Wilderness. In granting this, we will report we have found Favour, if not, we will remain here, to see what manner of death we shall die.

Titus hearing this, was much incensed, and said, Remains the Pride of your Hearts, and Hardness of your Neck still with you, tho' ye be Captives? Dare ye be so bold as to say, ye have sworn not to endure our Yoke?

Then Titus gave Commandment to the Romans, not to omit any opportunity to set upon the Seditionious, and by one means or other, to destroy Schimeon and Jehochnan. There was at that time a certain Man of the Royal Blood, whose Name was Serach; he, accompanied with all his Brethren and Sons that were there with him of the King's Blood, came down from the Mount Sion to Titus, who received them honourably, and gently ordered them.

When Jehochnan and Schimeon understood that Serach and the rest were gone, and had yielded themselves to Titus, they went and set fire upon all that was in the King's Palace, that the Romans should have no Commodity thereby.

From thence they went to the Temple, where they found certain Commanders and Captains, whom Titus had put in Authority about the Temple, of whom there were Chief: One Captain of the Horfemen, the second of the Chariots, and the third of the Footmen, him they killed and took took his Companions alive. One of them besought him that had taken him, that he might be brought to Schimeon their Captain: Let him (faith he) do with me as he list, and in this one thing let me find favour at your Hands. They agreed and brought him to Schimeon, who commanded his Servants, as soon as he was come, to slay him. But while he that was appointed to this Business made delay, and killed him not, by and by he whipt down off the Hill, escaped, and came to Titus: who commanded him out of his fight, being wroth with him, that he had not fought unto Death, rather than to be taken alive.

But with the Jews was he wonderfully displeased that they had so despightfully ordered his Men; wherefore he commanded to kill all the Jews, as many as could be found in the Streets of the City, whom he would have spared before, and caused Proclamation to be made throughout all his Camp for their Safety. Then died many of the Jews, so that every Place was full of dead Bodies. The Men of War of the Edomites, which were with Schimeon, perceiving how the Matter went, sent Ambassadors to Titus to desire Peace, and to save their Lives: which when it came to Schimeon's Ear, he went unto them, and slew the chief of them, and their Noblemen; and the rest of the People of the Edomites fled unto Titus. From that time forth Titus commanded his Men to use no more Cruelty to the Jews. Soon after fled Jehochanan and Schimeon, and hid themselves in certain Caves. The rest of the chief Men of the Jews that were with them, seeing them now to be fled, came down from the Mount to Titus, and fell down upon their Faces before him upon the Ground, whom Titus received gently. As for the Seditious that were with Schimeon and Jehochanan, they fought till they all dyed together.

Then came forth unto Titus one Joshua a Priest, Son of Scaftai, the High-Priest, bringing with him two Candlesticks of Gold which were in the Sanctuary, and the Tables of Gold, with other Vessels of Silver and Gold, and also the Holy Vesture decked with Gold and precious Stones; all those he gave to Titus, who made him Chief Priest over them that remained, next unto Joseph the Priest; for Titus gave Joseph Authority as well over the Priests and Levites, as over the whole People of the Jews. Then was Gorion, the Father of Joseph, that writ this History, brought out of Prison, with his Wife and Children, among whom was one Barion, Joseph's younger Brother; he was a very wise and godly Priest, by whom God bestowed many Benefits upon the Israelites; for Titus left him at Jerusalem, and took him not with him, as he did Joseph; Joseph's Father lived after the City was taken twenty Months, and died. They took also one Phineas a Priest, who was Keeper of the Treasure House: he betrayed and detected to the Romans all the Treasures of the Priests, and their Vestments; he gave also unto Titus a most precious Oyl, with sweet Odours and Perfumes, and Garments also of Purple, which the Kings of the Second Temple had given. Wherefore both this Phineas and Joshua, whom we mentioned before, transgressed the Covenant of the Lord, and offended God, in that they delivered his Jewels to the Enemies of his People, which they ought not to have done, but rather rather to have died for the Glory of the Lord, as the other Priest did, which cast themselves into the Fire.

Thus was the City of Jerusalem taken, with all the precious things that were therein. And Titus went up to Mount Sion, took it, and razed the Wall thereof. Three days after, Jehochanan, vex'd with Hunger, left his Place where he lurked, and came to Titus, fell down before him, and kissed his Feet, saying, Save me, O Lord, King. Titus commanded him to be fettered with Iron Chains, and when he had caused him to be carried about the Camp, so bound, and to be mocked of all Men, by the space of seven Days, he commanded to hang him, and so got he a just End, and fit Reward for his Cruelty.

Afterward came Schimeon also forth of his Den, being driven to it with Famine. He had put on Kingly Apparel, and shewed himself afar off to the Roman Host; who seeing him, were afraid to go to him; but he call'd unto them, and ask'd for some Captain. Then one came forth, and said unto Schimeon, Tell me who thou art, and I will not kill thee. Schimeon answered therefore, and told him, I am Schimeon, that Seditious Captain of the Jews, which have made you so much ado, now I beseech thee, shew me so much Favour as to bring me to Titus thy Master, which he did: Titus therefore, when he saw Schimeon, he commanded him to be fast bound, and to be led about the whole Host, that he might be derided and mocked: Afterward he was put to a fore Death; first his Head was stricken off, then he was cut in Pieces, and cast unto Dogs: So he died an abominable Death, being punished for his Iniquity.
The Number of the Jews, as well Citizens as others, that came unto the Feast of Jerusalem, which were slain, partly by the Romans, partly by the Seditious, during the whole time of these Wars, was known to be Eleven hundred thousand, besides them whose Number was not known; only they were counted which were slain and buried: Besides them, they also were not reckoned, that after the death of Jehochanan and Schimeon, died with Eleazar the Son of Anani the Priest: They that were led Prisoners by Titus to Rome, were Sixteen thousand Men.

So Titus with Joseph went to Rome, leaving Bonian, Joseph’s Brother, at Jerusalem, who was appointed to be the Chief Priest of them that abode there; for Joseph did request it of Titus, which he performed. The Seditious were all slain in the Battel which they took in hand for the Peoples sake, and the Temple of the Lord: those also, that Titus took Prisoners, were put to vile Deaths, for he reserved many to be Mocking-stocks in every City, where he passed by in the way to Rome; and in every Town he commanded some of them to be brought forth, and cast unto the Lions till they were all consumed.

CHAP. V.

Here were certain People at that time, dwelling amongst the Mountains of Ararat, that were called Alanites, whose Power Alexander King of Macedonia fearing, closed them on every side. This This People, although they had no knowledge of the use of Iron nor Armour, yet this was their manner, That one of them, with a great Pole burnt a little at the end, would put to flight a Hundred good Soldiers, were they never so well appointed and armed. Until this Year they were always shut in, but now being oppressed with a great Dearth and Famine throughout all the Land, they sent Embassadors to the People of Hurkan their Neighbours, requiring them that they would open the straits of the Mountains, that they might come forth with their Wives and Children to seek them Food.

The Hurkans granted their Requests, and opened them the Entrances of the Mountains; so they came forth, wandering here and there, spoiling divers Countries, till at length they took their Journey toward the Mountains of the Land of Mad-dai, where they found Horses, namely in the De-sart of Madai, amongst the People of Ararat;
they got those Horses, leap'd upon them, and en-tred the Land of Madai. The President or Ruler of the Country hearing thereof, fled into the highest Hills, leaving his Wife and Children behind him for haste, he was so afraid of the Alanites, knowing their Valiantness. Straightway he sent unto them Embassadors to make Peace with them, and he would let them have Victuals upon this Condition, That they would not spoil his Country: They made answer, If so be he would maintain them, and let them have Food for the space of one Month, till the Corn in their own Country were ripe, they would return home again at the Months end; for we desire not (say they) thy Gold or Silver, being Men separated from all Entercourse in Traffick with other People, nor any thing else than Food do we seek.

This their Request the Ruler granted them, and let them have a certain Grain called Mill, sodden with one kind of Flesh or other. The Number of them was Seven thousand one hundred and fifty, and five thousand one hundred and forty Persons. When the Month was ended, and the Alanites understood the Corn in their own Country was ripe, they departed out of the Land of Madai, according as they had sworn, and returned toward their own Country.

And as they were in their way homeward, Mithridates King of Ararat came against them to annoy them, minding to drive them from his Coasts, lest they should waste his Country. Therefore while they marched through this Country going toward their own, Mithridates made War upon them, but his Men were beaten down by the Alanites, like as Grass falls upon the Ground when a strong Man treads upon it. Then one of the young Men of the Alanites, in despiight, put a Rope about Mithridates's Neck, and drew him after him, unto his great Shame. Mithridates gat out his Sword, and cut asunder the Rope and fled. To whom the Alanites looking back, said, Go thy way, get thee home, and make no more War upon us hereafter; for we were not minded to waste thy Land, nor yet to kill thy People. For if we had ever intended it, Could we not have done it long ago, when as nothing is betwixt us and you, but the Mountains of Ararat? But we were of this Mind, that we should greatly offend to kill Men of our own Shape shape and likeness. See now Alexander, which went about to subdue the whole Earth, and to declare his Power, closed us up within our Land; Why, because he was afraid we should come out upon him. But we laughed him to scorn when he did it; if we had lifted we could have letted him from shutting us in, and to make no Peace with him: but we made no reckoning of his Doings: For it is our Custom to keep us within our own Country, we seek no other Land, whenas our own Land is better than any other. It pleased us well that he inclosed us, that the cruel wild Beasts, which are in the Mountains of Ararat, could have no Passage to us. The cause we came out now, was nothing else, than that we were oppressed with a great Dearth, and we determin'd to be no longer from home, than till our own Fruits were ripe, and then to return, as you see we do. If we had been minded to win your Land, had we not been able utterly to have overcome you, and to have gotten the Dominion over you? But neither ye nor your Country did ever delight us greatly; for our Manners differ far from yours.

Behold the King of Madai, when he had kept us forth a Month, we harmed him not, we are not wont to hurt Men as ye are, that cannot be content with your own state, but must desire other Mens Inheritance. Now therefore go and return to your own Country, and so will we to ours, without doing you any more hurt: wherefore ye need not be afraid of us. So the Alanites went home to their own Country, having slain of Mithridates's People Three hundred thousand Men, and never a one of their own was killed.

Thus hearing of this, was desirous to go unto them, them, to let them understand his Valiantness; but he could not compass it, because all his best Men were spent in the Wars at Jerusalem. Wherefore he determined to return to Rome, after he had taken Jerusalem, where he abode as yet besides the Antochia. There he had Intelligence, that divers of the Jews were gathered together, with whom was Eleazar, the Son of Anani the Priest, who during the Siege, fled unto a certain Hold call'd Mezira, whereupon many of the Jews resorted to them.

Titus hearing this, that many had joyned themselves to Eleazar, feared left after his Departure Eleazar might from thence make an Inroad, and take Jerusalem, and destroy the Romans, which should be no small damage to the Roman Empire. Wherefore he made out against him, and sent thither one Silcham, a Nobleman of Rome, with a great Host to besiege Mezira; but he could not get it.

Wherefore he sent unto Titus for an Iron Ram, to batter the Walls withal; which after he had received it, he beat down the Walls of Mezira therewith. The Jews seeing that, raised a great Countermure within of Wood and Timber, which the Romans set on fire and burnt. After that, they assaulted the Town from Morning till Night, at what time the Romans left off, supposing they were not able to prevail against Eleazar's Defence in the dark.

Eleazar in the mean season, call'd an Assembly of all the Chief Men of the Jews that were with him, and said unto them in this wise:

Come hither ye Seed of Abraham, and kingly Priesthood, which have unto this day ever prevailed against the Enemies of God: Let us hear your Advice what is best to be done against this Multitude that is come upon us at unawares. Ye see that at this time chiefly it becometh us to follow the Courage and Valiantness of our Forefathers, wherewith they were in time past endued: Consider moreover, that every thing hath its end, and there are sometimes in War, when as Men are wont to follow the pursuit, sometimes to flee from the same, whom they pursued, and to humble themselves before them.

And it is no shame to be humbled and disgraced, when as all things have their determinate end. Albeit, who so is of an haughty Courage, he must so establish his Heart, that he quail not with fear; then shall he be deemed a valiant Man. If ye therefore be of that Courage that ye fear not Death, then will I call you valiant Men and Worthy. Consider the Fortitude of Abraham our Father, and the Fact that he did: For having but one only Son, whom Sarah bare unto him in her Age, he never staggered nor stayed at it, to offer him up to the Lord God for a Burnt-Offering; for he thought not that he should kill him, but persuaded himself most certainly, that he should promote him to the Life and Light of the Lord, forasmuch as for the love of God, and at his Commandment, he should have killed him. Weigh the thing that Josiah the just King did, who setting at nought this wretched Life, and aspiring to everlasting Felicity, would not avoid the jeopardy of his Life, when as he might have done it. For altho' Pharaoh Necho said, He came not against him, but against the King of the Chaldees, yet would not Josiah hear him, but rather proceeding against Pharaoh in Arms, was slain in the Battle, and went unto that great Light in the Garden of Paradise, which is the Lot and Inheritance of the Just.
We know that in this World no Man receives the reward of his Righteousness, but it is laid up for him in the other World; where he shall reap the fruit of his Righteousness, that he hath sown in this World. Neither doth long Life in this World profit a Man to the attaining of everlasting Bliss, except he work Righteousness, and lead his Soul forth of Darkness into Light: Like as contrariwise, shortness of Life hindreth no Man from everlasting Happiness, if so be his Soul have no defect in those things which pertain to the World to come. For Abel, which was slain of his Brother, liv'd no long Life; yet when he had ended it, he obtain'd everlasting Rest: But Cain that liv'd long in the World, was a wanderer and a runagate in this Earth; and after this Life went to perpetual Misery.

Now therefore, my Brethren, if we also shall live any longer, our Life shall be a miserable Life, and our days, days of Vanity and Travel; yea, our Soul as long as it shall remain in this Body, it shall be tossed with great Tribulation; but if it once go forth, then shall it rejoice and never be afraid. And all the days that it is in the Body, it never leaveth weeping and mourning: for it is the Spirit of Life which is hedged within the Body, by Sinews and Bones, none other-wise than if it were bound with Chains.

The Spirit is also that which quickneth the Flesh that is taken of the Dust of the Earth, for Flesh can't quicken the Spirit. Besides this, the Spirit is that which observeth and marketh the Flesh, and searcheth the Works thereof so long as it is in the Body; yea, and Flesh cannot see the Spirit, but the Spirit seeth the Flesh always, neither is there any Member of the Body hid from it. The Eyes also of the Body cannot perceive what time the Spirit retorneth to the Flesh, & departeth from the same; for the Spirit of Man which is his Soul, is from Heaven, but the Flesh is taken from the Earth. Wherefore the Soul may remain without the Body, but not likewise the Body without the Soul; and when the Spirit comes to the Flesh, it visiteth it, as a Neighbour is wont to go and see his Neighbour, and quickneth it; and when again it departeth from it, the Flesh dieth, and if the Soul will follow the desires of the Flesh, then this is the death of the Soul; but if it give no Ear unto the Flesh, then shall the Soul come to the light of Life, and the Flesh shall dye.
The Wars of the Jews.

Wherefore the Soul is glad when it departeth out of the Body, like as one that hath been long bound, is very well contented when he is dismissed out of Prison. For all the while that the Soul is kept closed in the Flesh, it is as it were a Slave, in most hard and grievous Bondage under a hard Master. Therefore when it departeth from the Body, it is glad, because it must go to the Garden of Paradise. Thus ye see that in this Life, the Soul is compared to a Bond Servant and Slave.

Much more than this, did he discourse of the immortality and blessedness of the Soul before them, which we have omitted here. And making then a Digression from that, he lamented and wept most bitterly for the case of the City of Jerusalem, saying, Where is now the City of Jerusalem, that great and populous City? where is that most beautiful City of Sion, and that holy City which rejoiceth the whole Earth? O thou Worship of Israel, the Mirth of our Hearts, whither is thy Glory come? Where is thy Magnificence, O Jerusalem? Where be the Hills of the Daughter of Sion? Where be her Kings Kings and Princes? Where be the Kings that were accustomed to come to enquire of her Welfare in her Gates? Where are our Sages and Elders, her young and most valiant Men, which were Joyous and Merry in her Streets upon her Sabbaths and Festival Days? Where is her famous Sanctuary, the Dwelling of the Almighty God? Where is the House of Sanhedrin, the Habitation of Holiness, wherein no Man might set his Foot but the High-Priest, which he never but once a Year entred into, but in thee? O Jerusalem, thou wast once replenished with People, and renowned amongst Kings, beloved of God; in thee was established the Seat of the Kingdom of Justice and Judgment, whose Streets were paved with most precious Marble, whose Walls glitter'd and shined with the same Stone; whose Gates were every one plated with Gold and Silver, whose Walls were builded with great Stones most honourable, whose Priests in the midst of the Sanctuary, (like to Angels of God, and Princes of Holiness, with Sacrifices and Burnt-Offerings) made the Lord loving to thee and thy People. How art thou now full of slain Men, and Carcasses which have perished, some by the Sword, some by Famine? And how are thy Sons that dwelt in thee, and the Strangers also that resorted to thee, to honour thy Feasts, brought to ruine now in thee? How art thou fallen from the height of thy Pride, and how art thou set on fire and burnt even unto thy Foundations, and art left desolate and solitary? What Eye is so hard that can behold thee? What Heart so stony that can endure to see thee? how art thou become a Burying-place of Carcasses? Ann how are thy Streets made void and destitute of living Creatures? and they which heretofore were replenished with living, are now stuffed with dead? how have the Ashes of the Fire covered thee, that the Sun cannot come at thee? How do the ancient Men, which in times past did sit in the midst of thee, in the seat of Wisdom, Judgment and Justice, now sit by the Carcasses of their Children, to drive away Crows and Beasts from them, having their hoary Heads besprinkled with Dusts and Ashes, instead of their Glory? and those Women, thy Daughters that are left, they remain in the Houses of them that made thee desolate, not that they may live, but be unhallowed and polluted: Who shall see all these things in thee, and shall desire to live, rather than to die? Who knowing the magnificence thou hadst of late, and now shall see thine Ignominy and Dishonour of the same, will not choose to die? And would God we had been dead before, that we might not have seen in thee this thy Reproach: O that we were without Eyes, that we might not be compelled to see these Mischiefs that are in the midst of thee! And behold we live a most sorrowful Life; for our Enemies, even now before we be dead, cast Lots for our Sons and Daughters, to divide them amongst them, to be their Servants and Handmaids.

When Eleazar had ended this Lamentation, he spake to the People that was with him, thus;

Now therefore, Brethren and Friends, take Compassion of your selves, your Wives and Children, with the old Men which be with you: Let them not be led into Bondage without all Mercy, that they be not constrained to mourn under the Hands of their Enemies. For if ye do this, ye lose without doubt all Places that are prepared for you in the World of Righteousness, neither shall ye have any part in the Light of Life. Ye rather with your own Hands kill them: for for if ye will do so, they shall be counted as Sacrifices most acceptable unto God. And that done, we will after issue out upon our Enemies and fight against them till we die valiantly for the Glory of the Lord. For we will never suffer them to bind us with Bonds and Chains, as Bondslaves in the Hands of the Uncircumcised. Neither will we see our ancient Men haled by the Beards before our Eyes most miserably, nor yet our Maids, Wives and Daughters to be prophaned, unhallowed, and defloured, nor our Sons crying to us, and we cannot help them. For what shall our Life avail us, after our Land is desolate, our Sanctuary razed, the Romans will ravish our Wives and Daughters before our Eyes, and oppress our Sons with a most grievous and hard Yoke? Now therefore it is better for us all to kill our Wives and Children, whose Blood God shall accept thankfully as the Blood of Burnt Offerings, and after we will issue out on the Romans, fight till we be all destroyed, and die for the Glory of the Lord God.

These Men therefore went and gathered together Wives and Daughters, embraced them, and kissed them, saying, Is it not better for you to die in your holy Country honourably, than to be led away into Bondage, with great Ignominy and Shame, into the Land of your Enemies, and be compelled to die before the Idols of the Gentiles? These sayings when the People had heard, they broke forth that Night into great Sorrow and Penitiveness, weeping and making great Lamentation; but they all confess with one accord, that they had rather die than live. Therefore as soon as it was day, Eleazar's Companions killed their Wives and Children, and cast their Bodies into Cisterns and Wells that were in Mezirab, covering and stopping stopping them with Earth. Afterward issued Eleazar the Priest forth of the Town, with all his Men, and forced a Battel upon the Romans, of whom the Jews killed a great Number, and fought so long, till they all died manfully for the Lord God.
The Wars of the Jews.

But Titus left a Remnant of Israel in the City Jaffa, and the Villages thereabout, and in the City Bitter and Asa, and their Villages, in which place Rabbi Jochanan, Son of Shakkai, was appointed chief. Bonion the Priest, younger Brother to Joseph the Priest, was put in Authority by Titus for Joseph's sake, over all the Jews which were at Jerusalem. At the same time was Rascbhab, a Prince of Israel, put to death: Ishmael Son of Elisha the High-Priest: Moreover Titus was minded to have put Rabbi Gamaliel, Father of Rascbhab, to death; but Rabbi Jochanan, Son of Shakkai, made suit for him, and obtained Pardon for his Life. This Rabbi Jochanan was he that came forth of Jerusalem, in the beginning when Vespasian, Father of Titus, came first against Jerusalem, whom Vespasian honoured greatly; insomuch that when he returned to Rome, he commended this Rabbi Jochanan to his Son Titus, commanding him to honour him; for he perceived he was a wise Man.

Titus reigned two Years after he had taken Jerusalem, and died. He was a very eloquent Man, expert in the Latin and Greek Tongues, and wrote divers Works in both Tongues. He loved most entirely, Justice and Equity; for he wasted the City of Jerusalem against his Will, and being compell'd thereunto; yea, all the Mischiefs that came upon it, happened through the Malice and Naughtiness of the Seditious, as we have touched before.
THE Ten Captivities
OF THE J E W S.

The Israelites were ten times led into Captivity; four times by the hand of Senacherib, and four times by Nebuchadnezzar, once by Vespasian, and once by superstitious Adrian.

First invaded them Senacherib, and transported the Reubenites, the Gadites, and the half Tribe of Manasseh. He took away also the Golden Calf, which Jeroboam, the Son of Nebat, had made: He led them into Helath, Habor, to the River of Gozan, and the Cities of the Medes. This Captivity was in the time of Pekah, the Son of Remaliah.

The second Captivity: Hosea, the Son of Ela remained, and slew Pekah, the Son of Remaliah. After he became the Servant and Subject of Senacherib seven years: Then came Senacherib the second time, and carried away the Tribes of Asha, Issachar, Zabulun and Naphtali, of whom he let go free only one of every eight: He took away also another Calf that was in Betbel.

After the death of Ahaz, reigned Zedekiah his Son in his stead four Years. The fourth Year of whose Reign Senacherib came and entrenched about Samaria, besieging it three Years, and at length took took it, in the sixth Year of the Reign of Hizkiahu. So led he away the Israelites that were in Samaria, the Tribe of Ephraim and Manasseh: This is the 3d Captivity.

When Nebuchadnezzar had reigned eight Years, he made Wars against Jerusalem, bringing with him the Chuteon Hereticks out of Babylon, Ethiopia, Hemeses, Avim and Sephurvaim; and as he warred upon Judea, he took in that Country an hundred and fifty Cities, in the which were two Tribes, Judah and Simeon, whom he took with him, and caused them forthwith to be led into Halah and Habar, until the King of the Ethiopians rebelled against him, whose Kingdom was on the hinder Parts of Egypt. Then taking Judah and Simeon with him, he made War upon the King of Ethiopia. So the holy and blessed God placed them in the dark Mountains. Here were four Captivities, whereby ten Tribes went into Exile by Sanacherib. There remained yet of Judah one hundred and ten thousand, and of Benjamin one hundred and thirty thousand in the City of Jerusalem, over whom reigned Hizkiahu. Moreover, Senacherib came out of Ethiopia against Jerusalem again, leading him with one hundred and ten thousand, but the Holy Lord overthrew him there; as it is written, And the Angel of the Lord issuing forth smote in the House of Asar 175 thousand Men. His People therefore was slain, and no Man left but Senacherib, and his two Sons, and Nebuchadnezzar and Nabuazaraden; this slaughter was in the 14th Year of Hizkiahu, from which Overthrow, until the time that Nebuchadnezzar invaded the Jews in the Reign of Jehoiakim, were a hundred and seven Years.

The
The Fourth Year of Jehoiakim, came Nebuchadnezzar the first time, and carried away three thousand and twenty and three of the Tribes of Judah and Benjamin, and of other Tribes seven thousand, all the able Men, and all their Power, binding them with Chains. This is the fifth Captivity.

Seven Years after this Captivity, came Nebuchadnezzar another time unto Dophna a City of Antioch, from whence he led four thousand and six hundred of the Tribe of Judah, and of Benjamin fifty thousand, of the other Tribes seven thousand.

This Transmigration made he in Babylon, which is the sixth Captivity.

Furthermore, betwixt the sixth Bondage and the seventh, were nine Years of the Reign of Zidkiah. When Nebuchadnezzar had reigned nineteen Years, he came the third time unto Jerusalem, and overcoming Zidkiah, he burnt the Temple, and took away the Pillars, the Brazen Sea, and the Furnitures that Solomon made, and all the Vessels of the House of the Lord, and the Treasures of the House of the King which was in Jerusalem; all the Vessels he sent to Babylon. He slew also of the Israelites nine hundred and one thousand, besides them that were slain to revenge the Blood of Zeccharias. The Levites stood singing a Song, while slaughter was made of them, but they were not able to finish it, before the Enemies entered the Temple and found them standing in their Place with Harps in their Hands. Therefore he carried away in this Captivity, the Levites which were of the Seed of Moses, six hundred thousand, whom when the Gentiles had brought unto the Rivers of Babylon, they demanded of the Jews, Sing us a Song of Sion: And by and by by they gnawed off the Tops of their Fingers with their Teeth, saying, How shall we sing the Song of the Lord in a strange Land? And the blessed Lord seeing they would not sing a Song, he enlarged them, and placed them on the further side of Sambatia. Moreover he translated and carried away eight hundred and thirty two thousand, which were all of the Tribe of Judea and Benjamin, whereof he left in Jerusalem six thousand, setting over them for their Ruler, Gedalia the Son Abikam, who was slain after by Ishmael the Son of Natania, whereupon the Israelites being afraid, fled from their Country into Egypt. This is the Seventh Transmigration and Bondage.

The 27th Year of the Reign of Nebuchadnezzar, he took Egypt and Tyre, drowned the Jews that were therein, and the Nations which descended of Ammon and Moab, and of the Land bordering upon Israel, and led Jeremy and Baruch with them into Egypt: This is the Eighth Captivity.

Then the Israelites that remained alive in Egypt, departed unto Alexandria, and remained in it until they grew and increased unto many Thousands; and whoso saw not their Glory, saw no Glory in his time. For there was in it the Sanctuary, the Altar, the Offerings, Incense, the Ordinance of Bread, of Faces, the Houses of Studies, and Schools without Number, Men of great Substance, Riches and Power. But wicked Troganus made War upon them, and slew very many of them: After came Alexander against them, who slew also many of them. These are the eight Captivities or Bondages, which befel in the first House, and time of the first Temple.

After the Desolation of the first House seventy Years, Cyrus the Son of Hester, sent unto Nehemiah, Zerub...
Zerubbabel, Baruch, and his whole Society, and they built the second House. Then after four Years of the Reign of Cyrus, after the House was destroyed, Ezra went from Babylon, with forty thousand in his Company, and the Israelites were afflicted and vexed under Cyrus for the space of Thirty three Years.

Then came Alexander the King of Macedonia, and slew Cyrus, and when he had reigned twelve Years he died. After him came four Usurpers, which afflicted the Israelites 158 Years. But after that, the Sons of Chasmonani came and slew those Usurpers, and taking the Dominion from them, reigned themselves 103 Years.

Then reigned one Herod, the Servant to Chasmonani, who killed his Masters, and their whole Family, save one Maid whom he loved. But she climbed upon the top of an House, and said, There is no body left alive of my Father's House but I alone; so she cast her self headlong from the top of the House, and died. Herod did lay her in Honey, and preserved her for the space of seven Years: There were that said, he had Carnal Copulation with her after she was dead.

Herod and Agrippa his Son, and Monazah his Neophew, possessed the Kingdom one hundred and three Years. So hast thou Four hundred and three Years of the second House.

Then came Vespasian Caesar, and Titus his Wives Son, and wasted the Second House, carrying away Israel unto Rome. This is the Ninth Transmigra-

Moreover, Bitter remained after the Desolation and wasting of the Temple Fifty two Years.

After that Adrianus, who used Superstition with Bones, made Wars upon them, and transported Israel from their Country, after he had spoiled it, conveying veying them into Spain. This is the Tenth Captivity.

This Adrian vanquished the Jews (which rebelled the second time against the Romans) with a final and utter Destruction, forbidding and not suffering them, in any wise, to enter into Jerusalem, which he had begun to fortify with very strong Walls, and caused it to be called Helius, after his own Name. He caused also a Sow to be graven over the chief Gate of the City, and a Jew under her Feet, carved in Stone, in Token of their Subjection.

A Corollary.

Thus the ancient Nation of the Jews, which in former times might have been called the Favourite of God Almighty, was utterly destroyed, and their City demolished, the famous City of Jerusalem, which had been Five times surprized and sacked before.

First, Asocheus King of Egypt, after him Antiochus, then Pompey: And after him Herod with Sosius took it; yet did they not dismantle, much less destroy it. But before them the Kings of Babylon ruin'd it, after they had possessed it 1300 Years eight Months and six Days after the Building of it. The first Founder of it was one of the Princes of the Canaanites, called in his own Language the Just King: and indeed he was so, for he was the first Priest that sacrificed to God, and dedicated a Temple there, calling the City Solyma: But David David King of the Jews having driven out the Canaanites, gave it unto his People to be inhabited, and after 464 Years and 3 Months it was destroyed by the Babylonians. And from King David, who was the first Jew that reigned there, until the time that Titus destroyed it, were 1179 Years. And from the time that it was first erected until it was thus ruined, were 2177 Years, yet neither the Antiquity, nor Riches, nor Fame thereof then spread over the World, nor the Glory of Religion, did any thing avail to hinder this hard Destiny.

Such was the end of besieging Jerusalem, when none was left to kill more, or any thing remaining for the Soldiers to get, or whereon they should exercise their Courage, for they would have spared nothing that they could have spoiled; Titus commanded them to destroy the City and Temple, only leaving standing certain Towers that were more beautiful and stronger than the rest, viz. Phaselus, Hippocos and Mariamne, with the Wall that stood on the West-side, intending to keep a Garrison there; and these were left to stand for Mountains of their strength, and the Romans Valour, which had overcome a City so well fortified: All the rest of the City they so flatted, that they who had not seen it before, would not believe it had ever been inhabited.

Eheu quam tenui pendent mortalia filo!
And now for an Upshot of all that hath been said, take a short View of the whole Matter.

Together with a true Character of the JEWS as they are at this day: with the Hopes and Desires of all good Men for their Conversion.

When the Jews had made the full measure of their Sins run over, by putting to death the LORD of LIFE, God's Judgments (as they deserved, and our Saviour foretold) quickly overtook them: For, a mighty Army of the Romans besieged and sack'd the City of Jerusalem, wherein by Fire, Famine, Sword, Civil Discord, and Foreign Force, Eleven hundred thousand were put to Death. An incredible Number it seemeth, yet it cometh within the compass of our Belief, if we consider that the Siege began at the time of the Passover, when in a manner all Judea was inclosed in Jerusalem, all private Synagogues doing then their Duties to the Mother Temple; so that the City then had more Guests than Inhabitants. Thus the Passover, first instituted by God in Mercy, to save the Israelites from death, was now used by Him in Justice, to hasten their destruction, and to gather the Nations into a Bundle, to be cast into the Fire of his Anger. Besides those who were slain, Ninety seven thousand were taken Captives: And they who had bought our Saviour for thirty Pence, were themselves sold thirty for a Penny.
The General of the Romans in this Action was Titus; Son to Vespasian the Emperor; a Prince so good, that he was stiled, The darling of Mankind, for his sweet and loving Nature (and pity it was, that so good a Stock had not been better grafted!) So vertuously disposed, that he may justly be counted the glory of all Pagans, and shame of most Christians. He labour'd what lay in his Power, to have saved the Temple, and many therein; but the Jews, by their Obstinacy and Desperateness, made themselves uncapable of any Mercy.

Then was the Temple it self made a Sacrifice, and burnt to Ashes. And of that stately Structure, which drew the Apostles Admiration, not a Stone left upon a Stone. The Walls of the City (more shaken with the Sins of the Jews defending them, than with battering Rams of the Romans assaulting them) were levelled to the Ground; only three Towers left standing to witness the great Strength of the Place, and greater Valour of the Romans who conquer'd it. But whilst this Storm fell on the unbelieving Jews, it was Calm among the Christians; who warned by Christ's Predictions, and many other Prodigies, fled betimes out of the City to Pella, (a private Place beyond Jordan) which served them instead of a little Zoar, to save them from the imminent Destruction.

Three score Years after Adrian the Emperor re-built the City of Jerusalem, changing the situation somewhat Westward, and the Name thereof to Aelia. To despight the Christians, he built a Temple over our Saviour's Grave, with the Images of Jupiter and Venus; an other at Bethlehem, to Adonis her Minion; and to enrage the Jews, did en-grave Swine over the Gates of the City. Who storming at the prophanation of their Land, brake into open Rebellion; but were subdued by Julius Severus the Emperor's Lieutenant, and experienced Captain, and many thousands slain with Bencocchab, their counterfeit Messias, (for so he termed himself) that is, The Son of a Star; usurping that Prophecy, Out of Jacob shall a Star arise, tho' he prov'd but a fading Comet; whose Blazing portended the Ruine of that Nation.

The Captives, by order from Adrian, were transported into Spain, the Country laid waste, which parted with her People and Fruitfulness both together.

Indeed Pilgrims to this day, here and there, light on Parcels of rich Ground in Palestine, which God may seem to have left, that Men may taste the former sweetness of the Land, before it was scourged for the Peoples sins; and that they may guess the goodness of the Cloth by the fineness of the Shreds. But it is barren for the generality. The streams of Milk and Honey wherewith once it flowed, are now drained dry, and the whole face of the Land looketh sad; not so much for want of dressing, as because God hath frowned on it.

Yet great was the oversight of Adrian, thus totally to unpeople a Province, and to bequeath it to Foxes and Leopards. Tho' his Memory was excellent, yet here he forgot the old Romans Rule, who to prevent Desolations, where they rooted out the Natives, planted in Colonies of their own People. And surely the Country recovered not a Competency of Inhabitants for some hundred Years after.

For though many Pilgrims came thither in after Ages, yet they came rather to visit, than to dwell.
And such as remained there, most embracing single Lives, were no Breeders of Posterity. If any say, that Adrian did wilfully neglect this Land, and prostitute it to ruine for the Rebellion of the People; yet all account it small Policy in him, in punishing the Jews to hurt his own Empire, and by his vestation to leave fair and clear footing for foreign Enemies to fasten on this Country, and from thence to invade the Neighbouring Dominions: as after the Persians and Saracens easily over-ran and dispeopled Palestine. And no wonder if a thin Meadow were quickly mown.

But to return to the Jews. Such Straglers of them, not considerable in number, as escaped this Banishment into Spain (for few Hands Reap so clean as to leave no gleanings) were forbidden to enter into Jerusalem, or so much as to behold it from any Rise or Advantage of Ground. Yet they obtained of the after Emperors, once a Year, namely, on the 10th of August, whereon their City was taken, to go in and bewail the Destruction of their Temple and People; bargaining with the Soldiers, who waited on them, to give so much for so long abiding there; and if they exceeded the Time they conditioned for, they must stretch their Purses to a higher rate: so (what St. Jerom noteth) they who bought Christ's Blood, were then glad to buy their own Tears.

Thus the main Body of the Jews was brought into Spain, and yet they stretched their out Out-Limbs into every Country: So that it was hard to find a populous City without a common Sink, as without a Company of Jews. They grew Fat on the barest Pastures by Usury and Brokage, tho' often squeezed by those Christians amongst whom they lived, counting them Dogs, and therefore easily finding a stick to beat them. And always in any Tumult, when any fence of Order was broken, the Jews lay next harms; as at the Coronation of Richard the First, when the English made great Feasts, but the pillaged Jews paid the shot. At last for their many Villanies (as falsifying of Coin, poisoning of Springs, crucifying of Christian Children) they were slain in some Places, and finally banished out of others.
The Wars of the Jews.

Out of England, Anno 1291. by Edw. I. France 1307. by Philip the Fair; Spain 1492. by Ferdinand; Portugal 1497. by Emanuel. But had these two latter Kings banished all Jewish Blood out of their Countries, they must have emptied the Veins of their best Subjects, as descended from them. Still they are found in great numbers in Turkey; chiefly in Salomihb, where they enjoy the freest Slavery; and they who in our Saviour's time, so scorned Publicans, are now most employed in that Office to be the Turks Toll-gatherers. Likewise in the Popish Parts of Germany; in Poland a Pantheon of all Religions; and Amsterdam may be forfeited to the King of Spain, when she cannot shew a Pattern of this, as of all other Sects. Lastly, They are thick in the Pope's Dominions, where they are kept as a Testimony of the Truth of the Scriptures, and Foyl to Christianity: but chiefly in pretence to convert them. But his Holiness's converting Faculty worketh the strongest at the greatest distance: For the Indians he turneth to his Religion, and the Jews he converteth to his Profit. Some are of Opinion of the General Calling of the Jews; and no doubt, those that Differ from them in their Judgments concur in their Wishes and Desire. Yet are there Three grand Hindrances of their Conversion.

First, The Offence taken and given by the Papists, amongst amongst whom they live, or by their worshipping of Images, the Jews being Zelots of the 2d Commandment.

Secondly, because on their Conversion they must renounce all their Goods as ill gotten, and they will scarce enter in at the Door of our Church, when first they are to climb over so high a Threshold.

Lastly, they are debauped from the use of the New Testament, the means of their Salvation. And thus we leave them in a state most pitiful, and little pitied.

To give you then a right Character in brief; They are a People that know how to comply with the times, and the condition which they live in, especially if their profit be concerned in it; reviled like Dogs and used like Slaves, yet never shew so much as an angry Countenance. A Nation which will thrive wherever they come; yet most by Usury and Brokage; not lending any thing, but upon Pawns, and those once forfeited never more redeemable.

The best of both Sexes are said to have an unfavourable rankness, not incident (if not caused by thriftlessness) to other People, from whom they are as different in their Habits as in their Religion. And as for that, they retain still Circumcision, as the Badge and Cognizance of their Nation, but mingled with many Ceremonies not prescribed by the Law, nor observed by the Ancients; placing a void Chair for the Prophet Elias, whom they believe to be present, though unseen, at the Solemnity. And upon this, they are so besotted, that they conceive the female Sex incapable of eternal Life, because not capable of Circumcision. And therefore use to Name them with no other Ceremony, than at the six Weeks end, to have some young Wenches lift up the Cradle with the Child in it, which she that stooded at the head.
head, giveth the Name unto. Of their Sabbath, so extremely doting, that they have added to the superstitious left them by the Pharisees. And herein they are so precise, that if a Jew travel on the Friday, and in the Evening fall so short of his Journies end, it amounts to more than 200 Cubits, or 6 Furlongs, which they account a Sabbath-days Journey, there must he sit him down, and keep his Sabbath, though in a Wood, or Field, or the High-way side, without fear of Wind or Weather, Thieves or Robbers, or without taking order for Meat or Drink: And so far have they gone in despight of Christ, as to declare it unlawful to lift the Ox or Ass out of a Ditch, permitted in the strictest times of Pharisaical rigour; so pertinacious in retaining the difference of Meats and Drinks, that they will by no means fit at the same Table with other Men: and so precise in the dressing of it, that they will eat no Flesh, but of their own killing only; and that too, with such Cautions and Reservations, that if any of the Entrails be corrupt or dislocated, they will fell the whole Beast to the Christians for a very trifle; beneficial in that only to the Neighbouring Christians.

Wine they forbear, except it be of their own planting, not so much out of dislike of that Liquor, for they are generally good Fellows, and love their Bellies, as for fear the Wine should be baptized. A Ceremony much used in the Eastern Parts. Of the coming of their Messiah so full of hopes, that there is no great Warrior stirring, but they look upon him as the Man, till some sad Tragedy or other which suffer under that Persuasion, makes them see their Error; promising to themselves, whatsoever he cometh, a Restitution of their Kingdom, and such Felicities therein therein, in the literal sense of some Texts of Scripture, which carry in them a more mystical and sacred meaning. That in good time (but God's, not theirs) they shall be made partakers of the several Blessings which those Texts do speak of, is both the hope and wish of all pious Men: who cannot chuse but grieve, to behold the natural Branches so long dismembred, and cut off from the Tree of Life. And this they neither hope nor wish for, but on some fair grounds presented to them by St. Paul, who said expressly, that when the fulness of the Gentiles is once come in, that then all Israel shall be saved, Rom. xi. 25, 26. The words are so plainly positive, that they need no Commentary: Or, if they did, we have the general Consent of the Ancients; besides the constant current of most Modern Writers, who cherish the glad hopes of their Conversion to the Gospel; which the Apostle doth there aim at. Origen, Athanasius, Hierom, Augustine, Chrysostome, for the Primitive Times: Beda and Hugo Cardinalis, in the times succeeding. Ferrara and Thomas Aquinas, for those of Rome. Calvin, Beza, Bullinger and Peter Martyr, for the Reformed Churches; besides divers others of great note so expound that Text. Nor want there other Texts of Scripture to affirm as much, which he that doth desire to see, may find them with the Expositions of most Christian Writers in a Book writ by Doctor Willet, entituled, De generali & novissima Judeorum vocacione: And thither I refer the most curious Reader. Out of all I shall take these words, De illorum saluté spes surperfit. The Jews (faith he) are not so wholly fallen from the favour of God, but that there still remains some hopes of their Salvation. Of their Salvation then by the Gospel of Christ, when the fulnels of the Gentiles is once come in, we conceive good hopes: but whether there be any of their restitution to their temporal Kingdom, is a farther question, and not so clearly evidenced in the Book of God, though there be somewhat in that Book which may seem to intimate it.

That the Opinion of being restored by the Messiah to that temporal Power which was taken from them by the Romans, was prevalent as well amongst Christ's Disciples, as the rest of the Jews, is, as I take it, clear enough in the Holy Gospel. In such a Kingdom, and no other, do the two Sons of Zebedee desire to sit on both hands of their Master. And the same was it, and no other, which all of them expected, as appeareth by the words of Cleophas, Luke 24. 21. that Christ should have restored unto them: We thought, said he, that This would have proved the Man, that should have redeemed from what? from Sin and Satan, or the Curse and Bondage of the Law? not so αλλὰ ἡμῖν τὰ ζυγαὶ ἡμῶν, but from the Yoke of Vassalage, which the Romans had so lately imposed on them, say the Fathers rightly: Touching the same it was that they moved him, saying, Lord wilt thou at this time restore again the Kingdom to Israel? Acts 1. 6. In answer whereunto, our Saviour makes them no denial, as unto the thing, nor tells them that they never must expect such a Restauration; but only puts them off as unto the Time, and bids them rest themselves on the pleasure of God the Father, in whose Hand the disposing of all Kingdoms was: It is not for you, faith he, to know the times and seasons, which the Father hath in his power, ver. 7. By which answer (as it seems to me) there is a possibility of restoring their Kingdom also; tho' not in the time, at that very instant when when they were most desirous to have it done, or at any other time fit for them to know, that being a Secret which the Father hath reserved to him alone.

Let the Consideration of these Things be unto us, as it was sometimes unto an Eminent Divine (now with God) an occasion of Prayer unto God on their Behalf, saying with him in this, or to the like Effect.

O Lord, who art righteous in all thy Ways, and holy in all thy Works, we acknowledge and admire the Justice of thy proceeding, in blinding and hardning the Jews; as for their manifold Impieties, so especially for Stoning the Prophets, despising thy Word, and crucifying the Lord of Life. For which thou hast cursed them, according to the Prediction of the Prophet, To abide many days without a King, and without a Prince, and without a Sacrifice, and without an Image, and without an Ephod, and without a Teraphim. But thou, O Lord, how long? How long, O Lord Holy and True? How long, O Lord? Wilt thou be angry for ever? Thine Anger is said but to endure for a Moment; but Lord, how many Millions of Millions of Moments, are contain'd in sixteen hundred Years, since thou hast first cast off thy first and ancient People the Jews? Remember Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, not for any Merit in their Persons, which was none, but for the Mercy of thy Promises, which is infinite, so frequently made, & so solemnly confirm'd unto them.
A Prayer.

them. But O! remember the Orator on thy Right Hand, Christ Jesus our Lord, which was made of the Seed of David according to the Flesh; and the Orator in thine own Bosom, thine essential and innate Clemency, and let these prevail if it may stand with thy good Will and Pleasure, that thy People the Jews, may be received into the Arms of thy Mercy. As once by a wilful and woful Imprecation they drew the Guilt of his Blood on them, and on their Children: So by thy free Imputation, drop the Merit of his Blood on them, and on their Children. For the speeding of whose Conversion, be pleased to compose the many different Judgments of Christians into one Truth to unite their disagreeing Affections in one Love; that our Example may no longer discourage, but invite them to the imbracing of the true Religion. Oh mollifie the Hearts, rectifie the Wills, unveil the Eyes, unstop the Ears of those thy People, whom hitherto thou hast justly hardned: Reveal to their Understanding, those Oracles which thou hast committed to their keeping: That so our Saviour, who long since hath been a Light to lighten the Gentiles, may in thy Time be the Glory of thy People Israel, that so there may be one Shepherd, and one Sheepfold. Grant this, O Lord, for Jesus Christ his sake, to whom with Thee, and the Holy Spirit, be all Honour and Glory, now and for evermore. Amen.

FINIS.
A TABLE and brief Description of the chief Places mentioned in the History of Josephus.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Place</th>
<th>Description</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>A Co Ptolemias, a City of Phoenicia,</td>
<td>called so from Ptolomy King of Egypt.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ajelona, the name of a City belonging</td>
<td>to the Levites, and of a Village not far from Nicopolis; also the Place</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Arabia, a Country lying in the East</td>
<td>and North East of the Holy Island, and is divided into Felix Deferta, Petrea;</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Alexandria, a City in Egypt, built by</td>
<td>or Arabia the Happy, the Defart and the Stony.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Antiochia, a City in Syria, lying on</td>
<td>the Sea Coast, built by King Antiochus.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Aosta, a town which Alexander King of</td>
<td>the Jews went and encompassed it with a triple Wall.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ararat, a mountain of Armenia, where</td>
<td>Aram, his Country is at this day called Syria; he was one of the Sons of</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ashkelon, one of the five principal</td>
<td>Shem, the Son of Noah.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Asdotum, a very strong City of the</td>
<td>Arabia, the Happy, the Defart and the Stony.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Askalon, one of the five principal</td>
<td>Cities of the Philistines, built on the Sea-shore, distant from Jerusalem</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Antiochus</td>
<td>720 furlongs.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
The Table.

Giants sometimes dwelt. A
Assur, Assyria, a Country lying near the Holy Land, so named from Assur, the Son of Shem.
Astaroth Karnalim, a City in the tribe of Menasseh, on the other side of Jordan, in the very corner of the Country of Bashan, in the Confines of Arabia.

Cedron, a Brook which runs on the East side of Jerusalem, between the City and Mount Oliver.
Cephae Toco, a Town in Idumea, which Vespasian the Emperor was:
Chaldea, a Country lying North East from Palestine, the chief City whereof was Babylon.
Cælarea, a Town lying not far from the Sea, in the Holy Land; call’d also Turris Stratonis, and Flavia Colonia: very strong, and rebuilt by Herod to keep the Jews from Rebellion.

B
Bethshemesh, or Bethseems, a City belonging to the Priests, lying in the Land of Judah in the Lot of Dan, afterward assigned to the Levites; the People of this City were slain by the hand of God, to the number of 50000, for looking into the Ark.
Bitter, a very strong City, not far from Jerusalem, which the Romans took by famine.

D
Basascus, a City in Syria, lying beyond Mount Libanus, six days journey from Jerusalem, watered with two navigable Rivers, Abana, and Pharpar.

C
Appadocia, a little Country, being part of Syria, call’d by the Greeks Leuco Syria.

E
Lat, a City in Idumea, upon the Coast of the Red-Sea. Edom
Edom or Idumea, The Country where the Posterity of Esau liv’d, is called from the name of Esau, signifying Red.

Euphrates, called by Ezechiel, Cheber, it divides Babylon in the midst, and runs into the Persian Gulf.

G

Galilee, A most fruitful part of the Holy Land, situate betwixt Mount Libanus and Samaria, bounded on the North with Tyre, on the South with the Samaritans Country and the River Jordan; on the West with the Territory of Ptolemais and Mount Carmel: on the East it extends itself beyond the Streams of Jordan.

Gamala, A very strong, and almost impregnable Town and Castle of Palestina, which was built on the top of a Hill, like a Bunch upon a Camels back, whence the City took its name Gamal; Gamala in Hebrew signifying a Camel.

Gaza, One of the five principal Cities of the Philistines, distant from the Sea about two Miles; it was taken from the Canaanites by the Tribe of Judah, Caleb being their Commander.

Gerarra, A City in the Upper Galilee.

Gilboa, The Mountain upon which Saul and Jonathan his Son were slain by the Philistines.

Gomorrha, A City of the Canaanites, near to Sodom, both which were consumed by Fire from Heaven.

Goschen, A part of Egypt fruitful in Pastures, where Jacob and the Patriarchs were placed by Pharaoh King of Egypt.

H

Hierusalem, called the Holy City, was built on Mountains in the midst of Judea, in the Tribe of Benjamin, a Place chosen by God himself, built at first by the Jebusites, and by them called Jebus, the King thereof Joshua slew. Afterward David coming against it, the Inhabitants were so confident of the impregnableness of it, that in scorn they placed the Lame and Blind upon the Walls, accounting them sufficient Defenders of so strong a place. But David, by the help of Almighty God won the City, cast out the Jebusites, rebuilt it round, fortified it with a Tower, and dwelt in it, making it the chief City of all the Land of Canaan; afterwards by reason of the building of Solomon's Temple in that Place, it was called Hierosolima, that is Solomon's Temple from the Greeks Name. Next for the Idolatry and shedding innocent Blood in that Place and Land, the Jews were carried captive into Babylon by Nebuchadnezzar, the Temple and City were destroyed by Fire by the Chaldeans; but seventy Years after that, according as the Lord spake by the Mouth of Jeremiah the Prophet, the People of the Jews were by Cyrus sent out of Captivity into their own Land, with great Gifts, besides Gold and Silver, and the Vessels that had been taken out of the House of the Lord by Nebuchadnezzar, with Zerubbabel, for the re-edifying of the Temple, and furnishing it by Artaxerxes; afterwards Nehemiah was authorized for the building of the Wall of the City. This being done and finished by Zerubbabel and Nehemiah, and the City being magnificently increased with Buildings, afterwards by the Maccabees, and Herod, thirty eight Years after the Death of Christ, Titus Son to Vespasian sack'd the City, and destroyed it, leaving it only a Garison for the Roman Soldiers. Sixty five Years after that, the Jews falling into rebellion, Adrian the Emperour of Rome, utterly destroyed what Titus
The Table.

tus left standing, and commanded Salt to be sown where the City stood. And thus was fulfilled what was spoken by our Saviour touching the Temple, that there should not be left one Stone upon another.

Hurcan, or Hurcania a Region on the greater Asia, having on the East the Caspian Sea, on the South Armenia, upon the North Albania, on the West Iberia.

Abaum, or Jamnua, a Village of the upper Galilee, standing upon a very steep Ground, which Josephus, being Governor of Galilee, fortified against the Romans.

Jericho, A City in the south part of the Land of Canaan, situated in a fruitful soil, where grew Balm, Roses, Sugar-cains, and abundance of Dates, whence it was called the City of Palms.

Joppe or Japho, A Seaport and part of Judea, built on a high Promonta-ry, from whence materials of Timber and Stones were brought to the building of Solomon's Temple from Mount Libanus or Lebanon.

Jordan, in Hebrew Jorden, the fairest and biggest River in all Palestina, springing up at the foot of Mount Libanus, running on the South of Canaan, passing by many famous Places, at length falls into the Lake of Sodom.

Jorpata, or Jatopatae, an exceeding strong City of Jerusalem, standing all well nigh upon a Rock, accessible only upon the Northside.

Atiim, or Cittim, the Nations of the Greeks
so called in Gen. 10. and in Balaam's Prophecy; Kitrim ( faith be ) shall afflict Athur and Eber.

Agarith, A City of Edom, won by Vespas-ian.
The Table.

Macedonia, a Country lying in Greece in the Western part of it; it was the Country of King Philip and Alexander his Son, which was to the Greeks the Persian Empire.

Maidai, or Media, a Country having upon the South Persia, upon the North the Hircanian Sea, on the West Armenia and Syria, on the East Hircania and Parthia; which Country took its name from Madai, one of the Sons of Japhet.

Mesopotamia, a Country which lieth betwixt the River Tigris and Euphrates, from which situation it was so call'd, as lying in the midst of Rivers.

Moriah, a Mountain joyning very near to Jerusalem, upon the East side of that City, a very steep rocky place; in this place Abraham offered to Sacrifice his Son Isaac, and afterward upon this Mountain was Solomon's Temple built.

Mount Olivet, so call'd from the plenty of Olives which grew here, lying in the east-side of Jerusalem, and separated from the higher City by the Valley of Cedron: Into this Mountain our Saviour Christ often repaired, and offered up his Prayers here unto his Father.

Nicopolis, a City of the Holy Land otherwise called Emus.

Samaria, a City standing in the Tribe of Ephraim, which after that the Ten Tribes fell off from the Tribe of Judah, was made the Metropolis of the Ten revolting Tribes; called Sebaste, in honour of Augustus the Emperor.

Scythopolis, a City in Syria.

Sennaar, the Land of Chaldea, where the Tower of Babel began to be builded.

Seleucia, a City on the farther side of Jordan, in the Country called Gualonitis, so named from Seleucus King of Syria.
The Table.

Sichem, a Country near Hebron, belonging to Hamor the father of Sichem, from whence it is thought he gave the name of his Son to that Country of which he was Prince; & by some it is thought to be the name of that City call'd in the Gospel Sichar, a City of refuge, and peculiar to the Levites; a principal City of Samaria.

Sodom, a City which stood in the Land of Canaan, where now is the dead sea, destroyed by Fire from Heaven, for their sins.

Sidon, a Haven and Mart Town of Phoenecia, being the Border of the Land of Promise toward the North and in the Lot of the tribe of Zabulon, altho' it was never conquered, nor pos-

Sinaí, the mountain otherwise named Horeb, upon which the Almighty gave the law to Moses by the ministry of Angels. It was call'd Sinaí, from the word in the Holy Tongue, signifying a Bush, because God appeared there to Moses, in a Bush in a flame of fire, the Bush not consumed.

Sion, the Hill and City built of that Hill called the City of David, taken by him from the Jebusites, lying on the North side of the City Jerusalem, on which the Temple was built.

Siloe, a fountain rising out at the foot of Mount Sion, in the West part of the Valley of Jehoshaphat, a very clear, sweet, and large Spring, it runs into the Brook Cedron.

Schiloth, or Silo, the highest mountain of all that are about Jerusalem, or higher than any other mountain in the holy Land, likewise the name of the City that stands upon the Hill, where the Ark continued a long time with the tabernacle of the Covenant, till it was taken by the Philistines; for which cause the People of Israel used to meet at this Place and offer Sacrifices, until the time of Samuel the Prophet. Afterward for the sins of the Israelites, the
the City was destroyed, and the Altar demolished.

The Table.

Tiberius, a City so named in honour of Tiberius Caesar by Herod the Tetrarch, standing near the Lake of Gennezeret, called also the Sea of Tiberius; to the utmost bound of the lower Galilee Eastward. Tyre, a City renowned in holy Scripture built upon a Rock, and upon all sides incompassed by the Seas; wherefore the Prophet calls her the City in the heart of the Sea; a City of incredible riches, by the abundance of her merchandise; by the special appointment of God and foreseeing of his Prophets Isaiah & Ezekiel, made a prey to Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon, and afterward to Alexander Son of Philip K. of Macedon, both of them in the siege of the City, filled up that part of the Sea which ran betwixt the main Land and the City with stones, earth & timber, & made it continent to the land first Nebuchadnezzar, but in short time after that City was rebuilt, & the bar of the Sea quite demolished, & so the City restored to its former strength; but Alexander sought up the sea again, sacker the City, crucified many of the chief men of the City, & to this day that little which remains of it is annex'd firmly to the continent. It stood in the territory of the tribe of Ashur, but had Kings of her own, having never been in the hands of the Israelites.

A short view of the whole Matter. By Th. F.

A true Character of the Jews as they are at this day; with the hopes and desires of all good men for their Conversion.

A Prayer unto God for their Conversion.

FINIS.